Don't Place Regular Standing Orders With Us

OR WITH ANYONE ELSE

Don't let wholesalers coax you into placing regular standing orders with them. It is fine for the wholesalers, but keeps you loaded up with stock you do not need. In these days of big supply these standing orders are quite unnecessary. The Chicago market is full of stock, and you can order what you need as you need it.

We have a big supply of Beauties of all grades. Roses, from the finest down to the funeral stock. We are acknowledged leaders in fancy Carnations—and we have everything else that you need.

You Want What You Want When You Want It and we are here to give it to you.

Wire us for what you need, and we will guarantee good stock and close prices.

"I want to tell you you have the finest line of ribbons and chiffons I have ever seen, and this is no tommyrot."

The above is a quotation from the leading florist of a large western city. Name furnished upon request.

VELVET STRIPED CORSAGE CHIFFON

Why Don't You Sell American Beauty Roses?

The very word American Beauty is attractive, and if the people find out they can buy them at one, two and three dollars a dozen, you will be surprised how it will boost your business even in the dull season.

You can sell nice ones all Fall at these prices if you start with us now. Fresh, clean, fine stock direct from this big growing establishment, with but one handling from the time they are cut till they reach you.

Try the new yellow roses. They will boost your business, too. Ladies like them—they are different—and sell on sight every place they are shown.

A lot of new business can be attracted to a store with Beauties and these new kinds of roses. It's an advertisement that will help all your other business.

We have started a lot of new customers on these things and a lot of them have written us thanking us.

Besides, if you will compare carefully, you will notice the price list is less and it is good till Oct. 1st and perhaps longer. We want to sell direct to the stores and are willing to sell for less.

Always fresh stock, carefully packed, and handled but once from the time it is cut. It makes a big difference.

AMERICAN BEAUTIES

Our pride in our Beauties never grows less and in this we are justified. This may or may not mean anything to you, but those who deal with us know that when we say our Beauties are the highest grade on this market we have the goods. These Beauties come from the houses of the largest grower of Beauties in the country and if there are finer ones we have not seen them. The quantity is unlimited. Any number you want and all lengths of stems. The buds are cut tight for shipping.

KILLARNEYS-MARYLANDS-OTHER ROSES

We have everything you want in roses. The cut of Killarneys is especially heavy and of fine quality. The other roses, including the yellows, in good supply.

SCREENING GLASS AGAINST HAIL

The Florists' Hail Association last year suffered forty-one per cent of its losses in four states

SOME time ago The Review published, among its brief news notes, a suggestive item from the Kramer Greenhouse, at Mankato, Kan. In the item Mrs. Kramer, proprietor of the greenhouse, was quoted as saying: "The Kramer Greenhouse now has a covering of hail screen, the best possible insurance against a repetition of last year's smash-up."

Of course it is generally known that the protection or insurance of glass is an especially perplexing problem in Kansas and the neighboring southwest states, on account of the eccentricities of the climate there, the sudden, unexpected and sometimes disastrous performances of the elements. The insurance of greenhouse glass in the locality indicated is, in the language of the insurance trade, an extra hazardous risk as compared with the risk in other parts of the United States. Hence the hail storms in Kansas and two or three other states are not only a source of vexation to the florists of that particular region, but also to the Florists' Hail Association, which must suffer a large proportion of the loss, and to the members of that association throughout the country, who are the original contributors of the funds.

A Kind of Insurance.

In the case of the Kramer Greenhouse, Mrs. Kramer evidently believes that the plan she has adopted is the best solution of the difficulty. The protection of the glass by wire netting is a form of "insurance" that is especially satisfactory to her for two reasons: First, it insures her against all the interruptions of business and of plant growth, and all the general inconvenience and annoyance that accompany the breaking of glass, however promptly the repairs may be made; second, it insures her against worry when she sees a storm approaching. At least, that is some of the reasoning that she used when she put the wire protection on the greenhouse, and she gave no indication of having changed her mind a few weeks later, when she sent to The Review a photograph of the house.

The Kramer Greenhouse was built in 1912, and is owned and operated by Mrs. G. K. Kramer, Sr. The main building, as seen in the illustration, is 20x100 feet, with a brick office building, 20x24, at the north, and a small ell, not visible in the picture, at the west of the office. One week after its completion, almost every pane of glass in the building was broken out by hail. After several days spent in picking up and carting out broken glass, replacing damaged stock, etc., Mrs. Kramer decided that once covering the entire greenhouse with hail screen would be much cheaper than reglazing the building each year, to say nothing of the nerve strain every time a cloud might heave in sight. And this is what was done:

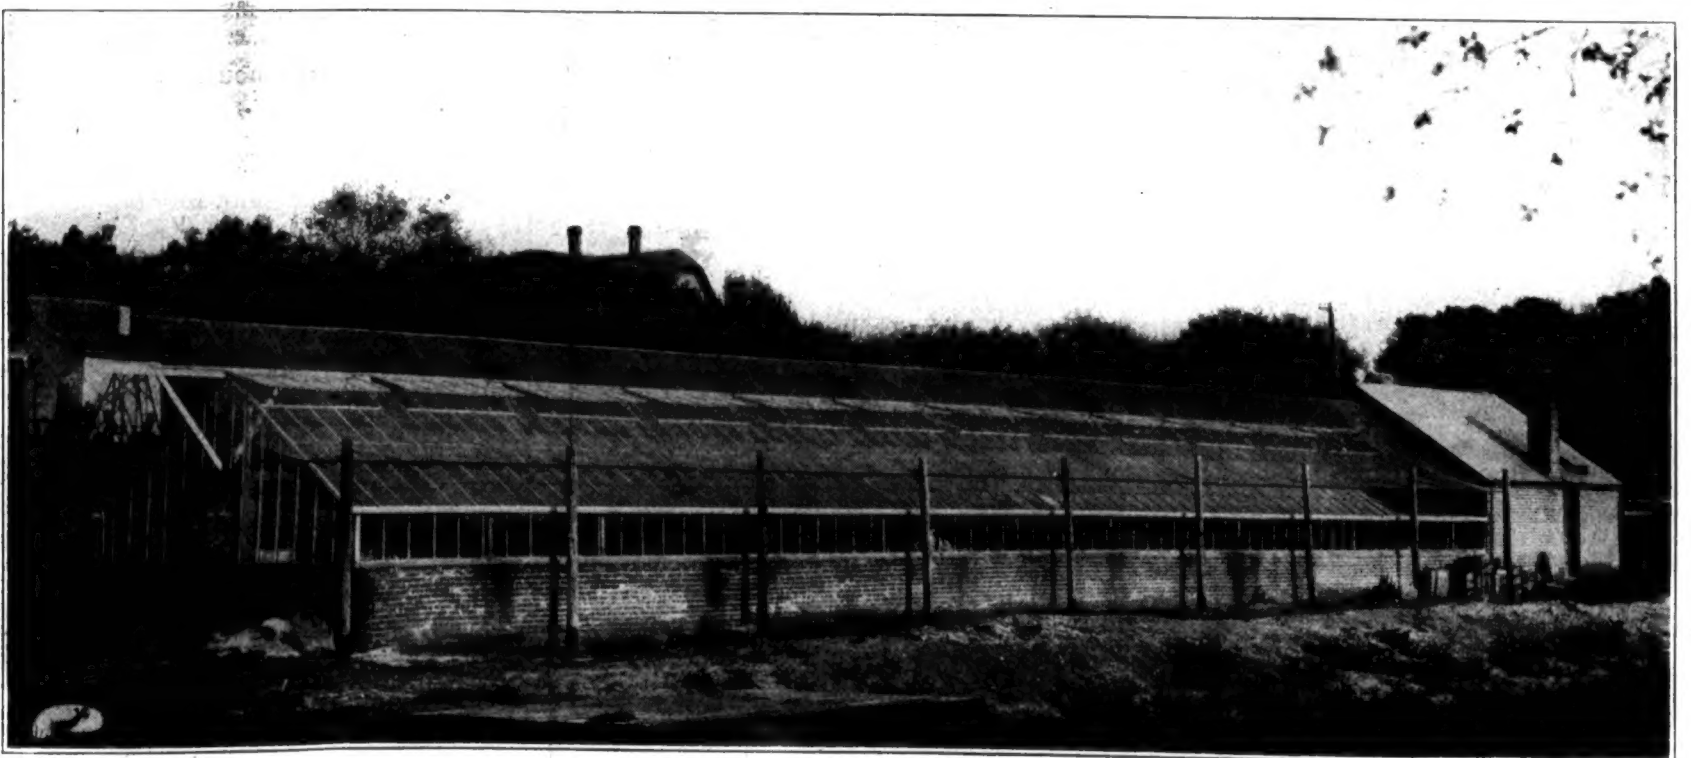

How the Screen Was Erected.

Eighteen 12-foot telephone poles were set, nine on each side of the building, spaced an equal distance apart and set three feet in the ground and one and one-half feet out from the wall. Near the top of each pole a hole was bored, large enough to allow the insertion of a 3/4-inch pipe. Twelve iron posts were made, two feet long, with a V-shaped base to fit on the ridge. The top of each of these ridge posts was also so constructed as to allow a 3/4-inch pipe to pass through, and galvanized pipe was used on the ridge, to prevent the formation of rust and the consequent staining of the glass. The posts are so set as to provide a clear space of two feet at the ridge and over two and one-half feet at the gutter, between the hail screen and the glass which it protects, thus allowing plenty of space for the operation of ventilators or the repairing of glass, and also to guard against the danger of snow packing in beneath the screen and breaking the glass.

Common stove-pipe wire was used in sewing the strips of screen together, the screen being lapped one-half inch. The screen is permitted to extend over the sides one and one-half feet and three feet out from the building at the end, thus helping to protect the sides and end from wind-driven hail storms. Twelve iron bars, each five feet long, were screwed to the rafters under the iron ridge posts, tying the rafters so that the weight of the screen pressing down would not cause the walls to spread out. The 1/2-inch mesh screen, Mrs. Kramer says, does not seem to bar out the sunshine in the least.

The materials for this protection against hail damage will, of course, vary in cost in different localities. The following is Mrs. Kramer's itemized statement of the materials and cost at Mankato, Kan.:

Ten rolls 1/2-inch mesh hail screen.....	$120.00
Eighteen 12-foot telephone poles.....	15.30
206 feet 3/4-inch iron pipe.....	8.24
103 feet 1/2-inch galvanized pipe.....	7.21
Twelve 2-foot iron posts.....	3.50
Twelve 5-foot iron bars.....	4.50
Stove-pipe wire.....	.70
Sundries.....	.75
Labor, about.....	25.00
Total.....	$185.20

Whether or not this would prove a practical proposition for a man with an acre of glass, or for one with half a dozen acres, is not readily apparent, but Mrs. Kramer feels sure it solves the hail problem for the small florist.

The discussion of methods of protection against the losses inflicted by hail will be of special interest to those located in the "hail belt," as the states of Nebraska, Kansas, Colorado and Texas have come to be known, for the Florists' Hail Association has found it necessary to raise the rate on all those who suffer more than one loss in five years, and in the year ending August 1, 1913, the association, out of total losses of $16,432.69, found $6,757.47, or forty-one per cent, going into those four states. The showing numerically was even worse for these four hail states, as out of 128 losses paid by the association seventy-four, or fifty-seven per cent, were in Colorado, Nebraska, Kansas and Texas. The two big losses of the year, moreover, were in adjoining states, $1,650 at Council Bluffs, Ia., and $1,149.36 at Maryville, Mo.

the difficulty would be to dig reservoirs and catch as much rain water as possible, with which to water the plants. When you must use the alkali water, never allow the plants to become at all dry. At least, that is according to my experience with alkali in the water; the plants seem to suffer as soon as they get dry, but as long as they are kept wet the alkali does not seem to affect them seriously.

SULPHUR AND OTHER REMEDIES.

Please inform us how to use sulphur on roses. Should it be used when the foliage is wet? Are Slug Shot, Grape Dust and tobacco used in the same way?

S. G.

Sulphur and Grape Dust, when applied to roses, should be dusted on with a sulphur blower while the foliage is perfectly dry, making a fine dust, which settles over the leaves and dries up the fungous growth, preventing it from spreading. Slug Shot and tobacco dust may be applied while the foliage is wet, so as to stick better to the plants and kill any insects that may be on them.

TO KILL WORMS AND GRUBS.

Do you think Vermine will kill worms and grubs in the soil? One season I lost nearly all my crop of violet plants with grubs, the kind that eat the roots of the plants, and now there are small worms eating the roots. I should like to know whether Vermine will hurt violet plants or not. Shall I use 300 gallons of water to one gallon of Vermine? I should like to know how much to use in a house 20x150, to kill the grubs. I could wet the soil first and then use the Vermine, as less of it would then be needed. Please let me know how to use it.

F. M.

Vermine will not harm violets or any other plants. For a house 20x150, in which the soil is moist, I would use 600 gallons. The Radix worm eradicator will also destroy all similar pests. You can also kill grubs by using carbon bisulphide, boring holes twelve to fifteen inches apart each way, pouring a teaspoonful into each hole and immediately covering it. This is a sure remedy. Do not use any naked lights while applying the carbon, as it is explosive in its nature. Steam sterilization would, of course, be the best remedy when your house was empty, if you could apply it.

DISEASED ANTIRRHINUMS.

There is some kind of disease attacking our snapdragons. It starts with brown or grayish spots on the leaves and later attacks the stems, completely ruining the plants. Our stock was attacked in the greenhouse last winter, especially in places where the roof leaked badly, and we lost quite a lot of plants. This spring our young stock was also affected considerably outdoors, but after they had been set out in the field and all affected leaves and parts had been removed, they appeared to be perfectly free from the disease until lately, when frequent showers set in; then the disease made its reappearance and some of the plants were badly affected. I would have sent you some leaves and affected parts of the plants, but I think you must be familiar with the disease and its nature. Is there any kind of fungicide that will keep

WHITE COCHETS FOR WINTER.

Please tell me whether White Cochet roses can be forced in winter in this Tennessee climate. I have a nice lot of them and should like to try some for winter blooming.

C. M. W.

Though White Cochet may do fairly well in winter in Tennessee, White Killarney will give so much better satisfaction as a winter bloomer that it would be false economy to plant Cochet indoors, since it gives so much better satisfaction planted outdoors for summer blooming. Besides, the flowers are apt to be bull-headed in winter.

KILLARNEY LOSING FOLIAGE.

Under separate cover we are sending you a plant of Double Killarney, which we bought of a leading grower. A good percentage of the plants are acting like the sample. Please tell us the cause and remedy. Maryland is doing finely under the same conditions and in the same soil, while Killarney is thus disappointing us.

M. A. B.

The Killarney plant received was a good, strong plant, out of a 2 1/2-inch pot. It had strong roots and three good leads from the bottom, but the foliage was lying in the bottom of the box, partly dried up. It is a difficult matter to say what is the trouble with a plant received under such circumstances, without knowing anything about the conditions under which the plant was grown. If the foliage is dropping off while green, the trouble is probably caused by an overdose of ammonia, which would quickly act that way on Killarney, though Maryland would not show such effects. Killarney wants lots of feed to do well, but it wants it a little at a time, or it will drop the leaves more quickly than any other rose.

W. J. K.

ROSE PLANTS DYING.

I am sending you today, under separate cover, a sample of my roses. They are young plants, benched in April in new benches, in black, heavy soil, containing one-fourth rotted manure. They all made a fine growth until about July 1, when they began to die in spots in all the beds. They have had plenty of ventilation, both day and night, and plenty of water. The varieties are Hillingdon, Killarney, Rhea Reid, My Maryland and Bulgarie. Please let me know as soon as possible what you think is the cause of the trouble. My location is southern Kansas.

L. B. S.

The plants received showed good, healthy roots and the lower part of the wood was green and healthy, but all the tips were dead, and what foliage was left on the plants showed a brown edge around each leaf. The soil that had been left on the plants was a good, heavy clay, an ideal soil for roses. Hence, if the plants otherwise have had good treatment, the only cause to which I can attribute this trouble is a strong alkali in the water, which usually causes the leaves to turn brown on the edges as the leaves of your roses have done. When this is the cause, it is generally found that the largest plants in the benches, or those nearest to the ventilators and on the south edge of the benches, show the effect first, as they take the most water and dry out most frequently.

If the condition of your plants is due to the water, the only way to overcome it in check, and if so how is it to be applied? L. K.

I have seen a little of the disease referred to, but never on any considerable scale. It may have had its inception in the cutting bench, a fungus in the sand causing the trouble. It is more probable, however, that in your case it has been due in large measure to uncongenial atmospheric and soil conditions. A leaky roof would be sure to help spread fungous diseases.

Spraying with a fungicide would be the best remedy. It would be well to apply it even before any fungus appears. Bordeaux mixture is a reliable remedy. I have also found Fungine good. I would advise giving your plants an application once a week.

C. W.

CYANIDE FOR MIXED CROPS.

What quantity of potassium cyanide would you advise as safe for fumigating a house planted with mixed crops, mostly chrysanthemums, carnations, sweet peas and Sprenger, and afterward planted with feverfew, snapdragons, calendulas and lupines? The house is 25x150. One side is three and one-half feet high to the eaves and the other side is four and one-half feet high. The ridge pole is somewhere between thirteen and fourteen feet high. The beds are solid, but are raised on an average one and one-half feet above the level of the ground. Another house is leveled with mums now, to be followed by violets for the winter. This house is 16x100 and the ridge pole is about eight feet high. One bed, though solid, is raised within two feet of the eaves, and the other within one and one-half feet.

L. K.

To kill black or green aphids and thrips, I would use for your larger house ten ounces cyanide of potassium, twenty ounces sulphuric acid and thirty ounces water. It would be better to divide this so as to put it into four jars. For the smaller house, which contains approximately 6,500 cubic feet, use three ounces cyanide, six ounces sulphuric acid and nine ounces water, placed in either two or three jars. For mealy bug you would need to use a dose fifty per cent stronger than that prescribed for your larger house, but I would not advise you to use it so strong, as some of the plants named are easily damaged. Snapdragons are perhaps more easily damaged by gas than any other bench crop grown. They are not scorched, but the tops bend right over, perfectly limp. Lupines and calendulas are fairly tender, but stand more gas than snapdragons.

Always use the gas on the evening of a cool day. The higher the temperature, the greater the danger of injury. Be sure to lock the doors and allow no one to enter until the following day, when the houses can be freely aired. The foregoing formulas are for an all-night exposure and have proved to be perfectly safe from November 1 to April 1, but some damage might result later in the season.

C. W.

HEATED BY A HOT SPRING.

A unique way of utilizing the by-products of nature was hit upon by the caretaker of one of the hotels in Yellowstone Park, who conceived the idea of building the greenhouse which is shown in the illustration over a hot spring. He realized last winter that a great deal of heat was going to waste for lack of the means to make use of it, and devised the plan of erecting a greenhouse over a boiling spring.

When a new hotel was being built in the park a few years ago a number of old windows were discarded, and these were used in the construction of the greenhouse. The great difficulty was to get soil of the right kind for the cultivation of plants. The neighborhood of the spring was covered with a crust of mineral matter and lava. So fertile soil had to be brought from the hills some distance away to be used in the benches.

Upon the completion of the house, he immediately planted lettuce, radishes, cucumbers, tomatoes and mushrooms. While the outside temperature during the winter was far below zero and occasionally as much as 50 degrees below, the plants in the greenhouse flourished. At times the heat from the boiling spring was so intense that it became a serious problem to moderate the temperature to the right extent.

According to all accounts, the vegetables flourished in the greenhouse during the winter. The house is of equal value in the summer time, for the cold nights prevent the cultivation of plants which are at all tender, although the days are usually extremely hot in July and August.

A WELL GROWN SCHIZANTHUS.

If there are any florists who are not fully aware of the beauty of Schizanthus Wisetonensis as a pot plant, the specimen shown in the illustration may perhaps convince them of the possibilities that exist in this variety of butterfly flower. The plant shown was grown at Westmoreland, Lake Forest, Ill., the estate of A. B. Dick, where John Tiplady is superintendent. Mr. Tiplady, however, says that a good share of the credit for the flourishing condition of the schizanthus is due to his foreman, Robert Kuehne, as the plant was under Mr. Kuehne's personal care.

It was grown in a 10-inch pot, Mr. Tiplady says, and measured forty inches in height and thirty-six inches in diameter when the photograph was taken. It was in full bloom April 15. The seed was sown August 15 and the plants were given the coolest possible treatment from start to finish. They resent heat or coddling in any way, says Mr. Tiplady, but delight in a cool bed of cinders in full sunlight, with plenty of drainage and a rich, porous soil. Their season of blooming, he adds, may be controlled to some extent by the potting; the larger the pot, the later the date of flowering.

Schizanthus Wisetonensis Grown at Lake Forest, Ill.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

SHOULD LEAVES BE REMOVED?

I grow chrysanthemums, both pot plants and single stems. My pot plants, about 100 of them, are in 9-inch to 12-inch pots at present. I pinch so that I get from two to four breaks. The crowns of some measure from two and one-half to three feet across and stand as high as four and one-half feet. The single-stem plants are in good condition, both strong and healthy. The other day someone advised my employer to strip off all the foliage from below to a height of about a foot, in order to get more air in between the plants. The pot plants, if pinched in the way he advised, would not make any breaks or produce any flowers. I objected to his advice in both particulars and I should like to have some grower tell me whether I was right or wrong.

P. D.

I certainly would not be in favor of stripping the foliage off the chrysanthemum plants. Nature takes care of this without any aid from man. When the leaves are unable to procure needed nourishment, they simply turn yellow and die. The leaves are the lungs of the plant and, all other things being equal, it is a shame to remove even one leaf unnecessarily.

Pot plants intended for specimens should not be pinched after the third week in July. If pinching is continued too long, the flowers will be small and in many cases a great many shoots will go blind.

Chas. H. Totty.

SCALE ON OUTDOOR MUMS.

I am mailing you under separate cover some leaves of Chrysanthemum Mrs. Robinson, which are badly affected with a scale that is entirely new to us here, in southern Louisiana. If you can give me any information as to what to use to remove this scale, I shall certainly appreciate it greatly, as I have exhausted every means that I know of and have used about every insecticide in the catalogue, from Aphine at 12 to 1 to kerosene emulsion at its maximum strength, without any of the desired effect. This scale seems, practically, to grow over night. The entire stock of 5,000 plants is now more or less covered with it. However, I have not discovered any injurious effects so far, as the plants are vigorous and strong. Nearly all mum crops in this city have a few of these scales, but mine seems to be more affected than any others. These chrysanthemums you will understand, are grown outside and are subject to all changes and conditions of the weather. I would thank you to give these minute inspection and let me know whether you have ever had any report of this trouble in your vicinity and what remedy there was for it.

H. M.

The leaves were so withered upon arrival that it was impossible to tell what they were affected with. Kerosene emulsion is the only means I know of for removing scale, but, as H. M. says this has no effect, I am at a loss to suggest any method of procedure. If the plants continue strong and healthy, as stated, perhaps it will not be troublesome. I regret that my limited knowledge of southern Louisiana and its climatic conditions prevents my giving a more definite reply.

Chas. H. Totty.

CATERPILLARS ON MUMS.

Our chrysanthemum plants are infested with small caterpillars or worms that work on the under side of the leaf, leaving the leaf in such condition that it resembles a sieve. They are about one-half inch in length when mature, but are extremely small when first discovered and are collected in a cluster of fifty or more. What is the best way to get rid of them? Will spraying with nicotine extract do any good? Being on the under side of the foliage, they are hard to reach.

H. L. C.

The best way to get rid of caterpillars is to watch the plants closely and, when the leaves indicate that a young brood is starting, turn the leaf over and kill them by crushing them between the thumb and finger. The man who nips the caterpillar crop in the bud this way is not bothered so much later. For the first week or so, the larvae can all be found on the host leaf, but when they once scatter over the plant the labor of removing them is tripled. A weak solution of Paris green is the best exterminator of these that I know of. It is away ahead of nicotine extract or any such spray, because it is poisonous and it will stick, though it must be applied to the under side of the leaf, as most of the caterpillars work on the under side until they get large enough to eat the leaf entirely. Many grasshoppers and other pests fall by the wayside also when Paris green is intelligently used.

C. H. Totty.

LIMING THE GARDEN.

I have a vegetable garden, the area of which is 25,000 square feet. This year's crop is the first one. It is all drained with 4-inch tile. Last spring it was a heavy sod and was covered with three inches of well rotted compost. I want to plow it this fall and replot it in the spring. When would be the best time to lime it and how much lime should be used? After the spring plowing I shall use 1,000 to 1,500 pounds of vegetable fertilizer and no compost.

W. F. G.

Fall is the best time to lime your ground, immediately after plowing it. Harrow it in after applying it. The quantity of lime to be applied would depend upon the acidity of your soil. It would be well to make a blue litmus paper test to find out whether lime is actually needed. From 1,000 to 4,000 pounds per acre can be applied; all depends on how sour your soil may be. The amount of fertilizer you propose to use should be ample. Potatoes and some other root crops come "scabby," to use a common term, in newly limed land, and it would be well to give them higher and drier soil.

THE RETAIL

FLORIST.....

THOSE FISHIN' WINDOWS.

They Hold the Crowds.

Did anyone at the S. A. F. convention see as large crowds in front of any other store in Minneapolis as stood before the Whitted window in the Radisson hotel? Of course not, because the Whitted show was a little fellow fishing in a mountain brook with a background of flowers. The minnows nibbled at his hook, "but he don't ketch nothin'," as one young woman in a slit skirt was heard to remark. Still the crowd watched.

And Here's Another Idea.

The following paragraphs are from a South Dakota newspaper, and tell another variation of the story introduced by The Review's articles of July 3 and August 7:

"T. D. Smedley's gone a-fishin'.

"Crowds of Fargo people became very much aware of the fact yesterday.

Mr. Smedley's departure on his vacation was advertised in a unique manner by the window display in the Smedley floral shop on Broadway.

"Before Smedley left he told his office force, and especially Mr. Poague, his new window trimmer, of the delightful time he expected to have. Mr. Poague had a mental picture of Smedley's summer home when Smedley finished his description and yesterday he made his mental vision a reality.

"Poague transformed the main window of the floral shop into the fishin' grounds. A little lake, flanked by a shady shore with a camp, tent, camp fire and even a camp pot a-boilin', make up the display. Green, fresh moss and ferns from the greenhouse give the camp a 'real' look. To one side of the display itself is a neat placard which states, 'Smedley's gone a-fishin'.

"Crowds of people stood before the Smedley window all day yesterday looking interestedly at the clever display."

PALM-LEAF TRIMMINGS.

Although it does not show in the accompanying illustration, this wreath of magnolia leaves was on a wire easel—the wires were covered with asparagus. The wreath is rather unusual in character, partly because of its shape, partly because of its large size, partly because of the way the ribbon is used, partly because of the massing of bunches of violets, and partly because of the use of palm leaves that had been sheared. The wreath was even more striking in the original than it appears in the picture and one may rest assured that no matter how many pieces there may be at a funeral, a design of such pronounced individuality as this will stand out to the customer's satisfaction. This is the work of George W. Wienhoeber, of the Fleischman Floral Co., Chicago.

"MESSENGERS OF SENTIMENT."

The flowers sold in cities are, on a general average: For funerals, from sixty to sixty-five per cent; for weddings, from ten to fifteen per cent; for convalescents, fifteen per cent, and miscellaneous, ten per cent, or twenty-five for miscellaneous including convalescents. In small towns the general proportion is about seventy-five per cent for funerals, ten per cent for weddings, ten per cent for sickness and five per cent for miscellaneous. Something is wrong. The question is, why don't the florists work up the miscellaneous end of their trade? Why don't they encourage people to pay tribute to the living, the well, and the ill, more than the dead?

Now, to be a "Live-wire Florist" (see article in The Review for May 22, page 15), a salesman must be up-to-date in all his methods and must use every means within his power to attract buyers.

Have you ever heard this conversation:

Florist (to customer): "Would you like to enclose your card?"

Customer: "Why—ah—I haven't any with me, but couldn't I just write something on a card?"

Florist: "Certainly."

Customer (to himself): "Let me see, what shall I say? Oh, pshaw! Well, I guess I'll just write my name."

Many people in the world are full of sentiment, but few can express themselves. And it is the basis of a problem the florist hasn't solved.

If a florist can anticipate the desires of his customers, say, for condolence, and hand them a little card on which is printed a few lines delicately expressing their sympathy, they will regard that florist as a friend in need, a friend indeed, and patronize him. At Christmas time, when hearts are full but tongues are as slow as ever to express the finer feelings, or at Eastertide, or on Mothers' day, etc., a florist would find himself a popular man if he were able to say to his customer: "How would you like to enclose one of these cards?" Or if a man is sending a gift of flowers to a young lady, and wants a little more than his card enclosed, say a heartfelt sentiment, or possibly a not too fond message, he would be most grateful and become a steady customer if the florist supplied him with dainty or pert sentiments in verse.

These are two examples of such verses as I have in mind, both short, one for Christmas greeting, and one to be sent to the proud parents of a baby girl:

I cannot eat my Christmas pudding,
Nor on the turkey feast,
Until I've sent this little plant
And a mile of love at least.

Little bunch of pinkness!
Little new-found pearl!
Flowers I send to welcome
This little baby girl.

FLOWERS OF THE MONTHS.

Cut Out and Paste on Wall.

The following list of flowers of the months was not devised by florists, but by an almanac-maker. It is reprinted here because it frequently is asked for:

January	Snowdrop
February	Primrose
March	Violet
April	Daisy
May	Hawthorn
June	Honeysuckle
July	Water lily
August	Poppy
September	Morning glory
October	Hops
November	Chrysanthemum
December	Holly

VARIEGATED SALVIAS.

I have a salvia plant which has well defined spots and blotches of white and yellow on the foliage. Its blossoms much resemble those of Salvia splendens. Do you think it is anything rare or uncommon? It is a beautiful plant.

G. H.

Variegated salvias such as you describe are not at all uncommon.

GLADIOLI DYING.

Under separate cover we are sending you two gladiolus bulbs. We wish you would tell us what is the matter with them. They started to grow nicely, but after a while the growth stopped, and soon they began dying, ten to twenty at a time, so that our gladiolus crop seems to be almost a total loss. We shall appreciate it if you will tell us the cause of the trouble.

C. G.

It is common to see occasional bulbs of gladioli dying in this way, but there must be some special cause when so many are lost. Have you planted them on land on which fresh manure was used this season? Nothing could be worse for gladioli. If used in a well decayed form in the fall, the manure would be all right, but as a rule commercial fertilizer is the safest food. Possibly your soil may be too acid and may need liming. You can easily discover whether this is so by using blue litmus paper. Moisten some soil, cover both sides of a piece of the paper with it, leave it about forty minutes, then wash away the moist earth carefully. If the paper has turned pink, your soil needs lime. Are you planting deep enough? Set the bulbs at an average depth of six inches and fairly close; then they are not liable to suffer from drought or to be blown over. Even eight or nine inches is not too deep if you want really fine spikes.

The foregoing are possible reasons for your lack of success, but none of them may just hit your case. I hope, however, that some of the suggestions may prove of value.

MULCH FOR CARNATIONS.

My carnations were benched about May 9. Should they be fed with some fertilizer now, or shall I let them alone as long as they are doing well? Would it be advisable to put a thin mulching of cow manure over the soil now? I am located in Alabama. H. C.

Your carnations should hardly need any stimulant yet. To prevent drying out, however, you could give a light mulch of old, thoroughly rotted cow or horse manure, well broken up. Do not, on any consideration, apply green manure. C. W.

BORDEAUX FOR STEM-ROT.

When carnation plants are affected with stem-rot, will Bordeaux mixture cure the disease? H. E. H.

Lime is the best known agent for destroying the stem-rot fungus. Bordeaux mixture, which is made up largely of lime, will have the same effect; in fact, there is nothing better for spraying carnation plants to prevent all kinds of fungous diseases. The difficulty in fighting the stem-rot is that it is almost impossible to reach the stems of the plants, where the fungus attacks them. A. F. J. B.

CARNATIONS AFTER HOUSING.

Please tell us what is the best treatment for field-grown carnations after housing them. We are located in North Carolina. R. F. C.

This is a large subject and, as your query does not state any specific questions on which you desire enlightenment, I will touch on the points which would be most likely to give you trouble.

We will assume that you applied a light shade to the glass before planting in, to protect the plants from the sun, which must still be quite hot in your latitude. After setting the plants, you should water the soil thoroughly just around the plants, being careful not to flood the whole bed. As the plants become established and the roots work through the soil, the watering may be increased, until within a month the whole bed will be saturated. After the first watering, the soil will likely require little more for several days, on account of the frequent syringing necessary to prevent wilting while the roots are taking hold of the new soil. Keep the walks wet for a week after planting. The evaporation from this source will keep the atmosphere charged with moisture and be a great help in preventing the plants from wilting. Spray the plants overhead several times each day for the first few days. In about ten days or two weeks the weeds will be peeping through the surface of the soil. Take a scratcher and break up the surface of the soil, incidentally destroying the first crop of weeds and saving considerable time in pulling them by hand later. Repeat this scratching about once each week during the first month, by which time the weeds will all be destroyed and the plants have gotten a pretty good hold in their new quarters.

If the rains have not taken the shade off the glass by this time, you must rub it off with a brush, else your plants will become soft and a weak growth will result. In fact, the shade should be diminished after the first ten days have passed. We usually get enough rains to take it off as needed, but in the absence of rain you must not fail to do it by hand.

The supports should be put on as soon as the weeds have been destroyed and the plants have started into growth. Do not wait until the blooming shoots are a foot long and the plants are lying on the soil. After this stage you should have little trouble in keeping your plants going in good shape, your attention being engaged principally in keeping the plants growing upright, the flower stems properly disbudded and the beds carefully watered. A. F. J. B.

CULTURE OF CALCEOLARIAS.

We should like to get some information in regard to the culture of calceolarias. Do they need a light, heavy or medium soil, and should they be grown cool, temperate or warm? R. & S. F. S.

Calceolarias require cool culture all the time. They will not tolerate anything in the nature of coddling or forcing. A winter night temperature of 40 to 45 degrees suits them. They grow best in a coldframe until the end of October. As green aphid is fond of them, they need frequent sprayings or fumigations with nicotine to keep them clean.

Generally speaking, calceolarias succeed best in a light or medium soil. In the early stages of growth, leaf-mold can form a good proportion of the compost. At the last potting a mixture composed of three-fourths fibrous loam and one-fourth dried cow manure pressed through a half-inch sieve, with a little soot, finely broken charcoal and Clay's fertilizer, will grow fine plants. C. W.

SEASONABLE NOTES.

Cypripediums.

While the majority of cypripediums succeed well in a hot, moist house, C. insigne does just as well or better in a cool house, in coldframes, or even in the open air if placed under the shade of trees, and certainly the frame or outdoor-grown plants are sturdier and flower far more freely than those coddled in a warm house. All the cypripediums enjoy a spraying over each afternoon, and as most of them love heat and moisture and do not relish abundant ventilation, such as cattleyas delight in, it is well to close down the ventilators for an hour or two, putting on a little air again in the evening. Always avoid a dry atmosphere for cypripediums, or red spider and thrips are both likely to cause trouble.

Dendrobiums.

Such varieties as Dendrobium Phalænopsis Schroederianum and D. formosum giganteum should be placed in a warm, moist house, as they love heat. D. Wardianum usually makes up its pseudo-bulbs before the nobile section and should be moved to a cooler and airier house, or a secondary growth will soon start. Those which are not completed should, in common with D. nobile and many hybrids, such as Ainsworthii, Cybele, chrysodiscus, splendidissimum, Juno and many others, be given a house where they can be syringed and shut up early in the afternoon. A hot, moist, steamy atmosphere is exactly to their liking, but the plants should be looked over every few days and any which have growths well made up should be placed in a cooler, drier, lighter and more airy house.

Odontoglossums.

The present summer has been less trying for odontoglossums than any summer for several years, and the plants look rather better than usual. Any European growers looking at our plants would, of course, pronounce them extremely poor, but we may truthfully tell our visitors from across the brine that if they had our climate their odontoglossums would be no better than ours, and not unlikely a little worse. It is from this time on that Odontoglossum crispum, Pescatorei, Andersonianum, Hallii, triumphans and other good, cool-loving odontoglossums begin to take on a new lease of life. In the heated period it is better to keep them on the dry side. Now, after they are overhauled and any repotting or top-dressing is done, they can be kept moister at the root. Leave the ventilators wide open night and day. Never mind if the minimum temperature falls to 50 degrees. O. grande, commonly called the baby orchid, is a useful fall-flowering variety, and does not mind the summer heat as the crispum family does.

Cœlogyne Cristata.

Cœlogyne cristata succeeds well in the cool end of a cattleya house. It also grows well with odontoglossums, and in coldframes. Spray the plants over each afternoon. Plants which have not been overhauled for several years and have their pots, pans or baskets full of roots will be much benefited by a watering with weak liquid manure once a week until the end of September.

Vanda Cœrulea.

If your plants of Vanda cœrulea are growing in heavy, or even moderately heavy shade, you will get a beautiful dark green color on the leaves, but the crop of spikes will be disappointing. Give the plants a light position, close to the glass. The cool end of the cattleya house will suit them. If you have some fresh sphagnum moss, give the pots a surfacing of it. Somehow this vanda, in company with many other vandas, aërides and saccolabiums, seems to do particularly well with sphagnum growing on the surface of the pots or pans in which they are contained.

Vanda teres is a truly beautiful orchid, but its culture, while not difficult, is not generally understood. The plant is a strong grower, but much more slender in habit than most other vandas. It would be one of the most useful of florists' orchids if growers could only make it flower more freely. Fine, healthy plants are frequently seen without a solitary flower. The reason is always the same—too much shade and too much water. This vanda should be stood in a hot, dry situation, merely shielded from the direct midsummer sun—such a location, in fact, as cacti would revel in. Treated thus, they are sure to flower well.

Oncidiums.

Give the pans or baskets of Oncidium varicosum Rogersii a good supply of water. When possible, put them up near the glass. In such a position they are a little more clear of snails, which sometimes harass them badly. Wrap a piece of cotton-wool around the base of each spike as soon as it appears, as a protection from these marauders. O. ornithorhynchum should be similarly protected, and the odontoglossums should not be omitted.

Calanthes.

Calanthes are now in active growth and should be carefully watched and encouraged in every way, to plump up large bulbs. The pots are now full of active feeding roots, and as the plants have taken up about all the available food, some manurial stimulants should be given. There is nothing better or safer than cow manure for this purpose, and it is safe to give it stronger than would be advisable for *cœlogyne*s, *cypripedium*s or some other orchids. Protect calanthes from direct sunshine, but give them all possible light when the sun is not shining.

“WHO’S WHO—AND WHY”

WALLACE J. PILCHER.

WHEN Wallace J. Pilcher's name is placed under the head of "Who's Who," there are several good reasons "why." He is one of the leading growers of Kirkwood, Mo.; he is the originator of the Mazzura violet; he was the first florist in the vicinity of St. Louis to build high, wide greenhouses, and he was recently elected president of the St. Louis Florists' Club. In view of what he has accomplished, his acquaintances seem to have sufficient grounds for their declaration that "he is a man of good qualities and a hustler," and sufficient grounds for their belief that the affairs of the club will prosper under his direction. Mr. Pilcher is 41 years of age. He is a strong believer in specializing and grows only two varieties of flowers, Mazzura violets under glass and America gladioli in the field. He has been a member of the St. Louis Florists' Club since 1903.

Miltonia Vexillaria.

A cool house is best for Miltonia vexillaria during the hot months. With the advent of cooler weather they can be repotted and given a surfacing of live sphagnum. The water supply should be restricted at this season. More can be given when the plants start growing again. After October this miltonia succeeds well at the cool end of the cattleya house, where it can have a light position, including full sun from December 1 to March 1.

SOIL FOR POTTING.

There seems to be a diversity of opinion as to the merits and demerits of sifted soil for greenhouse purposes. All admit that in some cases it is just the thing, but some say that for ordinary bench use, a somewhat coarse grade of soil, or soil coarse in mechanical texture, should be used. I do not believe the presence of hard lumps of soil and manure is particularly conducive to good results. I should like, therefore, to have this special phase of greenhouse processes explained.

F. C. F.

Sifted compost is suitable for plants only while they are comparatively young seedlings or cuttings. It should not be used in any pots over four inches in diameter, as coarser material, containing a greater body of fiber, is more wearing and does not sour, as does the sifted material. For bedding plants and for many other plants in the earlier stages of growth, this screened soil is all right, especially if they will not have to remain in the pots long.

For practically all plants in pots of over four inches, and for some plants even smaller, unscreened compost is preferable. The coarser material can be placed over the crocks used for drainage. Decayed manure mixed in the compost is better if broken up by hand and passed through a moderately coarse screen with a mesh three-quarters of an inch or one inch in diameter. The fibrous loam should not be screened. It is better to chop it down, and whatever coarse portion is not used over drainage can be pulled to pieces by hand and used around the balls when potting. Of course, there are some soft plants for which screening soil through a fairly wide mesh might prove of benefit. Then again, most fine-foliage tropical plants and all orchids like a coarse material, but on the whole, the value of unscreened over screened compost is beyond dispute. Extra large lumps of manure are not desirable and should be guarded against. C. W.

GLADIOLI IN THE EAST.

Upon paying a visit recently to the firm of Chamberlain & Gage, of South Natick, Mass., I was especially impressed with the magnificent display of gladioli at their place. This firm is most fortunate in having an ideal setting for the flowers. The gardens are a few rods distant from the buildings and are reached by a winding path shaded at intervals by giant trees, and bordering a large pond dotted with glorious pink-tinted water lilies of great size and fragrance. Passing over a slight incline, one enters a grove of oaks, whose grateful shade borders the acres of blossoming gladioli.

L. Merton Gage, who superintends the field work for the firm, is kept quite busy at present, selecting and marking the choicest specimens in the finest collection of seedlings I ever examined. Among the many fine things, I counted ten solid whites and also eight yellows, any one of which surpasses anything now on the market. The finest of these is as yellow as a Von Sion jonquil and of fine form and substance. A white seedling as large as a Princeps at its best, of perfectly pure paper-white color, showed no tinge of deepening color under a broiling sun.

A new variety of Kunderd's, of which Mr. Gage informed me he had purchased the entire stock for the firm, will create a sensation in the trade when introduced, as it is a superb florists' variety; color a delicate cream-pink with creamy-yellow throat, and six enormous blooms open at once on a tall, straight stem. A bewildering show of named varieties, including Rajah, a royal deep red; Myrtle, pale pink with soft white throat, and the ever-enchanted Mrs. Frank Pendleton, Jr., were much admired.

This firm is producing a race of seedlings of Pendleton strain, which is a revelation of wide-open, strikingly marked flowers of surpassing beauty. The writer spent a memorable two days' visit here and enjoyed every minute. H. E. M.

TIME TO BUD ORANGE TREES.

I have an orange tree in my greenhouse, here in Ohio. It was raised from seed and is 3 years old. I should like to know the best time to graft it. C. H.

A suitable time to bud orange trees is in the fall, just before growth ceases. I would suggest September as a good month for you. C. W.

MAKING A HOTBED.

When making a hotbed of fresh horse manure, is it advisable to have the manure soaked through with water? T. K. N.

The manure, if dry, should be damped. Dry manure heats but a short time; moist manure retains warmth a long time. The manure should not be made soaking wet, however; merely moisten the dry portions of it. Also be sure to trample firmly when making. Loosely made hotbeds will not retain warmth any length of time. C. W.

PRIMULAS WITH CARNATIONS.

Will you please inform me whether Primula obconica and cyclamens would grow and do well in the same house with Enchantress carnations in winter, or would the bright sun wilt them, in this Alabama climate? H. C.

Primula obconica and cyclamens will do well in the same house with Enchantress carnations. I presume your night temperature will be about 50 degrees. However, between now and October 1 the sun will be rather brilliant for them, especially for the cyclamens. A shading of cheesecloth would be necessary during the brightest part of the day, or you could keep them in coldframes until the date named. C. W.

THE HARDY PERENNIAL GARDEN.

In Late Summer and Fall.

Toward the end of summer the hardy perennial plants become much more interesting and attractive. The intense heat of July, with its accompanying drought, was too much for some usually satisfactory plants, but the August rains have wonderfully revived vegetation, and the cooler nights and heavy dews have put new life into the occupants of the hardy garden. Plants which flower in late summer are, in many cases, coarser and more robust growing than those blooming in June, which is the month par excellence for herbaceous plants, before heat and drought have had a chance to sear them.

Lilies.

Lilies have of late been decidedly attractive. Foremost has been L. Henryi, orange yellow, growing four to eight feet in height. This is sometimes called the yellow speciosum, as the flowers are similar in form to the older variety. However, it possesses far greater vigor than speciosum and seems absolutely disease-proof. The bulbs attain a large size and are unusually heavy. They do best if planted about a foot deep. This variety remains rather high priced. It will in a few years be seen in almost every garden. The various forms of speciosum have lately been in flower. These are useful for cutting; they make fine mass effects in the garden and succeed well in full sunshine. Of course, if they are mulched they will do all the better.

L. tigrinum, the old tiger lily, and its varieties, splendens and flore pleno, are easily grown and popular old sorts. When well grown, few varieties can surpass them. In many cases tigrinum can be seen near roadsides in a wild or semi-wild state, thriving beautifully in apparently poor soil, which goes to show that rich soil, especially that containing anything like fresh manure, is the cause of much of the so-called disease found on hardy lilies. For most locations, and particularly on the borders of streams or marshes, the native variety L. superbum should never be omitted. It carries 7-foot to 8-foot stalks, with twenty or more flowers on each. The bulbs in a wild state are found twelve to eighteen inches deep, which goes to show that nine-tenths of our hardy lilies are planted far too shallow. L. Batmanniae, of a rich apricot color, is a beautiful variety, recently in flower. It grows three to five feet high, and six or more flowers are carried to a stem.

Speaking of lilies for the garden also reminds me of the fact that it is at this season that L. candidum, the annunciation lily, should be planted. Get the bulbs into the ground as soon as possible after arrival. Plant so as to cover the bulbs four inches, and lay some sand above and below them. If they are rolled in sulphur before planting and laid on their sides, they will be cleaner than if planted in the regulation way.

Aconitum or Monkshood.

Aconitums were lately in their full beauty. Some people fail with them through planting in thin, dry soil, which is not at all to their liking. In deep, well manured land, which holds the moisture well, they make remarkable growth, five or six feet high, sometimes even higher. When well grown, there is no more beautiful or striking hardy border plant. There is a wide color range, varying from the deepest blue to white. A. Napellus, with dark blue flowers, is the best known species. There are several sub-varieties of this, of other shades. A. autumnale does particularly well in shade; it, also, is dark blue. The new A. Wilsoni, a Chinese variety, is a vigorous pale blue sort, and a late bloomer. A pretty dwarf variety is A. Fischeri, also pale blue. For those who like bicolored flowers, A. Napellus bicolor, blue and white, is pretty.

Perennial Phloxes.

Hardy borders would miss phloxes more than any other plants from July to September, were they taken away. They certainly provide a long succession of bloom, and with their wide range of colors are invaluable for dotting in beds, massing or growing in nursery rows for cutting. It does not pay to leave phloxes too long without replanting them, as the trusses will be crowded and poor and the plants will suffer more in periods of drought than stock planted in well trenched and manured ground. Phloxes are propagated by seed, cuttings and division of the roots.

About every grower will find quantities of seedlings coming up each year, and some really fine sorts are easily raised in this way. Divided clumps do tolerably well, but the best way to propagate is from soft-wood cuttings in the spring. The cuttings give one large truss the first year, and make fine plants to set out or sell in the fall. These plants will produce wonderfully fine trusses if in good soil, and if in periods of drought some water can be given them.

Probably no two lists of the best twelve phloxes would be alike. The following, however, are all varieties of proven excellence: Le Cygne and F. G. Von Lassburg, splendid whites; Coquelicot, scarlet; Pantheon, carmine rose; Elizabeth Campbell, salmon, changing to pink, a fine shade; Eclairer, rich magenta, shaded with a light halo; R. P. Struthers, rose carmine, crimson eye; Henry Murger, white, rose eye; Beranger, white, suffused pink, red eye; Soleil, fine pink; Esperance, splendid mauve, and Le Mahdi, dark blue. The last named looks well on cloudy days; under clear sunshine it is not effective. The early flowering suffruticosa variety, Miss Lingard, coming in several weeks ahead of the paniculata section, is probably the best of all phloxes and should be included in every hardy flower border. The color is a pure white, with a delicate pink eye. This variety is also splendid for indoor culture. Cuttings rooted last spring, and planted out, can be lifted in October or November, placed in boxes and brought into heat in January for spring flowering.

Rudbeckias or Coneflowers.

Fall gives us an almost too great predominance of yellow flowers in the hardy borders. The various heleniums, helianthus, heliopsis and rudbeckias alone give us a large number of this color. Nearly all are robust growers, and the majority should have locations at the back of the flower borders or mixed among shrubs. Rudbeckia laciniata and its double variety, Golden Glow, are known everywhere. This grows like a weed. It is a beautiful subject for massing, but has been overplanted, and the question with many now is how best to get rid of it, rather than how to increase their stock. R. Newmani, golden yellow with maroon cone, growing two to three feet high, and R. purpurea, rosy purple, of similar height, are neat border plants which do not spread too fast. R. superba sub-tomentosa, pale yellow with purple cones, three feet in height, is another desirable variety.

Campanulas or Bellflowers.

In late August, some of the campanulas were still effective. The dwarf Carpatica was blooming freely. The peach-leaved bellflowers, C. persicifolia, were giving a second crop, and C. glomerata, the clustered bellflower, was still flowering well. The platycodons, which are often included as campanulas, make their finest show in August. Their large blue or white, cup-shaped flowers are produced with great freedom over quite a long period. Good varieties are P. grandiflora and its white form, growing three to three and one-half feet high, and Mariesi and Mariesi alba, later flowering and dwarfer in habit. The platycodons are late in starting to grow in spring, but make rapid headway when once they start.

Helianthus or Sunflower.

The helianthus, or hardy sunflower, is conspicuous in late summer in the perennial garden. H. multiflorus plenus is a useful florists' variety, not hardy in some latitudes and needing cold-frame protection over winter. It is fine for cutting and does not run wild in the borders like some others. The various forms of H. rigidus, such as Miss Mellish and Miss Wilmott, are among the best of the single varieties. There is also a semi-double variety. All these must be kept within bounds, or they will soon smother out everything around them. H. mollis, with silvery leaves and pale yellow single flowers, is a good variety. H. orgyalis, the willow-leaved, hardy sunflower, is among the latest bloomers; so, also, is H. Maximiliani.

Closely allied to the helianthus are the heleniums. Those useful varieties, H. autumnale superbum and autumnale rubrum, the latter with reddish brown flowers, are now in bloom. They are splendid for massing at the backs of borders or for individual clumps. For cutting they are excellent. H. pumilum magnificum has been flowering for over two months and still persists. A first-class variety also is Riverton

ILLINOIS FLORISTS' MEETING.

At a meeting of the executive committee of the Illinois State Florists' Association, held at Minneapolis during the S. A. F. convention, it was decided to hold the next annual convention and flower show of the society at Danville, March 9 and 10, 1914. An invitation will be given to the state association of Indiana to unite with the Illinois society and make this meeting the biggest of its kind, excepting the national convention.

The Armory at Danville will probably be used to display the exhibits, and one of the halls or theaters, perhaps the Coliseum, for the meetings. The business men of the city are already making plans for the entertainment of the florists, and will probably include in them an automobile trip to the experiment station of the University of Illinois, which should prove of great interest to the members of the association.

IOWA FLORISTS MEET.

The Society of Iowa Florists held its eleventh annual meeting at the State House at Des Moines Wednesday evening, August 27. There was an excellent attendance.

Charity by means of flowers was the gospel that President William Trillow preached in his annual address. Mr. Trillow pointed out the fact that florists can brighten many places that are cheerless by voluntarily supplying them with flowers. He suggested that surplus

The following were the papers presented:

"New Roses on Trial, 1913," by M. J. Graham, Adel.
 "Cannas as Bedding Plants," by J. T. D. Fulmer, Des Moines.
 "Floral Designs for Fairs and Other Public Exhibitions," by J. S. Wilson, Des Moines.
 "Cemetery Planting, Best Method," by G. A. Heyne, Dubuque.
 "Concrete in Greenhouse Construction," by F. J. Olsan, Ames.

All the essayists were present in person, except G. A. Heyne, of Dubuque, who sent his paper to the secretary to be read.

The society elected the following officers:

President—M. J. Graham, of Adel.
 Vice-president—J. T. D. Fulmer, of Des Moines.

Secretary-treasurer—Wesley Greene, of Des Moines.

Directors—G. A. Heyne, of Dubuque; W. H. Rickey, of Albia; O. H. Herman, of Council Bluffs, and F. J. Olsan, of Ames.

BARNARD'S YOUNG LADIES.

The young lady office assistants of the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, went out to Lincoln park August 23 to visit the zoo and hear the lion roar. There were strict injunctions that nobody should tag, but evidently these were not heeded, else there would have been no group picture on this page. Left to right:

Front row—Miss Leo Oberg, Miss Heinrich, Miss Anderson.

Second row—Miss Louise Klein, Miss Agnes Wolf, Miss May Pearce, Miss I. Berkenheimer.

OBITUARY

W. H. Sawvel.

The body of W. H. Sawvel, of Kansas City, was found August 29 in a vacant house near his greenhouses, Fifty-eighth street and Bennington avenue, by L. S. Davis, an employee. A wound in his head and a pistol nearby indicated the manner of death. Mr. Sawvel left the greenhouse about midnight to go to his home, 117 Clinton place. He had been apparently in good spirits. Friends said they know of no motive for suicide. He was 58 years old. He was married but had no children.

Mr. Sawvel left a long note, in which he recited that he was being persecuted by a man from Los Angeles, who sought to ruin him in business. Mr. Sawvel occasionally stayed in the vacant house, although it was not furnished. The note he left was dated August 23, showing he must have contemplated suicide several days.

It is believed Mr. Sawvel worried about business matters. The idea that a man was seeking to ruin him was ever present in his mind of late. His wife said she did not know of any such person as the man named in his note, and thought it might have been a hallucination. He explains in his note that he did not owe the man a cent and that his business was in good shape. He was born in Cork county, Iowa, March 25, 1860, and located in Kansas City about thirty years ago. He had been in the greenhouse business for about five years, with about 60,000 feet of glass, principally devoted to carnations and greens. He had acted as manager, but was not a practical grower.

Frank Zettler.

The death of Frank Zettler, foreman in the employ of P. R. Quinlan, Syracuse, N. Y., for twenty-eight years, occurred at his residence, August 28, after a short illness. He was born in Germany in 1852 and was one of the best known florists in central New York. Interment was in Woodlawn cemetery. The funeral was largely attended by Syracuse and out-of-town florists.

Charles Crawford.

Philadelphia daily papers record the death, August 31, of Charles Crawford, formerly a florist at Twelfth and Race streets. He was 76 years of age.

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

New York, N. Y.—Wm. Hagemann & Co. made an assignment for the benefit of creditors August 27 to Theodore M. Crisp. The deed was signed by Annie M. M. Hagemann, president, and Wm. E. Schulze, secretary. The company was incorporated April 30, 1909, with a capital stock of $50,000. A financial statement of December, 1911, showed assets $119,600 and liabilities $47,318. Paul Kase, whose sudden death was recorded in last week's issue of The Review, was president of the concern for several years.

Ottawa, Ill.—Charles Cole is planning the erection of two large greenhouses, 28x240 feet, in which he will grow asparagus next winter.

stock be sent regularly to hospitals, the Home for the Aged, the Home for Friendless Children and like institutions. The sentiment was echoed by others who spoke during the session and by common consent gained almost the force of an expressed resolution.

A report of the recent S. A. F. convention at Minneapolis was given by James S. Wilson, of Des Moines, state vice-president of the national society.

Top row—Miss Flannagan, Miss Herleman.

Miss Pearce is the daughter of Sam Pearce, one of the widely known men of the trade at Chicago, said to be the largest forcer of bulbs in the west. She has been a member of the Barnard office staff for many years.

Arlington, Neb.—Edwin H. Woerner is building a greenhouse, 20x50 feet.

...NEWS NOTES...

Ada, O.—F. H. Hitz has taken over the business of A. B. Cronbaugh.

Buffalo, N. Y.—W. C. Stroh acted as judge at the ninth annual flower show at Perry.

Springfield, Mass.—The Edgewood Gardens are undergoing alterations while the dull season is on.

Grand Ledge, Mich.—D. C. Huggett, who was formerly at Reading, Pa., has started in the greenhouse business here.

Hagerstown, Md.—Henry A. Bester & Sons have added gardenias to their stock, engaging a specialist for the cultivation of the plants.

West Chester, Pa.—Charles Sheller, whose greenhouses were considerably damaged by the recent wind storm, is busy making repairs.

Davenport, Ia.—Theodore Ewoldt, of Ewoldt Bros., was one of the judges in the floricultural department of the Iowa State Fair at Des Moines.

Whitinsville, Mass.—George MacWilliams, gardener for the John C. Whittin estate, is seriously ill in Boston, following a recent operation.

Marshall, Tex.—Joseph Deckert has just completed an up-to-date store and greenhouse, which will be known as the Washington Avenue Greenhouse, and has secured W. C. Hawkins as manager.

Petoskey, Mich.—Sawyer & Methven this season have had a large number of sweet peas with five blooms to the stem, the first in their experience in growing sweet peas in this country and in England.

Shenandoah, Ia.—Elmer O. Stevens and his wife have moved here from Philadelphia, so that he may take charge of the Shenandoah Greenhouses, which before were run by his father, O. B. Stevens.

Evanston, Ill.—John Weiland has been suffering from flower thieves, who have not only taken his flowers but have ruined many plants by trampling on them. At his appeal the police are now on a watch for the marauders.

Lenox, Mass.—George H. Thompson, gardener for Carlos de Heredia, and S. R. Carlquist, gardener for Mrs. Robert Winthrop, were heavy prize-winners at the flower show of the Lenox Horticultural Society, August 20.

Esmond, N. D.—Charles Nye, formerly proprietor of the Alexandria Floral Co., at Alexandria, Ind., is growing wheat in this vicinity now, but expects to reëmbark in the florists' business in Minnesota soon.

Baltimore, Md.—About 200 members and friends of the Florists' Club attended the annual outing of the club at Miller's park, Dundalk, August 20. The day was a most enjoyable one, the games and races adding a great deal to the pleasure of the outing.

Atlanta, Ga.—The store front at 97 Peachtree street is being altered, preparatory to its occupancy by Borg & Erikson, successors to the Atlanta Floral Co., who will move from their present location as soon as the alterations are completed.

The alarm clock went off at four o'clock in the morning.

"I fooled you that toime," said Mike with a grin, "for I wasn't asleep at all."

The florist fools himself who thinks there is any way of selling goods in the trade more effective than advertising in The Review. Also, it's the most inexpensive way in proportion to results.

"We are completely sold out and have had to send money back. The Review is, without doubt, the best advertising medium in the trade."—J. C. RENNISON CO., Sioux City, Ia.

Review readers are not asleep. Note this:

"Please tell us confidentially what you think of ——. Why doesn't he advertise in The Review if he is O. K.?"—MILLER FLORAL CO., Farmington, Utah.

The alarm clock rings in The Review office at 4 o'clock (p.m., not a.m.) every Tuesday. It is to let everybody know advertising forms close for that week's issue in just sixty minutes.

Framingham, Mass.—The City Flower Shop, in Concord square, has been doing a good business in funeral pieces lately.

Adams, Mass.—A. J. Boothman is spending the hot days making extensive repairs and improvements upon his greenhouses.

White Marsh, Md.—The seventh annual dahlia and canna show will be held at the farm of R. Vincent, Jr., & Sons Co., in connection with the harvest home festival and fair of Ebenezer Church, September 30 to October 4.

Duluth, Minn.—J. J. Le Borious spent two days after the convention at Minneapolis closed, visiting the Jewell Nursery Co., at Lake City, Minn. There he looked over the condition of nursery stock for his landscape gardening business this fall.

...NEWS NOTES...

Pekin, Ill.—George A. Kuhl and wife are enjoying their vacation at Asbury Park, N. Y.

Holyoke, Mass.—Gallivan Bros. are adding a third greenhouse, 28x150 feet, at their plant at Smith's Ferry.

Tuscaloosa, Ala.—Mrs. Henry Alston is just opening a store at Magnolia Lodge, 2939 Eighteenth street.

Cedar Rapids, Ia.—The Bancroft Rose Co. has completed the new range of greenhouses and is now installing the heating plant.

Madison, N. J.—Mrs. Ernest Wagner, now on Prospect street, has rented a store on King's road, which she opened September 1.

Waynesboro, Pa.—L. C. Happel, who had a large spring trade in bedding plants, does a good deal of landscape work.

Marion, Ind.—J. E. Leslie & Son, who bought the F. W. Herleman place, are growing a general line of pot plants, early vegetables, etc.

Batavia, N. Y.—James J. Bates, of Akron, N. Y., called on the trade here recently and reported business as quite satisfactory.

Andover, Mass.—J. H. Playdon is chairman of the committee in charge of the fruit, flower and vegetable show to be held here September 5 and 6.

Louisville, Ky.—The E. G. Reimers & Son Co., with a capital stock of $5,000, has filed articles of incorporation. The incorporators are Ida J. Reimers, Milton Reimers and George Stark.

Topeka, Kan.—W. A. Bolinger, formerly of Bethesda, Md., and Washington, D. C., will open an up-to-date retail store under the name of The Rosery at 103 West Eighth street September 27.

Utica, N. Y.—Brant Bros., of this city, and George B. Hart, of Rochester, furnished most of the roses sold by the young ladies of the city for a benefit flower day recently. Incidentally, most of the other florists here were cleaned out of their rose supply as well.

Stoneham, Mass.—A fire in the boiler room of Andrew Christensen's plant, August 27, inflicted a damage of $1,000, including the total loss of some imported plants. There was no insurance. The fire was checked before it reached the greenhouses to any extent.

Springfield, Ill.—W. G. Newell, for seven years manager of the Broad Street Greenhouses, at Galesburg, has taken the position of foreman at the Bell Miller greenhouses here. For the last eighteen months he has been fruit growing at the foot of the Blue Ridge mountains in Virginia.

Madison, N. J.—The eighteenth annual flower show of the Morris County Gardeners' and Florists' Society will be held at Assembly hall, James building, October 28 and 29. The exhibition committee consists of W. H. Duckham, Charles H. Totty, Robert M. Schultz and Arthur Herrington. Copies of the premium list may be had by addressing Edward Reagan, secretary.

Results bring advertising.
The Review brings results.

THERE will not be a big trade flower show in the United States this autumn.

NEXT season, from present indications, will see all the rose growers planting Mrs. Russell. There will be few flowers of it in the market after the propagating season arrives.

NOT a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper.

POSSIBLY it is true that the sale of palms is decreasing as rapidly as the sale of ferns is increasing, but we doubt it. The way the fern business has increased of late years is one of the marvels of the trade.

THE increased quantities of sweet peas that are being started under glass indicate that the crops must have been profitable last season in spite of the lower average prices that were obtained.

THERE were eighty-seven cases of immortelles on the Marseilles boat that reached New York August 29. The crop is said to be the lightest in many years and prices already are as high as were asked in December last year.

IT has been a poor season in many places for carnation plants in the field, and the stock housed has not in all cases been up to the usual standard. Also, the surplus is not so large as usual, and the growers who can offer good plants are finding a quick market.

WHO HAS A GOOD COST SYSTEM?

The writer would like to know if any practical cost system has ever been devised and successfully used, applicable to greenhouse and store work; a system that will keep track of the cost of production and marketing of pot plants, cut flowers, shrubs; in fact, all the general run of stock raised in and around a greenhouse? We grow about 150,000 pot plants during the season, besides the general run of cut flowers. If we could find a practical system, we would be glad to adopt it. We have a retail store in connection with the greenhouses and cater mostly to a local retail and shipping trade. J. W. D.

If any reader will tell The Review about a cost system that will fill the need above described, this paper will be quick to spread the news. If there is one thing more than another the average florist needs to know it is what it is costing to do business.

NEW YORK STATE FEDERATION.

The members of the State Federation of Floral Clubs are urgently requested to attend the annual meeting at Syracuse, at 2 p. m. Tuesday, September 9, which is during the week of the state fair. All florists are urged to be present. Important business will come before this meeting, which will be of great interest to all florists in the state. The election of officers for the ensuing year also will take place. There is to be an extensive exhibition of plants and flowers in Horticultural hall, under the able supervision of Charles H. Vick, of Rochester. All exhibits which are sent to Mr. Vick, express charges prepaid, will be properly staged. Florists of the state, in addition to having a pleasant day or two at the state fair, will assist by their presence at the meeting of the state federation.

John Young, Sec'y.

STOCK, NOT LOCATION, COUNTS.

It does not make any difference where the florist is located if he has the stock the trade wants—an advertisement in The Review will put him the same as at the center of population. This is the way it works:

Please do not insert my advertisement any more, as I am sold out and it seems I have done nothing for the last week but answer telegrams and letters and send back good money, much as it breaks my heart to do so. I am enlarging my place and perhaps I can take care of some of these people next year.—R. E. Moss, Vinita, Okla., August 23, 1913.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

An abundance of roses on this market has been the order of affairs for the last few days and prices have been anything but steady. The supply increased rapidly with the return of hot weather and there are plenty of good roses of almost every description. The greater part of the receipts are of the medium and short lengths, but each day finds shipments of the longer grades increasing. The long-stemmed stock has been cleaning up with less trouble than the short or medium grades and those of the highest shipping qualities are bringing fair returns. It has been the shipping stock that the wholesalers have been short of, as it is necessary for the roses to be cut tight in order to stand transportation during the hot weather.

The last few days of August were fairly good and on the two big shipping days of the week, August 29 and 30, there was a demand from out-of-town trade that provided an outlet for all good stock and gave the dealers a chance to clean their ice-boxes when

We never depend on any ONE grower of BEAUTIES —and we gain two important objects

SOME of the buyers not closely in touch with the situation have wondered how it happens that our Beauty supply is so steady. It's perfectly simple; with several growers supplying us exclusively, they have timed their crops to come in SUCCESSION. And why do we always have the best? First, because all our growers know their business and, second, because of the several whose stock we handle, some ONE is always having exceptional success. Right now our No. — is cutting a specially large crop of 12-inch to 30-inch Beauties, and our No. — is cutting the best long Beauties the Chicago market has seen since last winter.

FANCY ROSES

Try our Milady. We can supply in quantity. Any length up to 36-inch. This is a rose that we think will have a tremendous popularity as soon as the buyers become acquainted with it. The crop is large and the quality distinctly the best of any rose now in the market. We also can supply fine stock of Sunburst, Ward, Bulgarie, Killarney and White Killarney. Our roses are business-builders; try them.

FANCY ASTERS

In many places the aster crop has been practically a failure this year, but the growers of the stock we now are offering have seldom had better success. (They have field irrigation.) We can furnish fancy asters in all colors. Prices are not high, considering the superior quality of the stock; indeed, equally good asters bring these prices even in a season of good supply.

WHITE DAISIES

We still have a large supply of big white daisies. You can book orders with confidence that you can get all the daisies you need by wiring Amling.

FANCY VALLEY

You can depend upon us at all times for valley. If you run short, a wire to Amling will bring the valley you need.

FANCY GLADIOLI

Our stock is made up largely of the three varieties the trade wants in quantity: America, pink, the best seller of them all; Mrs. King, the best red, and Augusta, the best white. The prices are low for such fine stock. Order enough.

EASTER LILIES

We can supply fine Easter Lilies in large quantity every day in the year. A specially good crop now on.

Mention The Review when you write.

the city trade started buying. The Sunday before Labor day was only fair and Labor day itself means nothing to the trade. With large quantities of stock forced in by the hottest September 1 in the history of the weather bureau, there was an oversupply on hand September 2.

Beauties continue in oversupply and the prices obtained are in contrast with the usual market quotations. As far as quality is concerned, they are better than one would expect during the hot weather. Killarneys also show good color. Larger quantities have seldom been found on the market at this time of the year, and they bring only fair prices considering the good color and the condition of the stock in general. White Killarneys are in demand and as yet there are none too many to satisfy the call. They bring a better price than the pink and are more easily moved than any other rose on the market. Maryland, Mrs. Taft and Richmond are in good supply, but Sunburst and Mrs. Aaron Ward are not so numerous. Mrs. Russell sells at sight and Milady is making many friends.

Carnations show a steady improvement. While they are not in general demand as yet, the stems are approaching the medium lengths. Asters continue a glut on the market. While quantities are disposed of, there are many that go to waste. Fancy asters, however, are not any too plentiful and they sell at good prices. Gladioli are likewise in big supply, but the peak of the season has been passed. Valley has experienced no unusual demand for some time and just enough is being cut to fill the needs. Lilies are less plentiful than they have been. Cattleyas are scarce.

There is a good market for smilax in Chicago. Few local growers are giving much space to this once common crop and some of the wholesale houses that handle cut flowers in largest quantity have scarcely any smilax. Asparagus strings are easier found. There is plenty of Sprengeri and plumosus bunches are abundant, the latter mostly from Florida.

The Summer Business.

The arrival of September and the reopening of the public schools usually is regarded as marking the end of the summer season, even though the weather continues warm. The general report is that the summer of 1913 has been unlike any other in the history of the Chicago market: to some it has brought a return to the old-time summers, when there was practically no stock and consequently no business, while others have found July and especially August not far behind some of the so-called busy months. The high heat of June appears to be responsible. It put a lot of people temporarily out of business by suddenly finishing off the indoor stock and damaging the field crops. On the other hand, some people had prepared to get special summer cuts in spite of heat and drouth, and these have profited by the misfortunes of their friends. The situation is serious for those who have not been able to supply their customers during the last two months, as the trade will not be easy to win back.

Club Picnic.

Between 150 and 200 florists and their friends attended the annual picnic of the Chicago Florists' Club, held August 31 at Ehrhardt's grove, at Park Ridge, where many kinds of entertainment were provided by the committee in charge. Basket lunches were spread under the trees, after which everyone enjoyed the races, either as a contestant or spectator. A baseball game followed, in which the nine classified as Retailers defeated a nine composed mostly of Wholesalers. The score proved to be overwhelmingly in favor of the Retailers, the official announcement being 12 to 4. The game had its

If your customers will appreciate a good rose they haven't had before, show them Radiance. We also are strong now on Killarney, White Killarney, Sunburst, Richmond and Ward.

CARNATIONS

We are beginning to get a nice lot of Carnations daily. Of course the stems are short as yet, but the flowers are clean.

VALLEY

You can get Valley of us every day in the year. Good stock always. Let us handle your rush orders.

FANCY ASTERS IN ALL COLORS

These are the finest Asters of the season—much better than anything heretofore seen on this market. We can supply all colors in quantity, and all lengths of stem, but the fancy stock is what we want specially to call your attention to this week.

America Gladioli

We still handle Gladioli by the thousands—can furnish any quantity wanted of any one color. Specially strong on America, light pink, the best seller of all. Plenty red and white, also mixed. No order too large for us to handle.

exciting moments and no less than five home runs were uncorked by the Retail crowd. During the afternoon and evening there was music and dancing. The return trip to Chicago was made about 8 p. m. A large number of motors, well filled, made the trip in addition to those who took the special train. The winners of first and second places in the races were as follows:

Girls' race, 6 years and under—Hattie Potocka, first; Hazel Harris, second.
Boys' race, 6 years and under—D. Serfine, first; Robert Ehrhardt, second.
Girls' race, 10 years and under—Hazel Harris, first; Hattie Potocka, second.
Boys' race, 10 years and under—B. Quinlan, first; Robert Ehrhardt, second.
Girls' race, 15 years and under—Hazel Harris, first; Elizabeth Potocka, second.
Boys' race, 15 years and under—Roland Poehlmann, first; Charles Earl, second.
Single ladies' race—Miss Fredia Poehlmann, first; F. Figliola, second.
Married ladies' race—Mrs. Y. E. Wietor, first; Mrs. Robert Harris, second.
Fat men's race—Frank Potocka, first; Gus Canger, second.
Free for all, 150 yards—Luke Schrerer, first; George Anderson, second.

Lemon eating contest—S. I. Brady, first; Walter Poehlmann, second.
Pie eating contest—W. Amling, first; Walter Poehlmann, second.

T. E. Waters was chairman of the committee in charge, while E. F. Winterson, Jr., was responsible for the contests and prizes.

The club will hold its monthly meeting at 8 p. m., September 4, at the Hotel La Salle. The special business will be the election of a secretary to succeed Ed. C. Toepel, whose resignation will be presented, as he leaves September 15 to make his home in the state of Washington.

Various Notes.

J. W. Furrow, of Furrow & Co., Guthrie, Okla., left for home September 2, after having spent two months here as a peach broker. He wedges this in as a side issue for two months during the dull season each year and says it serves as a vacation as well. Last year, he added, was the best his firm has experienced in the flower business and he expects to enlarge to some extent this season.

Mrs. Ida M. Latshaw, manager of the Meredith Flower & Vegetable Co., Libertyville, Ill., was in the city September 2 and made arrangements for a supply of cut flowers to take care of customers during the annual Lake County fair, which is held at Libertyville. Owing to the big horse show in connection, this is one of the social affairs of the summer. Many socially prominent Chicagoans have summer homes there. C. W. Stout has tendered his resignation as secretary of the company and will retire October 1.

Wietor Bros., as usual, were the principal exhibitors of cut flowers at the Luxemburger Schobermesse, held annually on High Ridge on Labor day and the preceding Sunday. There was an enormous crowd. The Wietor exhibits were roses exclusively. In addition there were one or two entries of carnations and gladioli.

A new ice-box has been put into use at the Bassett & Washburn store, to handle the shipping stock. The extra cut from the new houses has made it necessary to increase the store facilities.

Among the out-of-town visitors who were on the market last week was John T. Buckbee, of Rockford. He was here on business connected with the firm's seed catalogue. He reports a big planting of mums this year and says they will be cutting heavily by the end of the month. The stock will be consigned to A. L. Vaughan & Co.

John Kruchten was in Milwaukee August 31 and Labor day. The trip was made via automobile and was greatly enjoyed, as it was his first extended trip since his machine was delivered this spring.

Mrs. W. E. Horton, of Bassett & Washburn's office force, started on a vacation trip up the lakes this week on the new S. S. North American.

F. C. Wright, of the Poehlmann city store staff, is sporting a handsome watch and fob as the result of a birthday anniversary last week.

Eric Johnson, of the Randall cut flower department, spent Labor day, and the two days preceding, automobiling with a friend.

A. Miller and Guy Reburn are back from the Minneapolis convention and are helping out at the A. Henderson & Co. headquarters, where things have been busy since the arrival of the fall bulbs.

E. J. Fancourt, of the Pennock-Meehan Co., Philadelphia, was in town over the holiday.

Adam Heim, the Connersville carnation support and rose stake man, is calling on growers in this vicinity.

William Kidwell and his son are back from Eagle Lake, Mich., where they spent five weeks resorting. Mr. Kidwell owns a large resort hotel there and says it has been one of the best seasons since the hotel was opened.

The official weather record shows August was not a bad month for the growers. The mean temperature was less than 3 degrees above normal and there was 4.06 inches of rain, the normal being 2.88 inches. The sun shone on an average of nine hours and twelve minutes each day, being sixty-seven per cent of the possible duration of sunshine. Usually in August the sun is unobscured sixty-nine per cent of the time.

F. F. Benthey, who has charge of the roses at Kyle & Foerster's, is again on the job after a vacation spent at New Castle, Ind., where he and his son conduct a large range of rose houses.

Harry Papworth, of New Orleans, was confined to his room at the Sherman House, with a slight illness last week while en route home from the S. A. F. convention.

William Homberg, with J. A. Budlong, is back from his vacation.

Charles J. Wachendorff, of Wachendorff Bros., Atlanta, Ga., was a caller at The Review office last week while in town on a vacation trip.

James Novak, formerly foreman for Wietor Bros., who last spring took hold of the Fred Weber place on shares, has his Beauties in fine shape. He grows nothing else.

Application has been made to the secretary of state for authority to form the Kenilworth Nursery Co., with office at Chicago, capital $7,000. The incorporators are Louis Wittbold, Carl Schneider and William A. Wilson.

Joseph A. Mendel, west side retail florist and prominent politician, will be a candidate for sheriff at the approaching election. He was given the endorsement of the democratic organization in the fifth congressional district at a dinner August 30. Mr. Mendel recently completed a term as county commissioner.

John Michelsen spent the week end with his family at McHenry, Ill., and left September 2 for his trip through the violet district along the Hudson. He goes over the same route the first week of September each year.

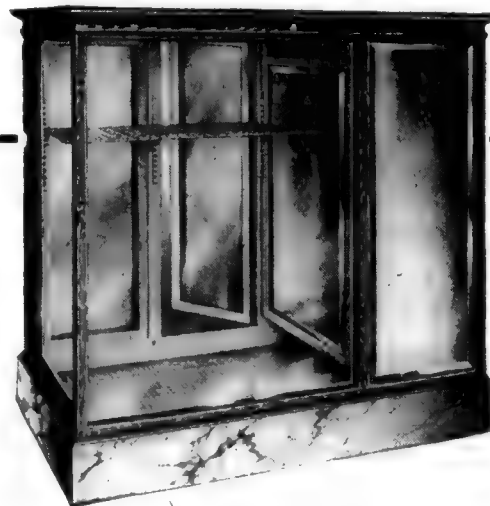

Tim Matchen says Peter Reinberg has for some time been cutting $8 per day off 1,000 plants of Mrs. Russell rose.

The last of the returning conventionites, C. W. McKellar and wife and George Asmus and wife, reached home via automobile August 31. Messrs. McKellar and Asmus were in their stores September 2.

One of last week's visitors was Prosper Henry, formerly at Lincoln park, now the only private gardener at Memphis, Tenn., where he has charge of the P. P. Van Fleet estate.

Kyle & Foerster postponed their housecleaning till the last week in August and have the store in its best shape for the opening of the autumn season.

Last week showed an increase of business over the previous week, partly for the reason that vacation time is at an end and the schools are about to be opened. The market is still in a crowded condition, but good stock of all kinds is scarce and brings a good price. Asters are greatly improved and sell well. There is an increase in the call for decorations. The amount of funeral work remains about the same.

HIGH DAHLIAS GRADE

Every Retailer that handled our Dahlias last year we know will be a customer for them this season. Our growers have increased their acreage, the plants have never looked more promising, and we anticipate an enormous cut. We emphasize—HIGH GRADE.

Quality in Dahlias with us is the all-important feature. You can handle Dahlias to advantage and if you will buy ours you can handle them at a good profit.

Nothing is so convincing as the goods themselves. We know that we have a superior article and we do not hesitate to talk about it. Any statement we make is backed up by facts and the goods themselves.

Last year during the Dahlia season our sales averaged

The W. L. Rock Flower Co. had a good run on out-of-town funeral work last week. The firm is cutting some extra good roses for this time of year.

Nelson Jarrett has built a five-room bungalow for his son, Richard, on his property at Fifty-sixth street and Troost avenue.

Henry Kusik & Co. are receiving some extra fine Beauties and their asters are greatly improved. The supply department has been exceedingly busy for the last few weeks.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Eastern Market.

Summer is over. Fall has come, with a steadily increasing supply of flowers. Asters, dahlias and roses are abundant and of good quality. The demand is fitful; at times it is brisk, but generally it is dull. The late asters are as fine now as could be wished. They combine excellent quality with good range of color. Dahlias are coming in freely from all the growers. There is much high grade stock for so early in the season. Roses are in better shape than for ten weeks. The local Beauties once more rival the eastern. Mrs. Taft, Radiance and Maryland, mostly from new crop, are good. At times white roses are scarce. Richmond sells poorly. Gladioli are more plentiful than they were a month ago. Some of them are fine. There is a good supply of Easter lilies, plenty of valley and a few nice pink and white carnations, new crop. The first yellow and white chrysanthemums have come. Outdoor summer flowers are less plentiful than they were.

Shipping orders are at times quite heavy. A certain quantity of good stock brings satisfactory prices. Much stock is sold cheaply and much stock, usually of the poorest grade, remains unsold.

A Ninety-day Season.

September is the month when the cut flower season begins, the time when plans for bringing crops into bloom are made. The social season, the time of greatest activity in the market, begins with Thanksgiving and ends with Lent. The coming season will be of good length, commencing November 27 and ending February 25, 1914, ninety days. Thanksgiving day, Christmas day and New Year's day will all fall on Thursday. St. Valentine's day, February 14, falls on Saturday. Easter Sunday comes April 12, the greatest floral day of the whole season. Mothers' day comes May 10. Decoration day, May 30, comes on Saturday.

The attendance was light at the meeting of the Florists' Club September 2. After routine business Adolph Farenwald gave an interesting account of the Minneapolis convention. Nominations for officers for next year were made, as follows: For president, J. Otto Thilow and Adolph Farenwald; for vice-president, George Burton; for secretary, David Rust; for treasurer, George Craig.

Niessen Branching Out.

The Leo Niessen Co. will open a branch wholesale cut flower store at 5 to 7 West Center street, Baltimore, in about two weeks. W. E. McKissick will be the manager.

The Heacock Palms.

No one who has not visited Wyncote can realize the growth of palm cultivation there. Since the removal of all the roses to the new place at Roelofs, palms have covered the greater part of the place. There are more palms there today than there have ever been before, and they are good. House after house that was once filled with Beauties and later with Killarneys, is now filled with kentias, every size from seedling to tub specimens, some single, some made up, all growing luxuriantly in great numbers. Theodore Shober said just before leaving for Minneapolis that the reason Mr. Heacock was willing to send his plants to the convention was because the business had grown to such an extent that it was necessary. A stroll through the houses at Wyncote made this clear. The plants were evidently being grown for a market, and a critical one at that. They were finishing nicely. The cooler nights following warm days suit the kentia best of all for growing, and the kentias at Wyncote were jumping, as the growers say.

Various Notes.

The number of guests on the inspection trip of the Henry F. Michell Co., to Andalusia, August 27, was 825, including a number of out-of-town visitors.

J. Stephenson's Son is drilling an artesian well on his new place at Oak Lane, Pa.

Recent visitors: J. Fleischman, New York city; Harvey Sheaff, with Mrs. E. A. Williams, Pittsburgh; W. Marche, Washington, D. C.; George A. Kuhl, Pekin, Ill.; Leo. Engle, with the Sheppard Co., Providence, R. I.; August Tischinger, Baltimore, Md.; P. T. Langhans, of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., who motored to Atlantic City, and W. O. Sewall, Carlisle, Pa.

Stewart H. Miller has returned from New Egypt, N. J. A select fishing party consisting of Emil H. Geschick, Mrs. Geschick, Charles F. Krueger, Paul R. Klingsporn and Al—you all know the rest—had a glorious time and extraordinary luck, the other kind.

Samuel F. Lilley has returned from Wildwood, N. J.

The M. Rice Co. has signed S. U. P. Plement to assist Willing Helper, one of their successful salesmen.

Duncan Macaw gives a most interesting account of his visit to Minneapolis. The wonderful growth of the city, the fine character of the improvements, the outdoor display, were all described with great appreciation.

Harry Bayersdorfer has been staying at Atlantic City since his return from abroad. He finds the distance from the city too great for a man who works as hard as he does. He is up with the birds, but often cannot get away in time for the evening train and has to take the electric car.

Berger Bros. continue receiving fine lilies.

Antoine Wintzer secured deserved recognition for his magnificent canna creations from the judges at Minneapolis.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

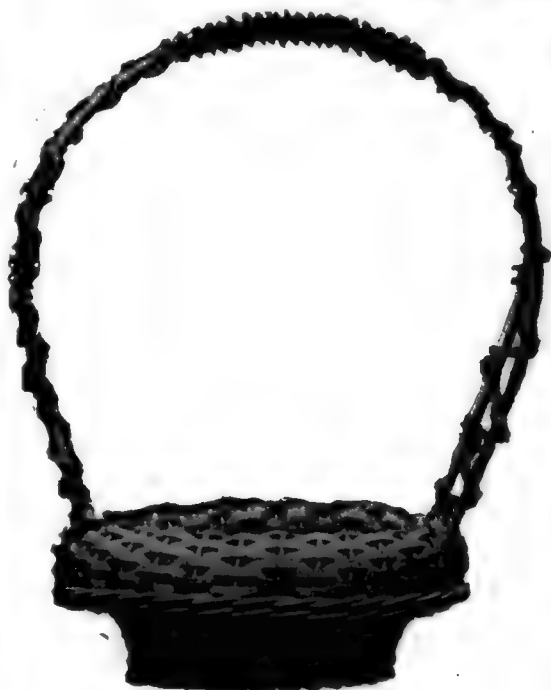

The last week of August was no improvement over its predecessors, and Saturday completed a trio of bad months, the like of which have never been known before in the history of the wholesale cut flower market in New York. A fairly good Saturday, however, was an augury for better times in the near future, and after Labor day the improvement should be general and continuous.

The mum season has already begun. There are some fine dahlias arriving, and greatly improved asters are a feature of the present shipments. There are plenty of roses of every kind, the majority of them short-stemmed, as is usual in early September. It would be unfair to quote the price at which these are cleared, but the best American Beauties, Shawyer, Killarney, Hillingdon and Sunburst find a ready and profitable market.

There is nothing new to say before another week, at any rate, concerning the new carnations. The few arriving sell from $1 down. Orchids are still limited in quantity, and prices are steady at listed rates. Some of the best cattleyas last week touched 75 cents. Oncidiums are here and as popular as ever. Prices are fairly steady on lilies and valley at last week's quotations. For the poorer grades of gladioli and asters there is no demand. The windows are brilliant with tritomas, cosmos and paniculata. Retailers seem hopeful and enterprising. All the stores are newly decorated and the general tone as to the coming season is optimistic.

NOVELTIES THAT ARE NOVELTIES

We have shown you some of our novelties; we have told you about others. Still others we will tell you about, but what we most want is to have you come and see them—seeing is believing. Come right here, see the immense truck loads of cases coming from the steamers, see the shelves on shelves and story after story filled with Florists' Supplies, see the ingeniously contrived novelties and all the best of the staples, and see the dispatch with which the orders are going out, their size and their numbers. Will you come?

At Newport the society people have been continuous in their decorative floral engagements, and the New York branches have had no cause to complain.

Various Notes.

Monday, September 8, the New York Florists' Club opens the season at its rooms in the Grand Opera House, on West Twenty-third street. President Siebrecht requests a large attendance, and there will be many interesting addresses by those who attended the convention.

Secretary Young is home again and already enthusiastic about the coming spring flower show in New York. He had a delightful stay in Minneapolis and evidently cannot say too much in acknowledgment of the fine support and continuous courtesy of the florists of the Twin Cities.

Dreyer Bros., of Elmhurst, have now added to their fine plant the ten large greenhouses and four and one-half acres of the Hinode Floral Co., of Whitestone, L. I. At Elmhurst the firm has sixteen houses, devoted to dwarf Bostons and Scottii ferns, 50,000 table ferns, kentias, araucarias, cyclamens, ficus, mums, and 1,000 pot roses. After the present season the Hinode property will be used entirely for plants. Among the stock purchased with the place are many fine dwarf Bostons, hardy roses and poinsettias. These young men are energetic, experienced and popular in the trade, and their success is assured.

The large greenhouse plant of Anton Schultheis, at College Point, is well worth a visit now. An interesting feature is the Skinner system of watering, which he has installed in all his greenhouses. He is greatly pleased with it. It is economical and helpful in every way. There is no end to the plants in this establishment. Ivory mums in pots are nearly ready for distribution. Whitmani and Boston ferns, and also Pierioni and Scottii, are in good supply. Roses in pots are being grown in increased quantity. There are five houses of cyclamens, 10,000 poinsettias, ardisias and several houses of orchids. Everything is in good condition and will be ready for the fall business.

Sydney B. Wertheimer has returned from a western trip which included the convention and is highly pleased with general conditions in the trade in that section.

The New York Florists' Supply Co., organized to do a general business in florists' supplies, has been licensed to incorporate with $50,000 capital stock.

According to the will of Charles Krombach, whose death was reported in last week's issue of The Review, the entire estate is left to his widow, Mrs. Elizabeth Krombach, with the request that she make proper provision for the three children. The value of the estate is not given, but is probably large, as his business was one of the best in Brooklyn.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

Everything comes to those who wait. The long spell of dry weather has been much relieved by good, soaking rains, and the outdoor stock is improving daily. The weather has turned cooler, but trade is still quiet. Flowers in general are in fairly good supply, but the quality is extremely poor. Good asters bring 2 to 3 cents and a few extra good ones bring 4 cents. There are a lot of small ones on the market, which can only be used for design work. There is an abundant supply of auratum lilies, but they do not move fast. Easter lilies are plentiful. Valley is somewhat scarce. Gladioli are still seen everywhere in large quantities, but are moving none too readily. Carnations are scarce these days and their quality is poor.

There is a large supply of short-stemmed roses to be had, coming chiefly from the local growers, and many

Some good Double White Killarneys find their way here and sell well. Killarney is now showing much better color. Sunburst, Mrs. Aaron Ward, Melody, Milady and a few My Maryland complete our stock of roses. Some good hydrangeas with good color are arriving. Dahlias are scarce. The supply of ferns is limited; other greens are plentiful. Orders are already being placed for palms, ferns and other foliage for the fall openings and promise to be quite large this season.

The Market.

Market conditions are somewhat improved. Easter lilies, valley and good roses are scarce and have had a good call. Some fine asters are to be had, but they are in limited quantities. With the cooler weather of the last week, business has picked up a trifle.

houses of O. C. Barber, millionaire match manufacturer, near Barberton. In the "match king's" conservatories are said to grow flowers unsurpassed and rare fruits not found elsewhere in this territory. The Cleveland Plant & Flower Co., incorporated at Columbus as a $10,000 concern, in a few weeks will open a florists' supply house and fruit shop at High avenue and East Second street. The concern will handle the entire output of the Barber greenhouses, as well as flowers of other consignors. The company was organized by members of the Jones-Russell Co. and the James Eadie Co., which a few weeks ago was taken over by Frank Schoen and Frank Friedley. H. B. Jones, A. B. Barber, C. H. Billman, H. C. Byce and E. E. Dreher are the incorporators of the new company, and A. B. Barber will be general manager.

"Though members of our firm are interested in the new company," said H. B. Jones, of the Jones-Russell Co., yesterday, "the two establishments will be entirely separate. We will buy wherever we can do so most advantageously. Other retail florists will have the same opportunity to buy Barber flowers and fruits as we."

"We have several acres under glass, and much more land for growing outside plants," said Schoen yesterday afternoon. "We shall grow much more than we will be able to sell at retail, and our surplus will go to the new company."

The new wholesale supply house raises the number of such concerns in Cleveland to six.

BOSTON.

The Market.

Business has been unusually dull during the last week. Cut flower supplies have been large for the season and demand extremely light. As a consequence, prices have softened once more, and a good many flowers find their way to the rubbish barrels. Roses are mostly short-stemmed and much too abundant. Many have to go as low as 50 cents per hundred. Popular varieties are Killarney, Double White Killarney and Ward. Of American Beauty there is now a nice summer supply, the best realizing $3 per dozen. Carnations are practically out of the market. Only a small number of short-stemmed flowers of the new crop are seen. This is just as well, as with an overwhelming supply of fine asters they are not wanted.

Asters are of grand quality, with first-class stems. Recent copious local rains have wonderfully benefited the last crop, which is just beginning to appear. Prices on these hold up fairly well. Sweet peas are scarce, and good flowers realize 50 cents per hundred. Gladioli continue overplentiful. America has, in large measure, lost its popularity, as it is a poor keeper and easily bruised. Mrs. F. King and Augusta each sell quite well. Lily of the valley, which has been a little scarce, is now in good supply. There is an abundance of fine longiflorum and speciosum lilies.

Gardenias of the new crop are arriving in limited numbers. Of cattleyas, there are a few labiata, Gaskelliana and Harrisonæ. Oncidium varicosum Rogersii is now fairly abundant. In the way of miscellaneous flowers, some good dahlias are coming in, and the usual assortment of annuals and perennials. Demand for green stock continues slow.

Various Notes.

The annual auction sale of stalls at the Boston Coöperative Flower Market was held August 30, when there was a large attendance of growers and salesmen. Bidding was animated. William H. Elliott secured first choice at a premium of $115, Norris F. Comley securing the following ones. Over 100 stalls were disposed of, the gross premiums being the largest this market ever has had. William W. Tailby proved to be an efficient auctioneer. Business on Park street has been particularly good of late, and the last year has been the most prosperous the market has had. New growers are constantly joining and the outlook is for another successful year.

The annual exhibition of children's garden products was held at Horticultural hall August 30 and 31, and completely filled the main hall, being the largest the society has yet held. The arrangement and quality of exhibits

ST. LOUIS.

The Southwestern Market.

The last week in August was an exceedingly dull one, with hot weather and no prospect of rain, which is needed badly. The market conditions remain unchanged and decidedly cooler weather is needed to change these conditions. The retailers say that last week was dull, with little business to depend on except funeral work, but all are looking forward to a busy fall and winter season. The quality of stock shows little improvement, but there is a big demand for first-class flowers, which are cleaned up daily. The bulk of the consignments, however, is of inferior quality and a great deal of stock is being dumped. As to roses, the market is well supplied with all varieties. Beauties and Coquets are among the best. Killarneys and Richmonds are still short-stemmed. Carnations run about the same as roses in quality, stem and price. Asters, when fancy, sell readily at a good price, but too many poor ones are being sent in. Tuberose stalks are still plentiful and cheap. Extra good Easter lilies and valley meet with a good demand. The market has a good supply of fancy ferns and asparagus.

Various Notes.

members of the working force of C. Young & Sons Co., have announced that they will be married in the early part of September.

The Windler Wholesale Floral Co. has a new Dorris delivery car of the newest pattern. Frank Windler, head of the firm, got back from the convention trip August 28.

The new range of glass which has been completed at John T. Milliken's place at Crescent, Mo., will be equipped with the Siebenmann vacuum heating system. John Himmer, the foreman, says all the houses have been planted. Roses, chrysanthemums, violets and lilies will be grown for the market this season.

David Geddes is putting in some busy days at the Vandevort department store, for the opening of the flower department. It will be ready for opening by September 15.

Announcement has been made by the Coliseum management that the proposed fall flower show is off for this year. The withdrawal of the support of the committee of twenty-five of the St. Louis Florists' Club caused this action.

Grimm & Gorly now have the second floor over their store in operation. The floor is used for their shipping and making-up departments. Frank Gorly has returned from the convention and is ready for the busy season to open.

The C. Young & Sons Co. has about completed the improvements at the west end branch, on Waterman avenue. A new Brecht refrigerator will be installed shortly. W. C. Young, head of the branch, has returned from the convention, much refreshed by the cool northern breezes.

Philip Goebel, in charge of Compton Hill park, has a fine pond of water lilies of various colors in bloom, and they attract considerable attention.

Souvenir postals have been received from George Waldbart, at Hamburg and Berlin, telling of all the good things he sees in connection with the florists' trade. He expects to be home by the latter part of September.

Mr. and Mrs. Kuehn, Mr. and Mrs. Weber, Frank and Joe Windler and Miss Meinhardt got back from the convention August 28, on the steamer Quincy. They speak highly of the good time provided for them by the Minneapolis florists.

Prof. H. C. Irish, for many years superintendent of the Missouri Botanic Garden, and member of the firm of Muskoff & Irish, landscape architects, left September 3 for Ames, Ia., where he will teach a class in landscape gardening at the Iowa Agricultural College. He will return in six months.

Paddy Patton, assisted by Joe Gumz, A. Rolls and Ed. Schneider, have finished the interior decorations at Smith's wholesale house. The job has the O. K. of Boss Ossick.

The publicity committee, of which R. J. Windler is chairman, will call a meeting soon to start on the work for the fall and winter season. C. Beyer and C. Bergstermann are other members of this committee.

The meeting of the Florists' Club will take place on Thursday, September 11, at 2 o'clock. Installation of the new officers will take place and Mr. Jaenicke will read a paper on

The Market.

The last week showed little increase in the retail end of the business. Asters are not arriving in so large quantities as they were, as many of the early aster growers are cut out. There are a few extremely fine asters of the later varieties shown on this market. Chrysanthemums, both white and yellow, have made their appearance, and are in good condition.

Various Notes.

Miss Edith Dittenbaugh, of the Keystone Nurseries, is back from her vacation. Her trip through Rochester, Buffalo and Niagara Falls was much enjoyed.

L. S. Landis says his asters are done for this season, but he is still strong on smilax.

Rudolf Nagel is cutting some of the best mums seen in this section, of Golden Glow and Smith's Advance.

E. P. Hostetter, of Manheim, Pa., has most of his carnations planted in. He is still shipping a few asters, yellow daisies and Sprenger to the commission market.

scheme. A number of large wooden signs have been put up on all the main roads leading to this city. This kind of advertisement surely should pay for itself.

B. F. Barr and family have returned from an automobile trip to Asbury Park and other points of interest along the Atlantic coast.

S. A. Dunlap, of Pennock Bros., Philadelphia, and his wife made a successful automobile trip to this city and back. This was the first long drive Mr. Dunlap had taken in his new car.

Charles Schaefer, of York, Pa., and a party of friends made an automobile trip to this city, to see the wonderful development of B. F. Barr's Avondale farm, on Marietta pike. There they found ninety-seven acres, of which one half is at the present time devoted to nursery stock. This is in fine condition, and without a doubt he has a remarkably large and fine collection of stock. Mr. Barr receives many compliments on the Italian garden, which is one of the main attractions of the farm. There is a miniature boxwood hedge around the various shaped walks and every variety of old-fashioned flowers planted in the beds.

The florists from this county were well represented on the excursion to the flower farm of the Henry F. Michell Co., at Andalusia, Pa., August 27.

The Market.

Trade has been rather quiet for the last week or so, with a fair supply of stock. Roses are of good quality and the supply is about equal to the demand. A considerable number are being cut from new stock and some extra good flowers are from stock held over, dried off and then started up again. The demand for Beauties has been light and the supply also is small here, as they are considered an uncertain article to handle during the hot weather.

Carnations are beginning to come in, and while the stems are rather short, the blooms are good. Large shipments come in daily and find a ready sale, in spite of the shortness of the stems. The carnation plants are looking fine in most cases and promise to produce an abundant crop from now on. Asters are a little more plentiful and the demand for them is heavy, though the quality has been far from good. Lilies have been about equal to the demand and are always good stock. The sale on plants has been slow and there is not much in the way of blooming stock to be had. In fact, about everything we have in the way of plants is ferns and palms.

Various Notes.

Vacations are about over; everyone is getting back on the job and we are

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

The Market.

Everything is running nicely in this vicinity, except business, which is moving slowly. The first two weeks of August were fair, but the latter weeks were about as quiet as one could well imagine. Our main staple at this time of the year is asters, and these have been greatly reduced in price since my last letter. The buyers in many cases make any terms they choose and the growers have been so hard pressed to dispose of their stock that they will take almost anything offered. Mums are coming in, but do not move well. With the influx of the outside stock in a week or so, however, we may expect to see the public take a firmer hold of them. But little will be done until the heavy cutting of asters is over. Carnations are plentiful and good, with prices possibly a shade lower than they were two weeks ago. Roses, except fancy stock, also are hard to move and for seconds and short-stemmed stock it is hardly worth while giving quotations.

Violets of the Princess variety are fairly plentiful, but as the weather is much against them we need look for no good supply until the rains begin. Sweet peas are showing the effect of the cool nights and another few weeks will see their finish. Amaryllis are plentiful and the same can be said of the different varieties of Japanese lilies. Valley is only in fair supply and orchids are scarce. Other lines of stock do not show any difference from the conditions of last week. Everyone is hoping for an early resumption of business.

Various Notes.

Frank Bradford, of the Mayflower Flower Shop, has recovered from his recent illness and is on duty again.

The R. Hackel Floral Co. has retired from the retail flower trade. Rudolph Hackel will take a vacation for a few weeks in the northern part of the state.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

With the passing of the summer, business is showing a slight improvement. The majority of stock is being used for funeral work, yet there is considerable call for flowers from the social world. Stock is not overplentiful; indeed, there seems to be a general shortage. Asters are the mainstay, but are far short of the production of former years and the limited quantity of choice stock is readily taken up. Gladioli are deteriorating in quantity and quality. America and Francis King are the predominating varieties. Rubrums and auratums have shortened up, with an active demand. Roses have been increasing, but so far are inferior in quality. Mrs. Shawyer and Milady have created considerable comment, but the stock is rather young to determine the qualities they possess. Mums are becoming more plentiful, Golden Glow predominating. There are a few whites coming out, but quality is lacking.

The demand for ferns and palms has increased, as people are returning to their homes from the resorts. Several prominent weddings are booked for early in September, an evidence that the social season will open early.

Various Notes.

The Mountain View Floral Co. has been cutting a nice lot of outdoor roses, which were readily disposed of in the local market.

R. M. Bodley finds recreation in scaling the icy peaks of Mount St. Helen's and reports having a pleasant outing.

C. Tonseth spent several weeks with his family on a camping expedition. George Spencer is quite a baseball fan. In his solitude he has studied the dope successfully. He reiterated to a friend that the boys were indirectly furnishing a cozy flat for him. Further statements were not forthcoming.

E. R. C.

DAYTON, WASH.

Business has been dull here for the last few weeks. Funeral work has been the stand-by, an occasional big funeral making things lively. With September, however, trade should begin to pick up again.

Miss M. S. Herndon, of Walter Harrison's force, is on her two weeks' vacation, visiting friends in Portland, Ore.

Walter Harrison is doing a good business. He expects to visit his out-of-town customers this month and increase his trade with them the coming season.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

There has been an even larger demand for the best kind of stock of late, and in many cases there is not enough of it to go around. There have been practically no Beauties locally and none have been obtainable from the north, so other and cheaper flowers have had to be substituted. Commoner stock in plenty has been on hand. Valley is scarce when anything beyond the normal occurs, such as the recent rush of funeral work. Orchids have been on the scarce side and the artificial orchid maker has been getting in a whack or two. Maidenhair ferns are more plentiful and are of good quality.

Nothing can exceed in beauty the crape myrtles growing around the city. They are now at their best, with colors ranging from the deepest crimson through pinks and reds to white. Flowering, as they do, after the majority of the flowering shrubs are past, they are the more acceptable.

The Armacost Range, at Sawtelle.

Work on the new houses for Walter Armacost & Co., at Sawtelle, is practically finished and much of the space is planted. I had a hasty look through the place in company with Mr. Armacost the other day and saw enough to be able to foretell a good display of fall and winter plants. Mr. Armacost is fortunate in having the demand from his own retail stores, which always take care of quite a lot of stock, but this year, with the increased space under glass, his firm will be in a position to furnish large lots of plants, as well as the cut flowers and greens for which his place has long been famous.

In looking through, one is considerably impressed by the fact that the home-propagated stock is better by far than that shipped in from the east and middle west, and it is only a question of time when everything needed will be worked up on the place. The cyclamens are fine, with large, well developed foliage clinging tightly to the pots. Begonia Gloire de Lorraine is grown in large quantities and looks promising; so does a pretty little houseful of crotons and other foliage plants.

All advance orders for my original Winter SWEET PEA SEED have been promptly filled, and each additional order is sent the same day as received so long as the seed lasts. Send for list.

New WINTER ORCHID or GOLD MEDAL SWEET PEA

I have cut down many large orders, putting the balance of the seed in collections of eight named varieties of the best commercial colors, just to give even the smallest grower a chance to try them.

Collection of eight named varieties, in commercial colors: Pink and white, white, soft pink, lavender, dark rose, etc., sufficient to plant 100-foot row, price, $4.00 for one collection; not more than three collections to each customer.

Winter ORCHID Sweet Pea in MIXTURE, containing about twenty distinct colors. Price, ¼ oz., $2.00; 1 oz., $7.00. Not more than two ounces to each customer.

The right note has been struck here in getting variety into the stock and this is an important point. Retailers need more than one or two kinds of plants and it has been difficult to obtain them locally hitherto.

In the cut flower department the roses are not making a big display now, but the plants certainly look fine and there is every prospect of a good fall and winter cut. Several of the newer kinds are grown, as well as all the older, better known varieties. A new departure has been made here in orchids, a small-span house being devoted to their culture. Several thousand cattleyas have been potted and are starting up well, and this is a feature that will doubtless be increased. Taken all in all, the place seems to be in fine condition, notwithstanding the interruptions due to building operations, and we shall surely expect to see some fine stock from Sawtelle this season.

Various Notes.

R. L. Scott has been calling on the trade in the interests of Lion & Co., New York.

The large oil derrick in flowers which caused so much stir in the local papers was the work of Frank Lichtenberg. It was for the funeral of the late Mr. Canfield, the oil magnate.

John Gordon has been missing from his post at Morris Goldenson's for a couple of weeks and has been taking in Catalina. This accounts for the unusual spectacle of Mr. Goldenson making a bluff at working. Big days in funeral work are reported.

Charles E. Morton and Fred Sperry left August 26 for a spin to San Diego. I have no word as yet as to what happened on the road, but they surely looked happy in anticipation when I saw them a few miles out, the Buick doing its best, with Mr. Morton at the wheel and Mr. Sperry beaming benevolence from every angle on all and sundry. Trips for business and pleasure combined, like this, are highly commendable.

At the Dieterich & Turner ranch, at Montebello, Milady and Mrs. David Christie Miller are showing up finely among the newer roses. Sunburst is making an elegant growth and Killarney Queen is splendid. There is every prospect of a large supply here in fall and winter.

Walter Garbett, of Darling's Flower Shop, is again on duty after vacation. H. R. Richards.

Miles City, Mont.—M. E. Marcy, proprietor of the Miles City Greenhouses, will add a steel frame house, 34x100 feet, for growing vegetables.

Seed Trade News.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, C. C. Massie, Minneapolis; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

L. L. MAY recently returned to St. Paul after a look at the peas in Montana.

It is said the United States imports about 35,000 bags of canary seed each year.

THE reckless booking of advance orders eventually leads to a season resulting in serious consequences.

THE Francis Brill Co., Hempstead, N. Y., says the Long Island seed crops are turning out much shorter than expected.

THE Illinois Seed Co., Chicago, has certified to the secretary of state an increase in its capital from $25,000 to $150,000.

A BRICK, four-story addition, 30x60 feet, to its seed warehouse is being built by the A. A. Berry Seed Co., of Clarinda, Ia.

NOTICE of the assignment of Wm. Hagemann & Co., of New York, will be found under the head of Business Embarrassments, elsewhere in this issue.

ACCORDING to a Hamburg exporter, the Turkish crop of canary seed this year is about 35,000 bags, as against a normal production of 120,000 to 150,000 bags.

IN spite of the short crop of Roman hyacinths a good many of the large importers find that their orders have been filled in full, although the sizes are slightly below those specified.

THE corn is decidedly poor in western Nebraska, but toward the eastern end of the state it is much better, according to those who went through the region in the last week of August.

THE sweet pea crop is the shortest in years, but deliveries indicate that everybody will have enough to get along with fairly well. Some unengaged stocks in first hands even are being offered.

REFERRING to the government's publication of the results of the season's tests of hairy vetch, recently reported in The Review under the heading "Good People Have Bad Vetch," Conrad Appel, of Darmstadt, writes: "I have found that American dealers are buying hairy vetch in the lowest market, and do not care much for reliable quality."

ROMANS are not in special demand at current quotations, and still some of the largest importers had advance orders that took practically everything that has arrived. When the bulbs cost 2¾ cents to 3½ cents laid down in a greenhouse not many will be forced for the cut flower markets, though they still can be used for pot stocks for retailing and return a good profit.

It develops that a number of the Dutch houses exporting bulbs have this season sold considerable quantities they did not grow, at prices that make it impossible for them to fill their orders at a profit. There is no one less inclined than the Hollander to work a year for nothing, and as some of the losses, either of customers or guilders, promise to be large, there is deep, dark, dismal discouragement akin to disaster reflected in recent correspondence. The season is the poorest the Holland growers have seen in many years.

LANGPORT, ENGLAND

INCORPORATION papers were issued in the state of Illinois for the Twin City Trading Co., of Minneapolis, which has large seed interests and warehouse property in that city. The capitalization is $250,000. The president is Albert Dickinson and the vice-president Charles Dickinson, both well known in the seed trade as officers of the Albert Dickinson Co., Chicago. Charles S. Fellows, assistant secretary of the newly incorporated company, said that the incorporation in Illinois had relation to certain large improvements the Dickinson interests are making in Chicago.

POSTAGE ON SEEDS AND PLANTS.

[The Review will be pleased to print letters on the subject of the trade and the parcel post, but wishes it understood that it does not thereby endorse the opinions or views of its correspondents.]

We have done a good deal of studying on the subject of postage on seeds, plants and bulbs, which were left at the old rate of 1 cent for each two ounces when the new parcel post law was adopted, and believe that we have arrived at a solution of the question and wish that you would give space to our idea and urge its adoption in The Review.

We believe that all seedsmen, florists and handlers of plants and bulbs ought ice, and he would undoubtedly favor this plan if he saw there was a universal demand for it. It is simply to ask that the present rate on small parcels, weighing less than four ounces, be changed from 1 cent for each ounce to read: That all packages weighing less than eight ounces shall pay 1 cent for each two ounces or fraction thereof.

And then let parcel post rates apply to all seeds, plants, bulbs, roots, catalogues, books, etc. This would greatly simplify the postal service by putting all kinds of parcels in one general class and doing away with these special classes, and would give a uniform rate for all.

This would give the seedsman and plantsman all the advantage they now have on small packages and the additional advantage of the reduced rate on parcels to nearby points, and the parcel post rates are lower than present rates excepting those going to the sixth, seventh and eighth zones, and as the great bulk of mail shipments are within the first four zones, those in the trade would be greatly benefited. We believe that practically every seedsman and plantsman in the country would endorse this proposition if put before them and a little hustling can secure this change to our great advantage.

DUTCH BULB TRADE.

According to the figures published by the General Society for Bulb Culture at Haarlem, Holland, the foreign bulb trade of the Netherlands in 1912 was larger than that of any previous year and the increase over 1911 greater than the increase in any year before. The years from 1901 to 1912 are covered in the statistics. In 1901 the imports of bulbs amounted to 555,044 kilos, or 1,223,650 pounds, one kilo being approximately two and one-fifth pounds. The exports for the same year were 10,057,049 kilos. Last year the imports aggregated 2,338,300 kilos and the exports 22,751,500 kilos. The following table shows the imports to Holland from other countries in 1911 and in 1912, in kilos:

Countries.	1911.	1912.
Great Britain and Ireland.	697,800	1,030,400
Germany and Austria....	43,200	91,400
France, Belgium, Italy, Spain, Portugal, Greece and Turkey	716,100	805,900
Scandinavia and Denmark	3,000	5,000
Russia	400	1,000
Japan	99,900	167,400
United States	137,200	115,800
Other countries	103,400	121,600

Total..... 1,801,000 2,338,300

The exports from Holland to the same countries for the same two years are shown in the following table, in kilos:

Countries.	1911.	1912.
Great Britain and Ireland.	6,058,200	7,752,600
Germany and Austria....	4,854,600	5,771,000
France, Belgium, Italy, Spain, Portugal, Greece, and Turkey	951,300	2,141,200
Scandinavia and Denmark	1,684,300	2,107,600
Russia	615,400	882,500
Japan	2,938,900	3,815,000
United States	205,700	281,600

Total..... 17,308,400 22,751,500

In these tables there are not included the bulbs transmitted by parcel post; although the exact quantity is unknown, it is, no doubt, considerable.

The imports of bulbs from the United States increased between 1901 and 1907, but a steady decline has continued from the latter year to the present. The imports from Great Britain have

SWEDEN

Kristianstad, July 20, '13.

Mr. G. S. Ramsburg.

Dear Sir: First of all we wish to thank you for the Silver Pink Snapdragon seed we had from you last fall. We had a fine lot of flowers which were surprising to everyone that saw them, and we intend to grow more of them this year. Would you kindly send us 3 pkts. same good quality as before, because every seed was growing?

We are yours very truly,

A. B. BJORKLUND & Co.

AMERICA

Dunkirk, N. Y., Aug. 16.

G. S. Ramsburg.

Dear Sir: We enclose check for our order of Silver Pink Snap. Seed. The flowers from the seed last year were very beautiful, and if we can do as well with them this year, shall be well satisfied.

Very truly yours,

HARRYSBURG GREENHOUSES,
Mrs. G. P. Hequembourg, Mgr.

We have but one quality of goods and do business the same with everyone. No matter where you live you must get satisfaction or we don't want your money. Our prices are low and we shall depend upon reorders for our profit. We have dozens of such letters that tell the same story. Do likewise—grow SILVER PINK, the one great, pleasing and profitable snapdragon of the age.

Price of seed, over 500 to the pkt., $1.00; 3 pkts., $2.50; 7 pkts., $5.00, by return mail. Free cultural directions.

Have 25,000 seedling plants for October delivery. These plants will be branched and bushy, ready for their flowering season without further topping. They are being carefully grown and are first-class stock. Price only $4.00 per 100; $35.00 per 1000. Orders filled in strict rotation. Let us book you early. Cash, please.

steadily increased, with little variation, from 115,316 kilos in 1901 to 1,030,400 kilos in 1912. Japan's imports have grown from nothing in 1901, until now they are larger than those from the United States. Our own country seems to be the only one from which the imports have decreased. The increase in exports was larger last year than any previous year, as were the total exports as well. The increase has been steady in every case since 1901.

GERMAN GRASS SEED CROPS.

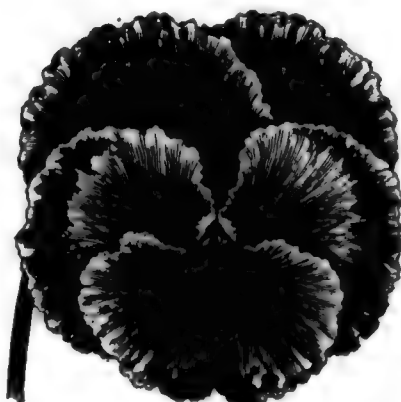

"It is still rather early to give a definite report on the new crop of the various natural grass seeds," said Conrad Appel, of Darmstadt, Germany, in a report dated August 16, "as the changing weather conditions have resulted in a delayed harvest of some sorts. Long periods of rain in most of the centers of production will certainly produce variations in the color and quality. Agrostis stolonifera, true South German fioringrass, which is always in strong demand, is harvested in September; the weather is favorable for quality, but the quantity depends on the temperature for the next three weeks. Anthoxanthum odoratum had a limited crop. Festuca duriuscula and Festuca ovina came in partly under favorable conditions. Of Festuca ovina angustifolia (tenuifolia) a good yield can be reported, while Festuca elatior produced a small crop and qualities have suffered to some extent by the rainy weather; bright qualities will be in demand and the growers are expecting high prices. Poa nemoralis has suffered by frost in spring and yields less than last year; some parcels are injured by rain during the harvest. Prices will vary according to quality.

Mr. G. S. Ramsburg

Dear Sir: First of all we wish to thank you for the Silver Pink Snapdragon seed we had from you last fall. We had a fine lot of flowers which were surprising to everyone that saw them, and we intend to grow more of them this year. Would you kindly send us 3 pkts. same good quality as before, because every seed was growing?

We are yours very truly,

G. S. Ramsburg

Dear Sir: We enclose check for our order of Silver Pink Snap. The flowers from the seed last year were very beautiful, and if we can do as well with them this year, shall be well satisfied.

Very truly yours,

HARRISBURG GREENHOUSES,
Mrs. G. P. Hequembourg, Mgr.

We have but one quality of goods and do business the same with everyone. No matter where you live you must get satisfaction or we don't want your money. Our prices are low and we shall depend upon reorders for our profit. We have dozens of such letters that tell the same story. Do likewise—grow SILVER PINK, the one great, pleasing and profitable snapdragon of the age.

Price of seed, over 500 to the pkt., $1.00; 3 pkts., $2.50; 7 pkts., $5.00, by return mail. Free cultural directions.

Have 25,000 seedling plants for October delivery. These plants will be branched and bushy, ready for their flowering season without further topping. They are being carefully grown and are first-class stock. Price only $4.00 per 100; $35.00 per 1000. Orders filled in strict rotation. Let us book you early. Cash, please.

steadily increased, with little variation, from 115,316 kilos in 1901 to 1,030,400 kilos in 1912. Japan's imports have grown from nothing in 1901, until now they are larger than those from the United States. Our own country seems to be the only one from which the imports have decreased. The increase in exports was larger last year than any previous year, as were the total exports as well. The increase has been steady in every case since 1901.

"As the changing weather conditions have resulted in a delayed harvest of some sorts. Long periods of rain in most of the centers of production will certainly produce variations in the color and quality. Agrostis stolonifera, true South German floweringgrass, which is always in strong demand, is harvested in September; the weather is favorable for quality, but the quantity depends on the temperature for the next three weeks. Anthoxanthum odoratum had a limited crop. Festuca durianensis and Festuca ovina are in partly under favorable conditions. Of Festuca ovina angustifolia tenuifolia a good yield can be reported, while Festuca elatior produced a small crop and qualities have suffered to some extent by the rainy weather; bright qualities will be in demand and the growers are expecting high prices. Poa nemoralis has suffered by frost in spring and yields less than last year; some parcels are injured by rain during the harvest. [Continued from page 36.]

also showed a marked improvement. It was encouraging to note the large attendance of the public and their interest in this exhibition.

Arthur Griffin, of Woburn, one of the largest and most successful of our local carnation growers, whose establishment was always to be found in immaculate condition, has sold his greenhouses, stock, house and other property to C. B. Johnson, lately of the firm of Neilson & Johnson, of Framingham, Mass. Mr. Johnson takes possession this week. Mr. Griffin, who has worked hard for some years, will take a vacation and then probably will relocate near Boston. He has retained one house filled with Gloriosa superba, G. Rothschildiana and some magnificent hybrids he has raised himself, and of which he possesses some thousands.

F. J. Dolansky, of Lynn, is this season growing 25,000 roses and has cut down the number of his carnations, the former paying better. He is cutting nice flowers of Maryland, Killarney, Kaiserin, Melody and Ward.

The W. W. Edgar Co., of Waverley, is marketing fine lots of gladioli, speciosum lilies and adiantum. The houses of cyclamens, poinsettias and Cincinnati begonias are better than ever before.

The annual dahlia and fruit show of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society will be held September 12 and 13. Thanks to late rains, dahlias are looking unusually well.

John J. Fee, of Jamaica Plain, is sending in extra good America and Mrs. Francis King gladioli to the Boston Flower Exchange.

William Mix, salesman for the W. W. Edgar Co., is home from a vacation spent at York Beach, Me.

William A. Hastings, of the Boston Flower Exchange, is busy making a systematic search for four pounds avoirdupois which he lost on his late vacation.

W. P. Rich, secretary of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, enjoyed the Minneapolis convention immensely. He returned by the great lakes and St. Lawrence river, the scenery of which greatly impressed him.

Peter Fisher has his carnations all housed and well established. He is not yet cutting any flowers, preferring to have them come a little late. A large part of his new Gorgeous has been headed back for cuttings.

A. E. E. Koch, of Nobscot, says he has had a steady demand for snapdragon flowers all summer, and that the call for rooted cuttings shows no diminution.

BODDINGTON'S "QUALITY" CHRISTMAS-FLOWERING Sweet Peas

WE ARE SUPER-HEADQUARTERS

All true stocks of Winter-flowering Sweet Peas will be scarce this season. Some varieties are a total failure owing to the exceptional season in California this Spring. Our advice to intending planters is to order at once.

Mr. Wm. Sim, Cliftondale, Mass., the great Winter Sweet Pea Specialist, sows our seed almost exclusively.

Our stocks of Christmas-flowering Sweet Peas have stood the test for years, and we can refer you to the largest growers of this increasingly popular flower, as to the trueness and quality of our seed, earliness of blooming period and strength and habit of plants.

The following varieties are the "best by test" and include Zvolanek's and our own introductions grown for seed, from selected stocks by the leading California grower and specialist in Sweet Peas.

Our output last year was nearly 3000 lbs. No kicks and plenty of testimonials as to quality germination and trueness to type.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

M. VANDERVALDEN, of Forest Ranch, Cal., has established a nursery near there and already has several thousand young trees planted.

THE Senate has adopted the free list paragraph of the tariff bill without changing the clause, "coniferous evergreen seedlings four years old or less."

INCORPORATION papers have been issued to the Comal Springs Nursery, of New Braunfels, Tex., with a capital stock of $10,000. The incorporators are Otto Locke, Hermann Locke and Herman Thiele.

A BILL has been introduced in Congress by Representative Sparkman, of Florida, appropriating $40,000 for the establishment of an experiment station and farm at or near St. Petersburg, Fla., to demonstrate the character of plants, shrubs and trees best adapted to the soil and climate of that section.

A. A. N. COMMITTEES.

The list of standing committees of the American Association of Nurserymen is as yet incomplete, owing to the fact that the formal acceptances of some of the appointees have not been received by President Pilkington. The membership committee consists, of course, of the state vice-presidents. The committees on exhibits, arrangements, and publicity and trade opportunities are now incomplete. The chairmen of the other standing committees are as follows:

Transportation—Chas. M. Sizemore, Louisiana, Mo.

Tariff—James McHutchison, New York, N. Y.

Legislation east of the Mississippi river—William Pitkin, Rochester, N. Y.

Legislation west of the Mississippi river—Peter Youngers, Geneva, Neb.

Cooperation with entomologists—L. A. Berckmans, Augusta, Ga.

Program—John Watson, Newark, N. Y.

SOUTHERN NURSERYMEN MEET.

Endorse Plea for Uniform Laws.

Is there any significance in the fact that the sixteenth annual meeting of the Southern Nurserymen's Association began with an invocation and closed with the adoption of resolutions asking for relief from the present burdens of legislation?

The convention was held at Mont Eagle, Tenn., August 27 and 28, with President O. Joe Howard, of Pomona, N. C., in the chair. A good part of the discussion related to the legal harassments which the trade at present is suffering and the association adopted resolutions endorsing the action of the American Association of Nurserymen and the Pacific Coast Nurserymen's Association in the matter of attempting to get uniform inspection laws for all the states. An appropriation of $200 was made to aid the committee appointed by the national organization to carry on this work.

Resolutions also were adopted asking for favorable parcel post rates on nursery stock.

Officers Elected.

The following officers were elected: President—J. R. Mayhew, Waxahachie, Tex.

Vice-president—Harvey M. Templeton, Winchester, Tenn.

Secretary-treasurer—A. I. Smith, Knoxville, Tenn.; re-elected.

Chattanooga, Tenn., was selected for the next meeting place, in August, 1914.

The Program.

The program was carried out in detail. It was as follows:

Invocation.
Address of Welcome, by Capt. T. A. Embrey, Winchester, Tenn.

Response, by R. C. Simpson, Monticello, Fla.

FOREIGN COUNTRIES INSPECT.

The secretary of agriculture has, through the treasury department, notified the customs officers as to the countries which have complied with regulation 7 of the rules and regulations for carrying out the plant quarantine act, an account of which was given in last week's issue of The Review. The customs officers are requested to deny the entry of commercial importations of stock from other countries, until they be included in the list.

All foreign certificates of inspection must be officially signed and must bear the official seal of the country of origin, although the names and official designations of the foreign inspectors are not ity of our horticultural laws. In speaking on this subject to the A. A. N., he said:

"Uniformity in horticultural statutes is imperative to the best interests of the individual states. It is greatly to be desired in the laws of the several states. Diversity in county ordinances in any state breeds discontent, ill will, serious embarrassment, and often actual loss, both to the nurseryman and to the orchardist. Diversity in the laws of separate states is only less unfortunate and mischievous in that interstate trade and traffic are less active than are inter-county trade and traffic, and the relation between the parties directly concerned is less common and intimate. The ideal toward which we must all work is universal uniformity in our agricultural statutes the country over.

laws are usually more desirable, for then uniformity is assured and greater publicity is certain to follow. State laws do not harness up well with either uniformity or this desirable publicity. On the other hand, state laws are in close touch with the peculiar conditions of each state, are more easily and quickly enacted, and are more susceptible to necessary and quick modification. Whenever a state law is proposed, all who are interested—nurserymen and fruit growers—should take notice and insist that such law be reasonable, necessary, and should line up with this principle of uniformity in relation to other states.”

PITTSBURGH, PA.

The Market.

Pittsburgh has been having delightful weather, but needs a little more rain to keep things looking their best. Business is not showing any signs of change, and it is just as well, for if there was much trade, we should have trouble finding stock to take care of it. Good roses are scarcer than at any other time this summer, and carnations have disappeared altogether. Good asters continue scarce, as the buyers have finished all local stock.

The retail shops are all taking things easy and waiting until trade starts before putting on their fall improvements. This is a custom of the trade here, possibly because they do not like to see money going out when there is none coming in.

Various Notes.

Samuel McClements, of Randolph & McClements, has been taking his vacation this summer in week-end automobile runs to Bedford Springs and other mountain resorts, never getting too far away to keep in touch with business.

Harvey Sheaf, manager for Mrs. E. A. Williams, has been east the last week, looking up novelties and plants for the fall and winter season.

A. W. Smith, Jr., also has been taking his vacation in week-end trips to the mountains, where his family are spending the summer, but says it must stop, as his landscape department now requires all his time.

Those who attended the S. A. F. convention have all returned and were delighted with their trip. They all speak highly of the beautiful city as well as of the successful convention.

E. C. Ludwig has been getting the products of his gardens at Ludwig, Pa., and has been able to keep up elaborate shows at his store and market stands. Among other things he grows asters, but the bugs got to them last week and now there is nothing doing in the aster line for him.

Ed. McCallum is home from Canada and looks like an Indian. He spent his whole time in a canoe, and he says that is the way to get in condition for a winter's work.

Howard Carney has a cottage at the Hulton camp ground. He says it is fine for the children but a little quiet for their father.

Miss Carrie Jordon spent a pleasant vacation at Conneaut Lake and is back at her stand ready to take care of trade.

George Marshall was another who went to Canada fishing, but the report is that he found it too much like work and stuck close to camp. His principal object was to put on weight and there was a better opportunity in camp. Clarke.

The Best That The Future Has To Offer

IT IS our custom to handle only varieties we believe to be worthy of a place in the best commercial establishments. The new Roses we have offered in past seasons have made a reputation for themselves and the character of stock we have sent out has made an enviable reputation for our firm. We offer Killarney Brilliant in the belief that it is the coming standard of perfection. We have arranged with the originators for eyes for grafting purposes. We can supply any quantity you may require.

Killarney Brilliant

A sport from Killarney, grown in the open ground in England. Killarney was introduced in 1898, and since then there have been so many sports that Killarney has developed into a type rather than a variety. Messrs. Alexander Dickson & Sons, the original introducers, are to be congratulated, sixteen years after the advent of Killarney, in giving us now this distinct novelty which is undoubtedly the best of all varieties of this type.

Killarney Brilliant has the same habit of growth and the same freedom of bloom as its parent, while the flower is twice as large, having 25 to 40 full-sized petals. It will be as useful for Summer blooming as for Winter forcing. The color is a very brilliant pink and varies like Killarney; in bright weather it is almost crimson, and in dull weather, when Killarney is so pale, it is as bright as Killarney at its best. The sale of Killarney Brilliant a year before its introduction has been larger than that of any other Rose ever sent out in this country.

Grafted Plants, 75c each; $7.50 per dozen; $35.00 per 100; $300.00 per 1000.

New Carnation Gloria

(H. W. Field and A. N. Pierson, Inc.)

In offering this new Carnation to the trade, we offer what we believe to be a paying commercial variety; strong in growth, making a quantity of flowering shoots rather than wonderful length of individual stems. In color, the brightest pink we have ever seen in a carnation, and a color that will sell, which, combined with good calyx, fair-sized bloom and great production, makes this an attractive proposition to a man who knows Carnations.

Rooted Cuttings for December, $12.00 per 100, $100.00 per 1000.

Enchantress Supreme

As the best of the Enchantress family it needs no description. An improvement in color, in form of flower on a race of Carnations that have stood the test of time. We have a large stock.

Rooted Cuttings for December and later, $6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000.

WHITE MARSH, MARYLAND

SCRANTON, PA.

Various Notes.

The cool weather is propitious for the freshly planted carnations. Already the fall openings in our stores are beginning to help the florists move their stock; it looks as if there would be a good trade as soon as the fall season gets its swing. Florists are anxiously waiting for the boom to begin.

Theodore Wheeler has accepted a position as gardener with Mrs. A. D. Turnbull, the florist of Carbondale, Pa.

Isadore Piedemont, who last winter took a course at the state college and has since been with Alonzo J. Bryan, at Washington, N. J., has been spending a few weeks at the lakes near Scranton and expects to return to New Jersey in the first part of October.

Miss Laura Kennedy, one of the obliging clerks for G. R. Clark, is spending a two weeks' vacation at Atlantic City.

J. T. Cokely, of the Scranton Florist Supply Co., has started on an extended trip throughout the states.

Milton Selinka, representing Schloss Bros., of New York, is paying a visit to the Scranton trade.

Old Home week, now being observed in the Providence section of Scranton, formerly known as Razorville, is bringing trade to the florists. At the intersection of Providence road and North Main avenue is one of the prettiest views in the Old Home week decorations, a spacious flower bed encircled with red, white and blue electric bulbs, with bulbs peeping here and there from among the mass of foliage; altogether it is a beautiful scene, without any of the stiffness and regularity so often seen.

There has been no building of greenhouses in or around Scranton, to our knowledge, this year, the first time for a number of years that we could not report some building going on through the summer dull season. G. R. C.

EARLY USES OF CYPRESS.

Cypress, the "wood eternal," and generally considered the best wood for greenhouse construction, has a record for durability that is nothing short of wonderful, when compared with the life and service of other woods. The trade will be interested in knowing that in New Orleans, a century ago, there were few houses that were not constructed of cypress, wholly or in part. In the parts of the south settled by the Spaniards, houses generally were built of that material. Cypress shingles were regarded as so much superior to any others that their use became extensive at an early period.

A roof of cypress was laid in Greenwich, Conn., in 1640, and was said to be serving well 250 years afterwards. Another at Brooklyn was said to have lasted 228 years, and one at Clifton, Staten Island, had 200 years to its credit when last reported, and was still in use. The cypress water mains in New Orleans remained sound for nearly a century. A headboard of the same material at a grave in South Carolina was so well preserved after 140 years that the letters on it were easily read. A still longer period has been claimed for cypress coffins in Charleston, S. C. Many instances of use exceeding a century have been cited to show its lasting qualities.

from reporting to the Society of American Florists that one of the Conard & Jones Co. exhibits was on the grounds, and that our collection constitutes

A SPLENDID SET OF NOVELTIES

Here's what the judges said verbatim: "A very fine and interesting display of standard varieties of Cannas, including Meteor, a startling red, in the opinion of our judges the best Canna shown on the grounds; also Panama, a giant salmon; Blanche Wintzer, pure white; Olympia, rosy crimson, and Beacon, scarlet; these, with many other sorts, forming a splendid set of novelties."

The condition of the market is about the same as at last writing. There is a supply that is more than ample for requirements. The average quality of the stock is improving. Asters are in heavy supply. The large late ones are arriving in regular shipments and the demand for the best has been pretty good. Gladioli continue to come into the wholesale houses in about the same quantity as during the last several weeks. Roses are in excellent supply. The local growers are beginning to cut dahlias. The supply of Easter lilies is easily equal to requirements. A little valley is offered.

Various Notes.

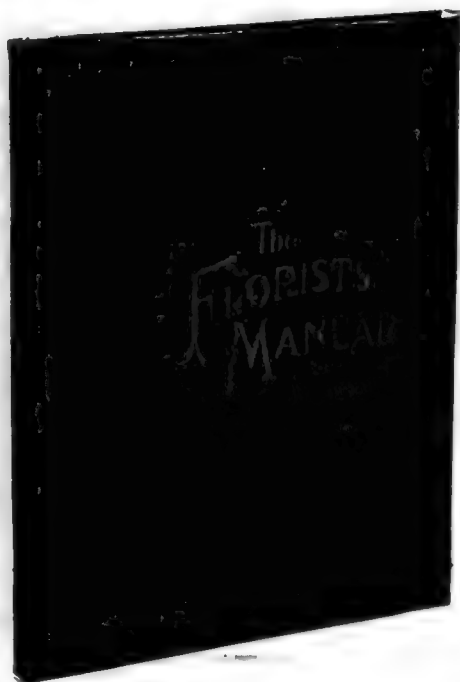

Ed. Fries' carnations look better this season than they have at this time in any previous year.

P. J. Olinger reports this year's August business as twice that of last August. The cause was a larger cut of Beauties during the entire month.

Sedalia, Mo.—Five carloads of steel and 60,000 pounds of glass have been shipped in here for Dr. J. E. Cannaday's greenhouses, which will be conducted under the name of the State Fair Floral Co.

Ottawa, Ill.—The new greenhouse for the Davis-Harrison Co. is in the course of construction, the underground work having been completed. The house is 165x900, a few feet wider and twenty feet longer than the other buildings, and will be ready, it is expected, for the fall planting.

THE ELITCH-LONG GREENHOUSES,

DENVER, COLORADO

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Market.

Business was at a low ebb last week; in fact, the entire month of August held little for the trade aside from the usual run of funeral work. The new crop of American Beauty roses is in and they are of good quality. The new crop roses of other varieties are meeting with a better sale, due, perhaps, to the difference in the price. Chrysanthemums have made their appearance and are being offered at about $2 per dozen. Asters with 2-foot stems are meeting with a ready sale and are being used in large quantities for funeral work. Dahlias are also among the arrivals and are of fine quality. It is said that this is the first summer that Washington florists have been able to obtain gardenias at all times. Orchids are scarce. Carnations may be had in all colors, although little can be said of quality. Gladioli have been plentiful.

Various Notes.

Miss Louise Daugherty, with George C. Shaffer, is spending a month at her home in Owingsville, Ky. George Super, also at this store, with Mrs. Super, is due to return to this city within a few days, at the conclusion of his vacation.

Announcements have been received of the marriage in Saint Patrick's church, Montreal, of Francis C. Fleury and Miss Babe Curran. Mr. Fleury was for nine years with George C. Shaffer and during his residence here made many friends. He is now connected with Campbell the Florist, who is located in the Ritz-Carleton, in Montreal. Charles Ley, brother of Harry Ley, of this city, with whom he was at one time connected, but who is now employed in Montreal, acted as best man. Following the ceremony the couple left to spend their honeymoon in the White mountains.

A cablegram from Europe announces the safe arrival of Adolphus Gude and Fred H. Kramer. C. L. L.

Gardner, Mass.—Mrs. A. I. Colburn has just finished erecting a large rose house and is installing a supplementary boiler to meet the additional requirements.

Worcester, Mass.—J. L. Moore, of Northboro, and W. D. Ross and Mrs. A. M. Forbes, of this city, were the largest exhibitors at the meeting of the Worcester County Horticultural Society, August 21.

DENVER.

The Market.

Business since the Knights Templar conclave has been decidedly flat. There are some fine asters on the market, but there is no demand for them. Sweet peas and gladioli are about gone. Good roses are still scarce. Some new-crop carnations are on the market, but the stems are short.

Various Notes.

J. A. Valentine and N. A. Benson are spending their vacation fishing.

John Sked, of the Park Floral Co., is taking a well earned rest.

The Boldt-Lundy Flower Shop had a novel decoration last week, being called on to arrange a summer garden for a private theatrical performance.

The park superintendents held their fifteenth annual convention in this city, August 25 to 27. The park board was assisted by the Denver florists in entertaining the guests. L.

Manchester, Mass.—At the annual flower show of the North Shore Horticultural Society, B. Hammond Tracy, of Wenham, took the silver medal offered for the best display of gladioli by commercial growers only, showing Dawn, Sunrise, Mrs. Francis King and others. Southworth Bros., of Beverly, showed a fine collection of hardy phlox and Axel Magnuson, of Manchester, had a table of annuals, not in competition.

CARNATIONS.

FIELD-GROWN PLANTS READY NOW.

We do a very large business each season on carnation cuttings and field-grown plants because we never ship out stock we would not be willing to plant on our own benches. The field-grown plants are ready. This is not surplus stock, left after selecting the stock for our own use, but is stock grown especially for sale to the trade. If we did not know it was good stock, strong, stocky, well branched, and free from disease, we should not offer it for sale. Last year's customers will be back—and this is an invitation to those who have not yet bought here to order of us this year. Immediate shipment.

PEONIES."PEONIES FOR PLEASURE."

This book of "Peonies for Pleasure" gives information on peony history, soil and plants to use, how and when to plant, fertilizers and how to apply, and describes the most extensive planting of really valuable peonies ever gathered together under the sun; describes old and new as well as the plebeian and aristocrat of the peony family. If you want information on the plant that stands next to the rose in beauty, that is practically known to the amateur as simply a red, white and pink peony, then send for "Peonies for Pleasure."

We also issue a special wholesale price list of peonies for fall sales, 1913. Send for both of these booklets.

Our catalogue of everything you need mailed on application. Write for it today.

THE HARDY PERENNIAL GARDEN.

Gem, yellow suffused with red. All varieties of the helianthus, helenium and rudbeckia do much better if planted in the fall than in the spring; so, in fact, do nearly all perennials.

Asters or Michaelmas Daisies.

Asters, or Michaelmas daisies, are typical fall flowers, and are remarkably beautiful. There are so many beautiful new varieties of these, of European origin, that anyone who has not seen them can hardly conceive how valuable they are. Some kinds, such as the alpinus varieties, flower early in summer, but the majority are now in flower. Specially good are the following: Novibelgii Perry's Pink, reddish pink; Novibelgii Robert Parker, pale blue; Rye-croft Pink, rosy pink; Maaekii, dark blue, a dwarf grower; Triumph, light blue; Novæ-Angliæ, purplish blue; Novæ-Angliæ rosea, pink; ericoides Delight, white shading to pink, and grandiflora, with large, pale violet flowers, a late bloomer. The asters, or many of them, in addition to their value in the hardy border, are useful in the wild garden.

Other Herbaceous Plants.

Among the other good, late-flowering herbaceous plants are: Veronica longifolia subsessilis, dark blue, the best of the hardy speedwells; Stokesia cyanea, sky blue, a grand perennial; Sedum spectabile, big heads of light pink flowers; Viola cornuta in variety, which is almost invaluable as a border plant. Lobelia cardinalis, the cardinal flower, is usually associated with swamps, but makes a grand border plant. Lepachys pinnata has yellow flowers with black cones; the plant grows from four to five feet in height, with foliage finely divided. Astilbe Davidii, if planted in moist land and in partial shade, grows six feet in height. Senecio Clivorum is a vigorous grower, better adapted for sides of ponds and streams than the border; it has immense round leaves and heads of golden yellow flowers.

Boltonia latisquama, pink shaded lavender, and B. asteroides, white, are tall growing perennials, which are fine for cutting. Chrysanthemum maximum King Edward VII, large, pure white, is perhaps the best of the so-called Shasta daisies. Lythrum roseum superbum, the rose loosestrife, has lately made a goodly show. It is even better on the shores of ponds or streams than in the border. Hibiscus Crimson Eye and other mallows, with their immense flowers, are effective. They also do well in wet ground, but are good in even a dry border. Liatris pycnostachya, the Kansas gay feather, with its long spikes of rosy purple flowers, is one of the most conspicuous plants in the hardy garden. Of the evening primroses, (Euthamia laevis and Youngii, golden yellow, are late bloomers. The Japanese anemones are now making a great show; A. Japonica alba is specially notable, with its beautiful white flowers. Physostegia Virginica, commonly called false dragonhead, with light rosy lilac flowers, is a perennial every country florist should grow. It is fine for cutting and excellent in design work. P. Virginica alba is a fine white variety.

Tritomas and Montbretias.

The tritomas, or kniphofias, are good late bloomers. Florists have begun to realize the value of these for window decorations. Good varieties are Pfitzerii, Empress and Uvaria nobilis. Several forms of the lychnis flower practically all summer; the double white vespertina is the most persistent bloomer.

The montbretias are usually planted in rows in the same way as gladioli. They lend pleasing touches of color to the hardy borders. In well drained land they are hardy, with a little protection. The newer varieties, such as Prometheus and Germania, are a great improvement on the old kinds, such as Pottsi, Rayon d'Or and crocosmaeflora. They should be replanted once a year for the best results. The delphiniums, or hardy larkspurs, which were cut down when their first spikes were faded, have sent up a second crop and some of the spikes are in full bloom. Recent rains have greatly benefited the hardy perennials and a good show of flowers will be had for some weeks yet.

THE FUEL MARKET.

"Ever since April the coal trade the country over has been speculating upon the influence of the fall trade," says the Black Diamond. "A good many districts have enjoyed a bigger summer tonnage than ever before and have had unprecedented summer prices upon the clear presumption that there was going to be both a coal shortage and a car shortage this fall. The time has come when both buyers and producers are beginning to sit down and count the immediate prospects even as four or five months ago they began counting upon the prospects. Candidly, the future is decidedly in doubt, because no one knows what the business situation is going to be, and because no one knows precisely what policy the householder is going to follow."

The facts of the market are these: The big consumers have bought more coal this summer than ever before. However, outside of New England and a few places in the northwest, the retail dealers have not, apparently, bought the customary amount of storage coal. The screenings market in and around Chicago is under heavy pressure from the big buyers, but the demand for western lump coal has been improved within the last week. The spot market could and really should absorb a great deal of smokeless coal. Lump and egg may not be quite so strong as it was, but the business in that coal is not heavy. At present mine run is selling for $1.50 to $1.65 f. o. b. mines, with emphasis upon the latter price, while lump and egg is quoted at $2.25 to $2.50, with emphasis upon the higher figure.

RELATIVE SIZE OF MAINS.

We expect to install a tubular boiler containing 460 feet of 3-inch tubes, on fifteen square feet of grate. We estimate that this boiler has a capacity of 5,000 square feet of greenhouse water radiation. Will a 6-inch outlet and inlet be ample, or do we need a 7-inch to care for all the boiler will be good for? Will you please tell me how much radiation a 4-inch flow pipe will carry, with grade enough to give good circulation? What proportion of radiation to glass would be needed in a forcing house that we could run as high as 80 or 85 degrees? J. D. S.

A tubular boiler with 460 feet of 3-inch pipes can be rated at nearly forty horse-power and this will furnish 5,000 or even 6,000 square feet of radiation, provided the returns are not larger than 2-inch. If 3-inch or 4-inch returns are used, a considerable reduction in the estimated capacity of the boiler should be made.

The capacity of a 4-inch pipe will depend considerably upon the size and length of the returns, as well as on their height above the boiler. Thus, it will supply more square feet of radiation if the returns are 200 feet long than when they are only fifty feet long, and an elevation of the returns to a height of five feet above the boiler will materially increase the capacity of the mains, as compared with an elevation of one or two feet. The grade of the pipes has little to do with the circulation, except that when there is considerable grade it necessarily implies that one end at least is elevated. Ordinarily a 4-inch pipe will supply 1,000 square feet of 2-inch pipe and this may be increased twenty-five per cent if they are of good length, and elevated.

While a 6-inch flow and return might answer for 5,000 square feet, it will be better, except under the most favorable conditions, to use 7-inch pipes, or perhaps two 5-inch pipes.

A temperature of 80 to 85 degrees is seldom required, and it is probable that one square foot of pipe to two square feet of glass, which would give a temperature of 75 degrees when the mercury drops to 15 degrees below zero outside, would suffice for every purpose.

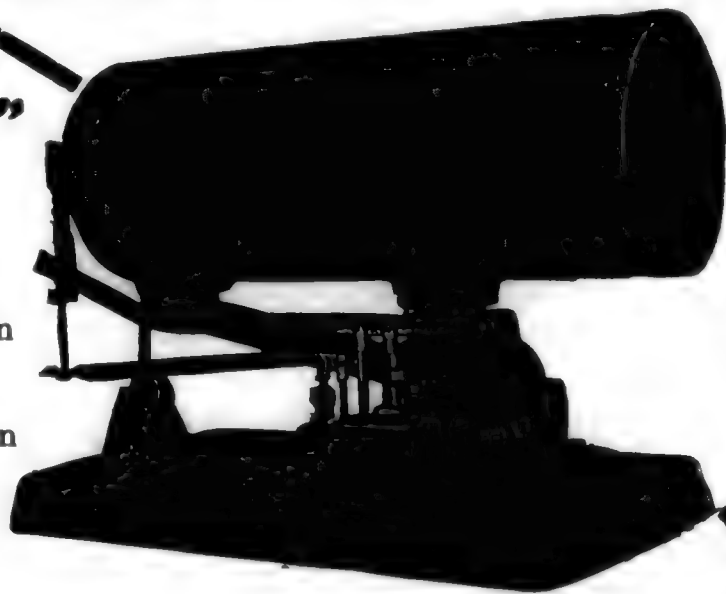

GREENHOUSE AND COLDFRAMES.

I have built a new boiler room and should like to get a little information. From the top of the boiler, which is of the square, sectional hot water type, a 3½-inch riser extends up to a height of five feet, where a 3-inch flow is taken into the greenhouse. At the highest point a ¾-inch pipe goes up to the expansion tank. The flow pipe is about eight feet above the inlet to the boiler. Now I want to put in a second 3½-inch riser, from which a 3-inch flow will be taken to heat some coldframes outside. Should this riser be five feet high also, or can the flow be taken off at a height of four feet and connected with the expansion tank as the first one is? The tank has been above the roof on the outside, but I want to place it inside, where it would only be twelve inches above the flow pipes. Would this distance be sufficient? Can I use the standard globe valves, which I have, on the flows and returns, or should they be the full-opening gate valves? I may want to cut off part or all of the flow to the frames at times.

— C. H. C.

There will be no objection to the suggested plan for running the second flow pipe and taking it off at the height of four feet. While it is desirable to have the expansion tank more than one foot above the flow pipe, it will be better to make the change proposed than to have it outside the house.

Globe valves retard the circulation to some extent, but whether it will be better to discard them and purchase new gate valves will depend upon several things, such as the size and length of the pipes, the amount of radiation supplied through them and the length of the pipes above the boiler. The chances are about three to one that the globe valves can be used without seriously affecting the working of the system.

ONE NEBRASKA HOUSE.

Please state what piping will be needed in my greenhouse, which is 20x96 and sixteen feet high to the ridge. The side walls contain three feet of glass. The boiler house is at the north end and the office is at the south end. The pipes to be used are 3-inch flows and 1½-inch returns. The boiler is 4x14, with a grate surface four feet square. The temperature wanted is 60 degrees.

B. F. C.

The letter does not state whether steam or hot water is to be used. For steam one 3-inch overhead main and eight 1½-inch returns would answer. For hot water use three 3-inch flows and fourteen 1½-inch returns. Were it not for the fact that the foregoing sizes are on hand, I would suggest that for hot water three 2½-inch flow pipes and twelve 2-inch returns be used.

BOILER ABOVE GROUND LEVEL.

Will you kindly give us some information with reference to the heating of our greenhouse? The house is 30x100. The side walls are six feet high and contain three feet of glass. The height to the ridge is fourteen feet six inches. The boiler is 100 horsepower. The bottom of the boiler is from twelve to fourteen inches above the floor level of the greenhouse. I should like to heat the house with hot water, if possible, and use a great many 2-inch pipes. The house will be used mostly for carnations and geraniums and I wish to carry a temperature of about 52 degrees, in this Ohio climate. Kindly let us know what size of pipe should be run from the boiler to the greenhouse, what size is needed for the return pipe and how many strings of pipe are needed for the house, in order to make it a practical system. How would you advise us to distribute the pipes? There will be three low beds, on the ground, and two benches on the north side, one to be used as a propagating bench. The greenhouse runs east and west and the boiler house is at the northwest corner.

H. J. V. H.

For the main flow and return, 4-inch pipes would answer. The problem would be simplified if the bottom of the boiler were below rather than above the level of the floor. The best results would be secured if the 4-inch flow pipe could be carried under the ridge to the farther end of the house, but it should be supported upon posts. If there are purlin posts, two lines of

Read what others say who have used different kinds:

Get the Kroeschell First

Several years ago Mr. Ponting corresponded with us in regard to the Kroeschell Hot Water Boiler, but was persuaded to install two sectional cast iron boilers which were claimed to be superior to the Kroeschell.

In the meantime we placed a number of Kroeschell Boilers in the immediate vicinity of Mr. Ponting, and he could not help but notice their great efficiency, and last year, while at the convention, he placed his order for his first Kroeschell. The following letter speaks for itself:

"We like the Kroeschell Boiler very much. It gives entire satisfaction, and it is so easy to fire. I will trade you the two cast iron sectional boilers for another like the Kroeschell I have."

July 16, 1913, Cleveland, Ohio.

(Signed) FRED PONTING.

Kroeschell Replaces 4 Cast Iron Boilers

Previous to 1909, Mr. Schultz, of Menominee, Mich., heated his entire plant with cast iron boilers. It had been claimed that cast iron boilers are superior to the Kroeschell. Mr. Schultz is now heating 18,000 sq. ft. of glass with the Kroeschell which was installed in 1909, and they are required to fire same only twice a night. The following letter speaks for itself:

"We do not have the least trouble to maintain about 60 degrees in the coldest weather. Your Kroeschell Boiler is the best I ever had. Before I heard about your boiler I had four cast iron boilers, and I would not part with the Kroeschell for a hundred cast iron boilers now."

(Signed) CHARLES SCHULTZ.

July 21, 1913, Menominee, Mich.

Kroeschell Replaces 2 Cast Iron Boilers

The Marysville Floral Co., of Marysville, O., installed a No. 4 Kroeschell Boiler in 1905. Previous to this time they used cast iron boilers. The following letter speaks for itself:

"Has the Kroeschell given entire satisfaction? YES! We had two cast iron boilers, but yours proved by far the best. Your boiler has already outlasted the two cast iron boilers by five years, and all the expense that we have been put to was a smoke dome."

(Signed) MARYSVILLE FLORAL CO.

July 21, 1913, Marysville, O.

Kroeschell Replaces Cast Iron

The range of C. Peterson & Son, at Escanaba, Mich., was formerly heated by cast iron boilers. Last season this firm installed their first Kroeschell, a No. 6, which is now heating 13,000 to 14,000 sq. ft. of glass. They state that they fire these boilers three to four times during the night in zero weather. Under date of June 28, 1913, they write as follows:

"The Kroeschell Boiler has given better satisfaction than any other boiler we have ever had. For years we have fired many different boilers, and really never could get one that we might say was entirely satisfactory—there was always something wrong—but now since we have tried the Kroeschell, we have solved our boiler proposition. We have a (—) cast iron sectional boiler here, only used two years, and we wish we could get rid of it and put in another Kroeschell in its place."

3-inch pipes may be used instead of one 4-inch flow.

Fourteen lines of 2-inch pipe should be used for the returns. These should be placed as high as possible on the walls, with one or two lines on each of the purlin and ridge posts and two or three under the propagating bench. Under the conditions named, it would be helpful to attach a mercury generator, in which case twelve 2-inch pipes would suffice.

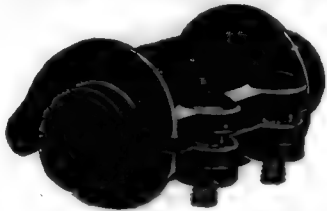

PIPING A HOTBED.

It is our intention to construct a hotbed about seventy-five feet long and we wish to heat it with hot water by running the pipes under the soil in the bed. This hotbed will be located on a piece of sloping ground and the upper end will be about two feet higher than the lower end. What size of pipe should be used? How far apart should the pipes be and how deep should they be under the soil? We are located in Wisconsin.

J. W. J. S. C.

Whether the hotbed can be heated by hot water will depend upon the height of the return pipes above the top of the boiler. If they are at least even with the top of the boiler, the hotbed can be heated by running a 2-inch flow pipe on the back of the bed near the glass and placing the returns about eight inches below the sur-

The number of returns will depend upon the temperature desired; two 2-inch pipes would be needed for a temperature of 55 degrees and three pipes would be required for 60 to 65 degrees. This would answer after March 15, but at least one more return will be needed if the bed is to be used before that time.

Some More Boiler Sense

THIS being a continuation of the talk in which we stated that, for certain conditions, cast iron boilers were best, and for others wrought iron, but neither could successfully meet ALL conditions

This present ad discusses cast iron boilers in general and the Burnham in particular.

There are two kinds of cast iron boilers being used for greenhouse heating.

One kind was made particularly for greenhouse heating.

The other kind was made particularly for residence heating.

One kind first proved its great economy in greenhouse heating, and then, because of its economy, has sold freely for residence work.

The other kind is an out-and-out residence boiler trying to do greenhouse work.

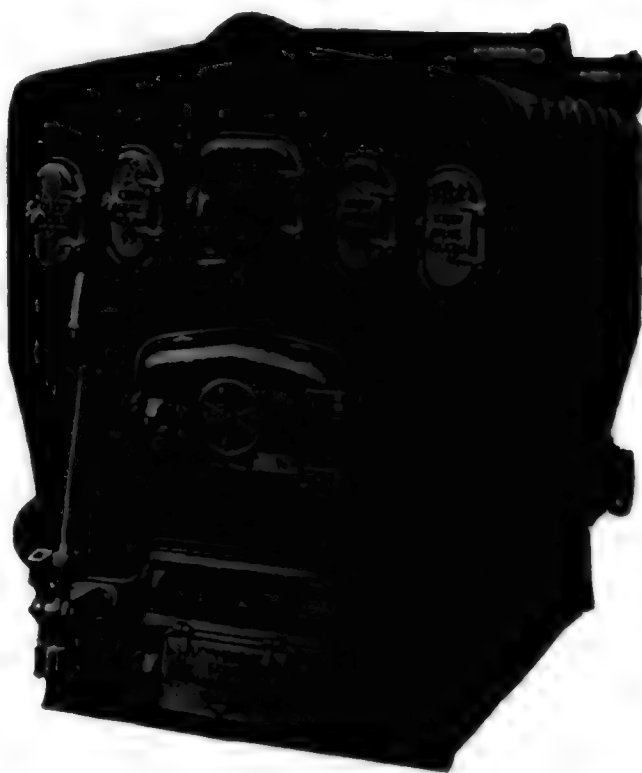

One kind is constructed to circulate short distances, small volumes of water, having vertical gravity in its favor.

The other kind is constructed to rapidly move large volumes of water, great distances, through horizontal pipes — one of the most difficult things to do in heating.

One kind is like a six-cylinder car that can easily and smoothly run at 50 miles an hour and keep firmly in the road.

The other kind is like a four-cylinder runabout, that may make the 50-mile pace, but wobbles and jumps all over the road and racks and strains the engine doing it.

You wouldn't expect roses to thrive in a mum temperature. Following the same line of reasoning, it is just as illogical to expect a residence boiler to economically heat a greenhouse.

The Burnham was the first cast iron boiler designed and made by a greenhouse concern especially for greenhouse work.

The usual apathy in business continues, but at most of the stores the clerks are finishing their schedule of vacations and preparations are being made for the regular overhauling and renovation of the store interiors. Reports from the growers indicate good crops next season.

Various Notes.

Albert E. Brownell is making an extensive exhibition of dahlias at the Seekonk Gardens, at Jacobs Hill, Seekonk.

Charles Smith, with Joseph Koppelman, went to New York August 29 to meet his wife, who returned from Jaffa, Turkey, after a four months' visit to her father. Mrs. Smith is a sister of Mr. Koppelman.

M. Macnair continues to have novel and attractive window displays.

Patrick K. Sweeney had a narrow escape from serious injury a few days ago. He was passing a store on Weybosset street when a heater connected with a soda fountain blew up and a heavy brass sign, thrown violently across the sidewalk, just missed him.

Album OF Designs

[SECOND EDITION]

It sold so much better than was expected that the First Edition, intended to last a year, was sold out in eight months.

This Album was published in response to many requests from Florists who felt the need for an up-to-date book to be used in taking orders for Funeral Designs, Wedding Decorations and Bouquets, Table Decorations and all cut flower work where it is not practicable to show the customer the finished article as it will be when ready for use. With this Album you can show the finished work, in beautifully printed pictures.

The Album has been THOROUGHLY REVISED for the Second Edition and contains a large number of designs not shown in the wonderfully successful First Edition.

NINETY-SIX PAGES, nearly 300 designs and decorations, beautifully printed on heavy glazed paper, handsomely bound in a cover that will stand wear.

75c PER COPY POSTPAID

$6.00 PER DOZEN BY EXPRESS

The price has not been raised for the Second Edition, although everybody says the First Edition was worth more money, and this is a better book in every way.

Various Notes.

The cut flower business of the Minneapolis Floral Co. increases each year. The wholesale trade of this company extends through the northwest and over a large area of Canada. The plant, which is on the trolley line which runs to Lakes Harriet and Minnetonka, attracted the attention of many of the convention visitors.

Will Bros. have now twenty-four greenhouses, covering an area of 225,000 square feet. Their specialties are carnations, roses and chrysanthemums; of these they now have 95,000, 30,000 and 30,000 plants respectively.

September 1 saw William F. Holmes established in his new store at 8 South Seventh street. His business has grown rapidly since he began a year ago on Nicollet avenue.

The L. S. Donaldson Co., of which William D. Desmond is the florist manager, finds it a profitable plan to grow the supply of flowers for the retail trade, and the plant covers over three city blocks.

Although Tom Lynes has only been at his present location in East Minneapolis for two years, he is one of the pioneer florists of the Twin Cities, having been in the business for twenty-two years.

Another old establishment is that of Theo. W. Nagel, at 1118 West Lake street, which was begun twenty-five years ago. The present proprietor learned the trade from his father, the late Eggert Nagel, who was one of the best known florists in the northwest.

Mr. Wessling, proprietor of the Lake-wood Greenhouses, received his initiation into the florists' trade in Germany, and worked for a number of years on the continent before coming to this country.

Rice Bros. now has the name of being the largest florists' supply house in the northwest. Their new location, which they have now occupied for about a year, contains all the up-to-date lines.

R. A. Latham is still growing in business at the shop at 83 Tenth street, which he has occupied for the last ten years.

The business of the Vine Grove Nursery Co., where Arthur M. Shepherd has been in charge since the retirement of his father two years ago, is devoted mainly to the city trade. The beautifying of the grounds of clubs and private residences is the specialty of this firm.

FARMERS & FLORISTS TANKAGE FERTILIZER

It is acknowledged by the majority of florists and farmers of the United States to be the best balanced commercial fertilizer manufactured. It carries in its composition a percentage of the ten Basic Salts constituting soil, and it would be an impossibility to use it on any farm, field, lawn or bench without enhancing fertility and productivity. It carries a very high percentage of the principal plant foods, as certified in its guaranteed analysis of:—Nitrogen 2.90%, Ammonia $3\frac{1}{2}$ to 4%, Phosphoric Acid 8 to 10% and Potash 3%.

Our AETNA BRAND OF TANKAGE FERTILIZER is giving universal satisfaction wherever used, and as we believe in the law of live and let live, and that honesty is the best policy, we have placed this fertilizer within the reach of all growers at the low figure of $22.00 a ton, f. o. b. The Market.

Rain has come at last. A good, heavy shower, August 29, did a great deal of good to outdoor stock. Asters are plentiful, but the aster bugs are proving a great pest this fall; they are destroying some of the finest aster blooms in great quantities. Late asters are beginning to arrive now. Gladioli are still in excellent condition. Roses are decidedly improved. Killarney and White Killarney are much larger now. Mrs. Aaron Ward and Milady are coming into the market in large quantities. Mexican poppies are abundant and will last until the frost comes. Harrisii lilies are coming in again, but there is little demand for them. Japanese lilies in pink and white are seen occasionally but the supply is not heavy.

Various Notes.

James Morrison has returned from Milwaukee, Wis., where he spent his vacation. He has a great many things to say in praise of the west.

Albert Phelps, rose grower for M. Aitken, is producing some good Mrs. Aaron Ward roses, and he also has a fine crop of Milady, which will soon be ready to cut.

Arthur Cowee, of Berlin, N. Y., is shipping some of his fine gladioli to the Worthy hotel, in this city. Mr. Cowee had a wonderful display of his gladioli at the convention in Minneapolis.

Last week hundreds of people were seen in front of the new store of Mark Aitken, watching the rare birds which were on display in a mammoth brass cage in the window.

The double funeral of Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Porter gave the leading florists quite a bit of work, August 29, as did also the Marsh and Pierce funerals later in the month.

All the florists closed their stores at noon on Labor day.

N. F. Higgins sold his store, known as the Flower Mart, on North Main street, to H. W. Alpin, who reports business rushing at present. Mr. Alpin is thinking of taking C. A. Reynolds into partnership. E. C. A.

Charlotte, N. C.—W. W. Scholtz has completed a two-story building with a rough stucco exterior for a display house. The furnishings are all of the most up-to-date type and make a good-looking store. F. W. Miller, the designer for this firm, has just returned from New York, where he spent a week or more in the florists' establishments.

EVERY conservatory problem is a different problem, simply because practically every house is different. The mere fact that they should always be located on the southward side of the house oftentimes makes a very arbitrary condition, difficult to overcome.

The Market.

Trade has been extremely dull for the last few weeks, except for funerals, as so many people leave the city at this time. The drought has been fearful and outside flowers are scarce as well as inferior. Carnations are almost an unknown quantity. Indeed, it has been hard to meet the demand with good blooms of any kind.

Various Notes.

Jim Coursey is building two houses, 25 x 100 feet. One of them he proposes to plant in sweet peas. He has a fine lot of ferns, a pet plant of his. His pot plants are handled by H. G. Hastings & Co.

The Atlanta Floral Co. moved to the new quarters on Peachtree street September 1. This company has in the course of construction a greenhouse, 36 x 310 feet, to be used for forcing roses, and is also planning to grow perennials outside for cutting, in order to meet its ever increasing trade.

The West View Floral Co. has recently changed hands. The present lessee is R. I. Gresham, who also manages the uptown office of the C. A. Dahl Co.

We are glad to report a great improvement in the health of Ed. Wachendorff, of Wachendorff Bros. He has been on the sick list for some time. We were much pleased with his latest house, a strong, beautiful structure, affording ample light.

The Alto-Vista Floral Co. has quarters in the fine new Ausley hotel. The company has purchased the plant of the Ponce De Leon Floral Co., and moved the stock and house to its plant on Sells avenue. The firm recently built a new house, 26 x 100 feet, and will soon build a house for geraniums.

We regret to write of the ill health of one of our oldest florists, John J. Logue. A serious trouble with his eyes has prevented his attention to business.

A new enterprise under the name of the Marwood Gardens is being opened up on Sells avenue. The firm aims to grow roses and hardy plants for the mail-order business. The proprietors are Miss H. E. Martin and Miss S. J. Wood. M. B. W.

The Atlanta Floral Co. has purchased a six-acre tract on the Kirk road for $7,875 and will erect greenhouses on the land.

Fargo, N. D.—The Shotwell Floral Co. is building a 10-foot addition to the north side of the present building, which will contain a conservatory and palm room. The present office and refrigerator are also being enlarged in order to accommodate the firm's growing business.

{ NOTE THE RINGS WHICH APPEAR AT ONE FOOT INTERVALS TO FACILITATE QUICK AND ACCURATE MEASURING }

RINGMETER—The Garden Hose for FLORISTS' Use

BECAUSE:

It is made in continuous lengths of 500 feet furnished on reels—no need of thinking of wasteful short ends.

Rings of rubber appear every foot and being spaced exactly one foot apart makes it self-measuring. Just count one ring for every foot as you unwind the reel. Quick and accurate. Does away with mistakes.

The utmost care enters into the construction; only the best of materials and workmanship are used, in conjunction with the latest improved machinery.

Prices are right. RINGMETER is the Garden Hose to show you economy. Strong, durable and quality that spells long service.

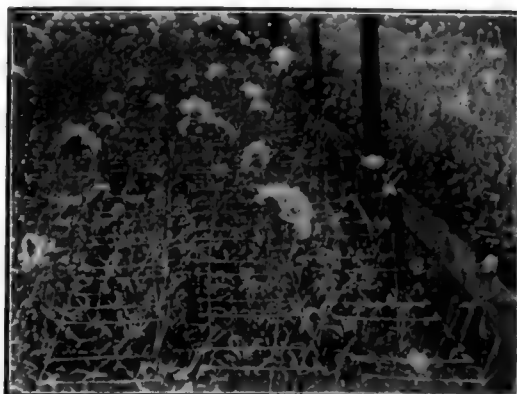

Made in three sizes: $\frac{3}{4}$ -inch, $\frac{5}{8}$ -inch and $\frac{1}{2}$ -inch.

There is nothing in Goodrich Advertising That Isn't in Goodrich Goods

Ordinary garden hose won't serve for florists' use very long or very well

A man with a little piece of green-sward may get along with an ordinary grade of garden hose—not so with the florist. His is a case of needing a good tool with which to do good work—a need filled by these brands of

Goodrich Hose

Our Akron brand is a three-ply live rubber hose, flexible and strong. Supplied in lengths up to 500 feet.

Our Florists' brand is a four-ply hose of wrapped duck construction and has extra heavy cover.

*Glad to send you a sample of either or both

TO GROWERS:

T Having decided to resume business as a WHOLESALE FLORIST, I wish to notify my friends that I have secured the store at 53 W. 28th St., New York, which is well adapted to the requirements of a wholesale florist's business, and is IN THE CENTER OF THE CUT FLOWER MARKET DISTRICT.

Consignments of stock are solicited, and consignors are assured that their consignments will be handled with a full knowledge of market conditions and to the best advantage.

An experience extending over 25 years in the cut flower commission business justifies me in the assertion that all consignments entrusted to me will have the same attention that growers themselves could give to their products in open market, plus the assurance which comes from an intimate knowledge of the trade and trade conditions in New York.

Our facilities are such that consignments, great or small, will be well cared for, and the handling of all flowers will be in the direction of the best returns to be offered by the market.

Correspondence solicited.

THE DAHLIA AND THE RETAIL FLORIST

A flower that is living down a reputation for uselessness to retailers and coming into its own for a brief season each year

THIS is the height of the dahlia season, but how many retailers are using the September queen? A good many, to be sure, but not nearly so many as should. It is worth more attention than it gets, in flower stores.

The dahlia has had to live down a reputation—still has it to live down, one might say, for far too many store men think of the dahlia as a fine old-fashioned flower, excellent in its place in grandmother's garden, but not a commercial cut flower to put on the counter with the rose and the carnation. Really, that is an old-fashioned idea. The modern dahlia has a place beside the modern rose.

Millions of Dahlias.

The season of the dahlia is brief. It begins early in September, is at its height in the latter part of the month, and lasts until frost cuts the plants. During this time the big growers of dahlia roots market millions of flowers, but there are only a small number of florists using them, a small number, that is, in comparison with those who might handle dahlias to their own profit and the satisfaction of their customers.

The east is the section in which the modern dahlia has been given the greatest measure of appreciation. The biggest dahlia farms are there, although there are some large growers in the west, and the dahlia as a cut flower has come into considerable favor in Buffalo, Pittsburgh and eastward. Philadelphia and New York are the markets where the greatest quantities are sold.

One point that is a little surprising is that in most cities where the dahlia is used the stores handling it are generally the ones with the high class trade rather than the ones with the popular class of patronage; the aristocratic class of trade appears to hold no prejudice against the flower, while many of "the common people" consider it to be as plebeian as themselves and prefer roses or carnations, recognized greenhouse products.

The public may need further educating to a thorough appreciation of the dahlia as a cut flower, but the chief obstacle to its general use is the old-time difficulty of getting shipments through in good condition. It is an easily bruised flower and does not ship well in hot weather. As soon as cool days arrive, however, it is a much better traveler and New Jersey dahlias then go long distances. The wholesalers, shippers have learned how to pack them so they will travel.

Popular Uses.

The dahlia is a good seller as a loose cut flower. By far the larger part of the great quantities that will be sold in the next two to four weeks will be handed on to the public as loose cut flowers, either in dollar boxes or in other counter sales. For designs and bouquets the dahlia is not well adapted. But as a decorative flower for autumn store openings or for dances, receptions and the like there is nothing better. Used in combination with autumn foliage and for harvest effects, a wise choice of varieties permits of the use of color schemes not otherwise easily available and leads to a result that seldom fails to give satisfaction—satisfactory to the customer because of the admiration the work evokes and satisfactory to the decorator because the profit is good.

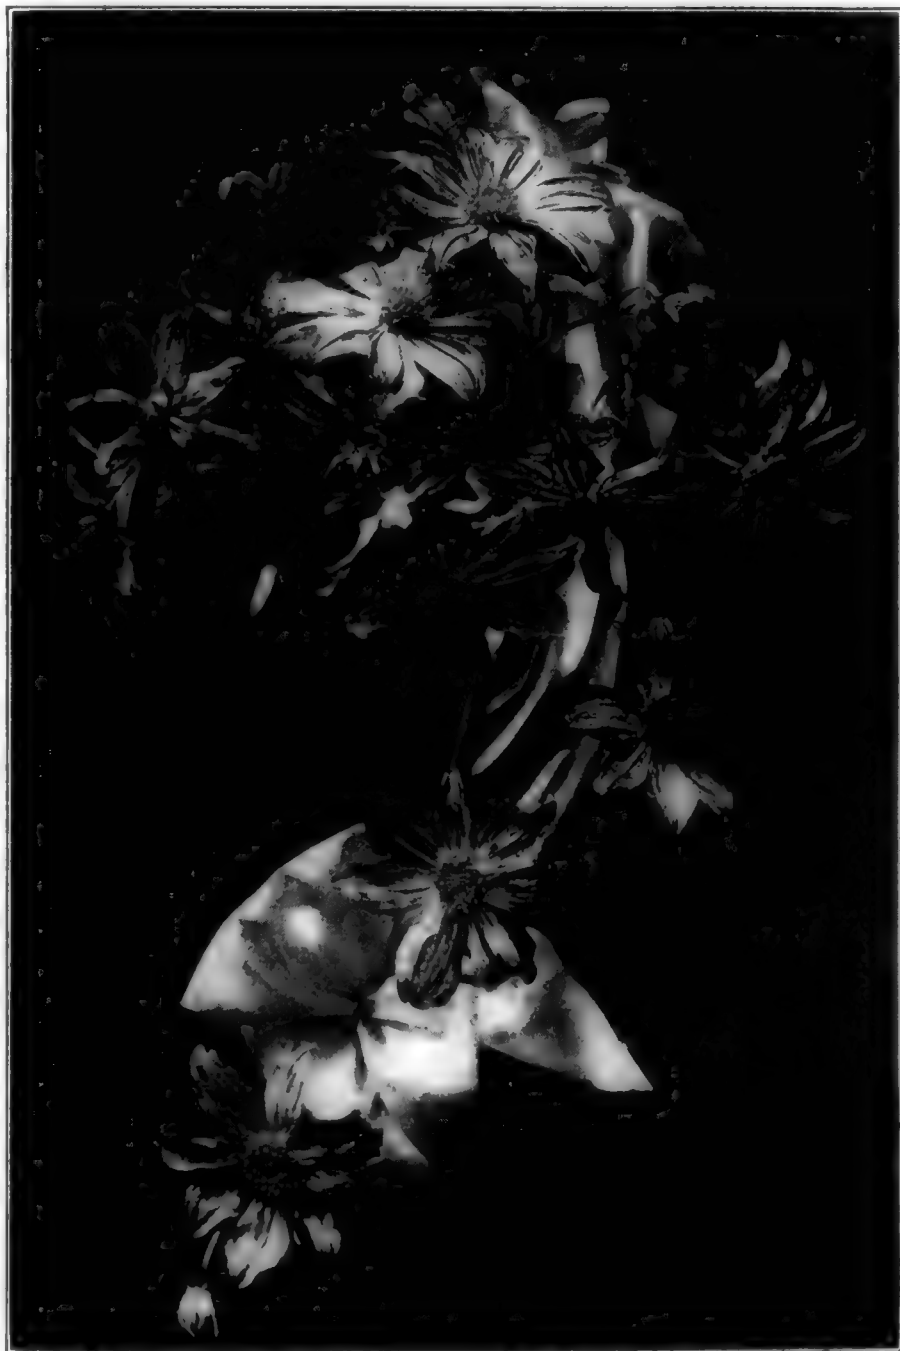

The Types.

Dahlias also are splendidly adapted to vase and basket work; wherever bright colors and bold effects are desired the big decorative type of dahlias is useful; where something lighter is needed the cactus varieties are what are wanted, while for table work there is nothing in the whole floral kingdom that can be used more successfully than can the single dahlias. Indeed, it may almost be said that the rise of the dahlias as a florists' flower dates from the introduction of the Twentieth Century, the variety used by W. J. Palmer & Son, Buffalo, in the basket arrangement illustrated on page 10. Since the advent of the original Century a considerable number of other varieties of the type have made their appearance, so that there now is a rather wide range of color available in this light, graceful flower.

The Varieties.

You can not order dahlias by name, the way one does roses. Some of the growers catalogue hundreds of varieties and many of the wholesalers do not too, have found the dahlia such an important item that they have made a study of packing and shipping, recognizing that, if cattleyas can be shipped successfully half across the continent, surely dahlias should go anywhere they are likely to be wanted. They do, too, when the weather is cool. Bruising is avoided by careful handling, and the know one from another; they are too numerous to sell by name. But it is the case at most sources of supply that a few of the most popular varieties are grown in much larger quantity than are the others on the list, and these can be ordered by name. Every retailer, and especially those who feel the need of adding novelty to their stock, should study the use of dahlias, noting the varieties that are best liked, and instruct the clerks to sell them by name. No matter what Shakespeare thought about names—he was talking about fragrance, not sales—there is nothing that helps sell flowers like having a good name for each and calling it by its name. Dahlias, moreover, have high sounding, mellifluous cognominal appellations that will make a hit if they are properly used.

The Single Dahlias are Wonderfully Effective.

Speaking of varieties, one of the large eastern handlers, asked to name the six best sellers, said:

"It is hard to pick out six dahlias and call them the most popular. I should say that Delice, pink; Yellow Duke, yellow; Geisha, red and yellow; Kriemhilde, pink; White Swan or John Walker, white, and McCullough, bronze, are among the popular varieties coming into this city, but there are possibly a dozen others that are as much called for as those named."

How to Pack.

"In reference to packing," said the same shipper, "we usually pack two layers to a box. Corrugated boxes are used, from five to six inches in height, forty inches long and sixteen inches wide, holding from 200 to 300 dahlias, according to the kind and flower. We can ship them in this manner, we believe, to Chicago. We certainly ship them to all the big cities east of Chicago and get them there in good order. We do believe this, however, that the dahlias that come from Jersey are possibly of better substance than those grown in other localities and it is possible that for that reason they are better shippers."

PROPAGATING BEDDING PLANTS.

Cool nights are already here, and frost sufficient to kill tender bedding plants comes during September in many states. Cool evenings even a few degrees above freezing will cause loss of foliage or its discoloration on such plants as coleus, achyranthes and alternantheras. Therefore a good batch of cuttings should now be placed in flats of sandy loam. No need to use a propagating bench, as they will all root freely in the flats if well watered and shaded from direct sunlight for a few days. Putting in batches of cuttings is vastly better than lifting old plants; the latter get full of mealy bug, especially in the case of coleus, and are not easy to keep clean. In addition to the plants named, such tropical or sub-tropical bedding plants as crotons, colored dracenas, acalyphas, dieffenbachias, Pandanus Veitchii, P. Sanderiana, etc., can all be rooted now without bottom heat if the propagating house is kept close and the sand in the benches is well watered.

DISEASES OF THE VIOLET.

[Extracts from a paper by Dr. Donald Reddick, of Ithaca, N. Y., read before the Massachusetts Horticultural Society.]

As with most other plants brought under cultivation, the violet either has brought with it or has become subject to some serious fungous parasites. Some of the spot diseases of the violet are fairly common in the wild, but have come into prominence only as the violet has become of commercial importance. Other more obscure or inconspicuous diseases, as for example the root disease, have either escaped attention entirely or have been a later development. In any case it is certain that fungous parasites do not have the opportunity to become widespread and destructive in the wild that they do with the artificial conditions under which they are propagated in glass houses. When propagation is done by the violet culturist, there is no opportunity for natural selection of strong or resistant plants by the survival of the fittest, as occurs in nature. As a result we see certain diseases becoming of more and more importance under present intensive methods of propagation, while one at least has become extremely serious.

To understand fully the peculiar importance of the relation of cultural conditions to the diseases under consideration, some knowledge of the way in which violets are propagated and grown commercially is necessary.

Culture as Related to Disease.

In commercial violet culture the grower is busy at all times in the year. Almost daily there are operations which have a direct bearing upon the occurrence and the severity of disease.

At the present time the violet is propagated almost exclusively by means of cuttings. These cuttings are taken from apparently healthy plants in the beds shortly after the warm weather of spring. The strong terminal tips are cut to four or five buds, the larger leaves are removed with a sharp knife and the cutting is dropped into a pail of fresh water. The preparation of cuttings is almost invariably done by women and children, often at home in the evening. When a sufficient quantity of the cuttings is accumulated, they are stuck into moist sand at a distance of an inch apart and in rows approximately two inches apart. The sand is then wet down thoroughly. The sand for this purpose is generally obtained fresh each year from the sand pit. If satisfactory conditions are maintained, a large percentage of the cuttings may strike roots within a few weeks.

In the meantime the old plants in the houses, along with the soil to the depth of six, eight or ten inches, have been removed. New soil, or soil which has grown some other crop for three or four years, is drawn in. To this a large but varying amount of manure is added and thoroughly mixed with the soil in the beds by repeated turnings with the fork. Plants are taken from the sand and sorted into firsts and seconds. The beds are set with firsts, the popular distance of planting being 9x9 inches. A number of the seconds are placed between the other plants, to be used as reserves in case any plants die.

Moisture and Temperature.

When the plants have become established in the soil they are cultivated from week to week with a tool commonly known as a five-finger. Great care is used in watering and ventilating. Many growers think the secret of their success lies in careful attention to these two details, although, as a matter of fact, one can often find two successful growers who employ quite different methods in this respect. Cultivation continues until it is time to permit the runners to spread over the intervening space. By autumn the entire surface of the soil is covered with a mat of interwoven runners and this matting increases as the season progresses.

The temperature most favorable for violet culture lies between 35 and 45 degrees. When the warm spring days arrive, the plants begin to decline and the returns are no longer profitable. It is to be noticed that the plants are grown in a rich soil, that the houses are kept covered with a coat of lime to reduce the amount of light, and that the plants require a large amount of water. These conditions resemble quite closely the conditions under which the violet plant grows naturally. The point, however, which most growers do not seem to bear in mind is the fact that the violet in the wild usually grows in open woods, where the roots of trees and shrubs take away great quantities of moisture.

Root Rot, or Thielavia.

While there are a number of diseases of the violet, some of which I shall discuss a little later, the one of greatest importance at present is, without question, the so-called thielavia disease, or root rot. Indeed, with growers of violets in New York state the importance of this disease so greatly overshadows any others that it is often spoken of as "the violet disease." Many of our growers refer to it as black rot; others as black root or root rot.

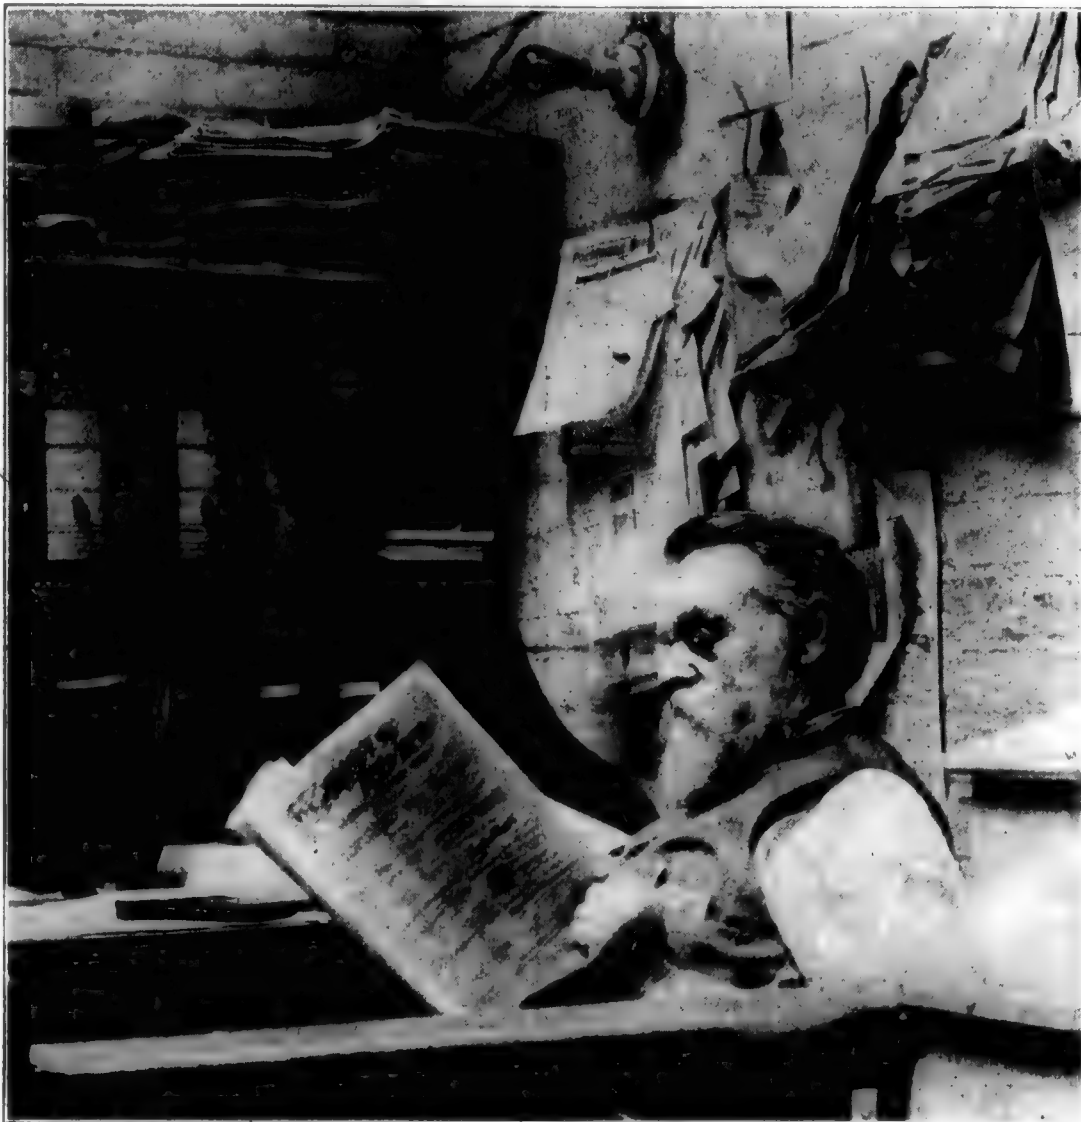

Although the violet is the host plant in which we are particularly concerned, it is to be noted that this disease is not confined to the violet alone, as is often the case with diseases of plants, but occurs on a wide range of hosts; almost every year sees an increase in the list of host plants.

Some of the most important plants upon which the disease has been reported to occur are violets, sweet peas, field peas, cyclamens and asters. The disease has received most attention, however, on account of its ravages on the roots of tobacco both in Europe and America.

Destructiveness of Root Rot.

Where the root rot, or thielavia disease, may have first occurred remains in doubt. It was certainly present in England in 1850, in Germany in 1876

"WHO'S WHO—AND WHY"

B. SCHROETER.

IT WAS 3,400 years ago, more or less, that the Hebrew sage uttered the oft-repeated words: "The days of our years are threescore years and ten; and if by reason of strength they be fourscore years, yet is their strength labor and sorrow." Is there any good basis for the assertion, also frequently repeated, that the human race has sadly degenerated physically, and the average length of life has sadly diminished, during those thousands of years? If the manhood of the present suffers so greatly by comparison with the manhood of the long-distant past, there are plenty of exceptional cases. For instance, B. Schroeter, of Detroit, Mich., celebrated his seventy-second birthday a few weeks ago and the years of his life are still years of labor, but there is no evidence of increasing sorrow, but rather of tranquillity and contentment. It is stated that "he is on the job every day, from early morn until closing time." His son, Hugo Schroeter, who took the snapshot from which the accompanying portrait was prepared, says: "The picture shows my father in one of his familiar poses, sitting at his desk and employing his occasional moments of leisure in reading The Review, which he invariably peruses from cover to cover."

and in the United States in 1891. How many years it may have existed in all of these countries previous to the date of discovery is problematic. From the nature of the disease, one might be led to believe that it has existed for an indefinite period but simply has been unobserved. There is no evidence whatever to indicate that this is a disease that has been brought to us from another country.

One should not infer, from what has just been said, that the disease is of little economic importance, for this is not at all the case. It is almost invariably true, when any plant is brought under cultivation and is grown under conditions different from those under which it grows in the wild, that diseases of little importance under natural conditions become of considerable importance. In the case of the violet, for example, the losses from this disease are frequently great, but in its milder form it frequently is not recognized as a disease at all and losses occur without any particular comment. There is, of course, no way of making estimates of such losses; nor, indeed, is there any satisfactory way of estimating losses from severe injury except in cases where the whole planting is destroyed. It may be said, then, that the toll is sometimes rather small, at other times much larger, while occasionally the whole house may be lost.

know one from another; they are too numerous to sell by name. But it is the case at most sources of supply that a few of the most popular varieties are grown in much larger quantity than are the others on the list, and these can be ordered by name. Every retailer, and especially those who feel the need of adding novelty to their stock, should study the use of dahlias, noting the varieties that are best liked, and instruct the clerks to sell them by name. No matter what Shakespeare thought about names he was talking about fragrance, not sales. There is nothing that helps sell flowers like having a good name for each and calling it by its name. Dahlias, moreover, have high sounding, mellifluous cognominal appellations that will make a hit if they are properly used.

Speaking of varieties, one of the large eastern handlers, asked to name the six best sellers, said:

"It is hard to pick out six dahlias and call them the most popular. I should say that Delice, pink; Yellow Duke, yellow; Geisha, red and yellow; Kriemhilde, pink; White Swan or John Walker, white, and McCullough, bronze, are among the popular varieties coming into this city, but there are possibly a dozen others that are as much called for as those named."

How to Pack.

"In reference to packing," said the same shipper, "we usually pack two layers to a box. Corrugated boxes are used, from five to six inches in height, forty inches long and sixteen inches wide, holding from 200 to 300 dahlias, according to the kind and flower. We can ship them in this manner, we believe, to Chicago. We certainly ship them to all the big cities east of Chicago and get them there in good order. We do believe this, however, that the dahlias that come from Jersey are possibly of better substance than those grown in other localities and it is possible that for that reason they are better shippers."

PROPAGATING BEDDING PLANTS.

Cool nights are already here, and frost sufficient to kill tender bedding plants comes during September in many states. Cool evenings even a few degrees above freezing will cause loss of foliage or its discoloration on such plants as coleus, alysanthes and alternantheras. Therefore a good batch of cuttings should now be placed in flats of sandy loam. No need to use a propagating bench, as they will all root freely in the flats if well watered and shaded from direct sunlight for a few days. Putting in batches of cuttings is vastly better than lifting old plants; the latter get full of mealy bug, especially in the case of coleus, and are not easy to keep clean. In addition to the plants named, such tropical or sub-tropical bedding plants as crotons, colored arceuthobium, alysanthes, dieffenbachias, Pandanus Veitchii, P. Sanderiana, etc., can all be rooted now without bottom heat if the propagating house is kept close and the sand in the benches is well watered.

A GREENHOUSE POWER PLANT.

Mechanical Aids to the Grower.

If you did not see the caption of the illustration at the bottom of the page, you might take it for the power plant of a street railway. Or, perhaps, you would think it was the city water works. But it is neither; it is the boiler house and service building of a florist, the J. W. Davis Co., near Davenport, Ia. It serves to show how large a job it is to provide the heat and power for the mechanical working of a big greenhouse plant. Not merely the fact that it is a large plant makes this part of the work of so much importance; today there are a great many uses to which the grower puts his steam that a few years ago were unheard-of in the florists' business.

In the days gone by the majority of the growers turned off steam entirely during the summer, cleaned out the boilers and gave them a rest until the cool days of autumn. Nowadays it is the exceptional large grower who does not keep up his fires the year around. The cool evenings in many places, especially where there is a sea or lake breeze, make it of great advantage to have on hand a little steam, particularly to rose growers. These have found that the best preventive of mildew is driving out the warm, moisture-laden air in the early evening by turning on a little steam and opening the ventilators, instead of allowing the coolness of the night to condense the moisture in the air shut in under closed ventilators.

Putting Steam to Other Uses.

Since the custom has become general of carrying moderately high pressure on the boilers, brought down in the heating coils by a regulating valve, the steam has come to be used for dozens of other jobs than the original—heating. There are several kinds of pumps that can be run: water pumps, fertilizer pumps, vacuum pumps and pumps to return condensation to the boilers.

Then there is the dynamo, to light the place and furnish electrical power for various purposes, the soil mixer, the manure forks and the compressor of the refrigerating outfit. Some growers use every one of these mechanical aids in connection with their boiler plants. Indeed, the refrigerating apparatus is becoming almost a necessity. It is important in the handling of the cut, saving especially large sums in the case of sudden heat waves, but big places that force valley and lilies need the frozen rooms for the storage of pips and bulbs. Many growers who do not care to use their steam for power have found a refrigerating plant so valuable that they run it with central station current.

Power Supplies Many Services.

A plant the size of that of the J. W. Davis Co. requires many kinds of service that in this case are supplied by the company's own boiler plant. The boiler house and service building shown in the illustration supplies six houses, one propagating house 24x260, two houses 64½x600 and three houses 43x600, comprising in all well over 150,000 feet of glass. The service house itself is 50x140 feet, and is divided into two sections by a wall. The building is absolutely fireproof and a model of thorough construction, complete equipment and good arrangement. On one side of the wall are six Kewanee tubular boilers, which are shown in one of the illustrations. Each of these is of 150 horse-power, making 900 horse-power all told. Mr. Davis speaks highly of the Kewanee Boiler Co., Kewanee, Ill., and its output. Kewanee boilers are used in all the Davis family's places, at Morrison, Aurora and Ottawa, Ill., and in the two establishments at Davenport.

On the other side of the wall, as is shown in an illustration, are a number of appliances which make one wonder if he has strayed into an electric power plant. There is, first of all, a large dynamo that furnishes a large supply of electric power. Here are also the air compressor and the vacuum and water pumps.

Water Pumped by Compressed Air.

The supply of water comes from a deep well, out of which it is forced by compressed air. From the well it is forced directly into a large cistern and from there pumped directly to the mains under a pressure of 100 pounds.

The exhaust steam from all this machinery, which includes some small appliances not mentioned, is ordinarily sufficient to heat the houses. The Simonds vacuum system is used throughout the plant and one and one-half pounds of steam pressure were enough to heat the houses in the most severe weather last winter. The steam main is carried across the center of the houses, where there is a passageway eight feet wide, and the pipe is reduced as the flows for each house are taken off. The flows are carried on the purlin posts overhead and the returns on the walls.

Sidetrack Is a Valuable Feature.

At the time the plant was built a sidetrack was run into the grounds from the railroad which passes it. This was, of course, necessary when the materials for construction had to be shipped in. Now it is fully as valuable to handle the coal, of which the boilers consume many carloads in the course of a season. It is but one of the many features which the large grower must install, in order to keep up-to-date and handle a big business economically. In operating a range of such a size the amount of incidental materials and machinery will necessarily increase with the volume of actual results produced, even to the extent, perhaps, of making the service building look like a city's power plant.

Pumps, Engines and Machines at J. W. Davis Co. Plant.

SAVING STABLE MANURES.

An eminent authority on agricultural subjects has wisely stated, "There is one serious objection to the use of stable manure—there is never enough of it."

Florists have become large users of substitutes for cow manure simply for the reason that there is not an adequate supply of the natural article at a price the florist feels he can afford to pay. There has been a prejudice against horse manure, but this has been largely overcome, perhaps under the pressure of necessity, and in the vicinity of large cities many florists now use little else. The refuse of the city stables has become a commercial article of importance. With the increased demand, improved facilities for handling the article have been developed, some large company usually handling the principal stable cleanings of each city. For instance, the New York Stable Manure Co. removes from the horse stables of New York city several hundred tons of manure daily, the manure being loaded in cars and shipped direct to farmers on Pennsylvania railroad lines in the shipping season. During the summer months, however, when there is little or no demand for manure, the company is obliged to store it, the storage grounds being located on the Pennsylvania Railroad in New Jersey. The fresh manure is there unloaded by cranes and piled in heaps 900 feet long, fifty feet wide and from twenty-two to twenty-five feet high, where it remains from six to eight months, during which time, by natural fermentation, it becomes decomposed or well rotted. The heavy liquid seepage from the piles, diluted with water, is pumped back on the stored manure at intervals, which prevents loss of strength and of plant food elements, firetang and leaching. The well rotted manure near the bottoms of the heaps is put through a drying machine and pulverized, then being placed in bags of 100 pounds each for shipment.

There are similar concerns operating in other cities and all are successful. Perhaps one of the chief reasons why they have found florists among their chief patrons is that a good many greenhouses are so located that they are not permitted to handle fresh manure received in open cars. To these the dried, bagged article is a life-saver.

TIME FOR NICOTINE SPRAY.

Kindly inform us as to the best time of day for using a nicotine spray on chrysanthemums and carnations.

T. N.

The best day for spraying with any of the nicotine solutions is a cloudy day. This is not always possible during the mum growing season, so I would advise spraying late in the afternoon. When the sun is hot there is more danger of burning. During the winter, when the sun is weak, we do not pay much attention to this, but spray any time during the day. A. F. J. B.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Bouvardias.

Those useful early winter flowering plants, the bouvardias, are quite tender and must not be subjected to any temperature even approaching freezing. The foliage may not show any ill effects of a minimum of even 32 degrees, but the flowers will assuredly suffer. A bench in a house piped to maintain a minimum of 60 degrees will suit bouvardias. Endeavor to lift with a ball and all possible fibrous roots. Without a ball there is danger of the plants dying. Soak well with water, spray freely while hot weather continues and shade from direct sunshine until they become established.

That fine, pure white, sweet-scented variety, B. Humboldtii, grows much more vigorously than other sorts and should have more head room. A center solid bed suits it well, and, if fancy flowers are desired, rub out all the weaker shoots. In this way it is possible, with strong plants, to get trusses carried on 36-inch or even longer stems. Usually, however, shorter-stemmed stock proves more salable. B. Humboldtii also is excellent in pots, and for decorative purposes is specially desirable on account of its delicious night odor.

Cyclamens.

Cyclamens, which it is desired to have in flower from Thanksgiving to Christmas, should now be ready for their final potting. Those in 5-inch and 6-inch pots are the most salable, but there is also considerable call for large-sized plants. For early flowering the plants are now better kept in the greenhouses right along, but for late winter blooming the plants will be much stockier and can be more easily retarded in coldframes. With necessary mats or other protecting material for cold nights, cyclamens can be easily kept in coldframes until early November or even later. For the final potting use a compost consisting of three parts good fibrous loam and one part dry cow manure screened through a 1/2-inch screen, adding a 6-inch pot of Clay's fertilizer to each four bushels of compost. Some sharp sand and fine charcoal also are helpful, especially if the soil is heavy. Pot the plants moderately firm. Be careful not to cover the corms and give the plants a position just as near the glass as possible.

It is a good plan to give the plants a dip in a nicotine or soap solution when repotted for the last time, as a preventive or check to thrips and the dreaded cyclamen mite. Throw away at once any plants the foliage of which shows indications of the mite. It usually cleans out whole batches of plants.

If seed for another season is not yet sown, lose no time in getting it into the soil. Buy the best strains and the colors that are the most popular, such as pink, salmon and red, for Christmas, and white. Drain the flats or pans efficiently, put some coarse material over this and let the upper part be composed of leaf-mold, sand and a little loam finely screened. Lay the seeds down singly about one-half to three-fourths inches apart each way, just covering them with the compost. I like to place a thin layer of sand over this, otherwise the surface is liable to become slimy. Give the pans or flats a covering of glass and paper, and a night temperature of 60 to 65 degrees.

Poinsettias.

The last batch of poinsettia cuttings put in the propagating bench should be rooted now and these, potted off and later transferred several together into 6-inch and 8-inch pans, will make fine, dwarf plants for Christmas, just what the bulk of the buyers are looking for. Until after the middle of September, it does not make much difference what house or frame the poinsettias are in, for up to the time the bracts start to develop they do not require a high temperature. After that time, however, let the absolute minimum be 60 degrees. Then you are sure the bracts will be developed on time.

Careful watering is what poinsettias need. The grower who can produce plants with foliage down to the top of the soil when the bracts are developed is the one to whom we can afford to take our hats off, for seldom do we see such on the market. Leaving the little plants in small pots too long is another cause for foliage going off, but careless watering is the prime cause.

Primulas.

All varieties of winter-flowering primulas are now making much more rapid growth, and they will need attention in potting before the balls become too hard and matted. Use a light, but fairly rich compost for the final potting. There is no place so good for primulas for some weeks yet as a coldframe with the pots plunged, or partly plunged, in clean coal ashes, removing the sashes on cloudy days and at night unless heavy rains threaten. Pinch off all flowers which appear and look out for green worms, which are at this season destructive on the young growths. These sometimes will be entirely eaten out before the grower knows anything is amiss, unless a careful search is made, especially on obconicas. Plants of P. obconica wanted for Christmas should be placed in a carnation temperature by the middle of September.

Show Pelargoniums.

Show pelargoniums which have been rested and pruned back fairly hard should be shaken out and repotted as soon as they start to break away again. Shake the soil clean away and shorten back the long roots. Use a fibrous compost containing some fine cow manure and a little bone. All the plants can go into pots one or two sizes smaller than they flowered in. They will do well in a coldframe for some time, with the sashes removed altogether except in the case of torrential rains.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

INFESTED WITH MEALY BUG.

You will find enclosed a spray of plumosus and a chrysanthemum, with a white, mossy substance covering them. We shall greatly appreciate any information about this disease. What shall we do to rid the plants of it? There is a great deal of it on our mums and it seems to spread rapidly. It is also getting started on the plumosus. We first noticed it on some coleus. The coleus plants were soon covered and they died. The mums are sixty feet from the plumosus and coleus.

E. F. C.

The insect infesting the plumosus and mums is our old friend the mealy bug, and E. F. C. evidently has a good supply of the pest. Mealy bug is hard to eradicate. It is claimed by some growers that fumigating with cyanide will absolutely clean it out. I have never used this gas and so am not in a position to state as to its merits, but if E. F. C. will be careful in its use it will be worth while to try it. Fumigation with tobacco has little effect on mealy bug. Spraying with tobacco extracts, unless these are extra strong, is not of much use either. Anything in the house that is not of value should be cut down and burned, because mealy bug, when so bad that the coleus is infested, is a serious matter to overcome.

TWO QUERIES ON LEAF MINERS.

Enclosed you will find a sample of something that is destroying the foliage on my mums. I shall be thankful to you if you will tell me what to do to destroy the pest.

H. W. L.

Enclosed you will find two mum leaves. Between the tissues of the leaves are some small maggots. This pest is doing a great deal of damage to our mum foliage. Can you give us a remedy? It appears that a fly of some kind lays the eggs for these maggots inside the leaf; otherwise we cannot understand the cause. We shall be thankful to you for an early reply.

S. S.

The chrysanthemums of H. W. L. and of S. S. are suffering from the same pest. The insect deposits its eggs between the tissues of the leaf and the maggot eats all the center out of the leaf, leaving the upper and lower sections of the leaf as a protection for itself. The most familiar example of the work of such insects is seen in the celery plants outside, where what is known as the celery fly, or Tephritis onopordinis, works precisely in the manner described. Where the foliage can be dispensed with, the best way is to pick off all the affected leaves and burn them. However, if the pests are numerous and it is necessary to retain the foliage, the best method may be to go over the leaves carefully and squeeze the maggots between the thumb and forefinger. It is of little use to spray or fumigate, because, as already stated, the insect leaves the upper and lower skin of the leaf as a protection for itself, and tobacco extracts strong enough to work through the tissue would also injure the leaf. SCALE ON OUTDOOR MUMS.

I see by The Review of September 4, page 12, that H. M., of Louisiana, is bothered with scale on his outdoor mums and is unable to get rid of the trouble. I have had some experience with scale on other plants and find that a spray of alcohol and water is effective, used in the proportion of one ounce of alcohol to one quart of water. Use any sprayer that is suitable. I would advise H. M. to try only a little of the spray at first and note the effect. This spray will exterminate mealy bugs also. I would advise washing the plants with a good, strong force of water about one hour after using the alcohol spray. If H. M. tries this remedy I should like to hear about the result.

stakes five or six feet apart and then string light jute twine from post to post every few inches as they grow. If, however, you can get it conveniently, brush is decidedly the best support.

Some growers use double rows to a trench, a foot apart. In this case one trellis down the center of the row suffices for both. I have never found any advantage, however, in the double-row plan. Much more depends on giving the individual plants plenty of room. They should be four to six inches apart in the rows, and if really fancy blooms are needed, they should have even more space. It is well to remember that sweet peas, if given sufficient room, will branch like a bush fern, near the ground. That is impossible, of course, when they are crowded in the rows.

COLUMBUS, O.

The State Fair.

Trade was rather quiet, as fair week never adds much to the florists' till. While there were immense crowds in the city, the majority were sight-seers only. The weather was ideal for the fair. There was no rain during the whole week, which is something unusual. The displays in general were decidedly creditable and they promise to give us even a better fair next year. The following is a list of the winners in the florists' department:

- Collection of palms—Livingston Seed Co., first; Sherman Stephens, second.
- Specimen palm—Sherman Stephens, first; Livingston Seed Co., second.
- Collection of ferns—The Indianola Florists, first; Livingston Seed Co., second.
- Collection of variegated foliage plants—The Indianola Florists, first; Livingston Seed Co., second.
- Collection of stove and greenhouse plants—The Indianola Florists, first; Livingston Seed Co., second.
- Collection of asters in pots—Livingston Seed Co., first.
- Basket of plants—Livingston Seed Co., first; the Indianola Florists, second.
- Vase of plants—Livingston Seed Co., first; the Indianola Florists, second.
- Hanging basket—Livingston Seed Co., first; the Indianola Florists, second.
- Asparagus plumosus—Livingston Seed Co., first; the Indianola Florists, second.
- Collection of geraniums—The Indianola Florists, first; Livingston Seed Co., second.
- Porch box—The Indianola Florists, first; Livingston Seed Co., second.
- Rubber plant—The Indianola Florists, first; Livingston Seed Co., second.
- Collection of cannaes—The Indianola Florists, first; Livingston Seed Co., second.
- Dining table—The Indianola Florists, first; Livingston Seed Co., second; Mrs. Hope Bell, third.
- Pair of bouquets—Livingston Seed Co., first; the Indianola Florists, second.
- Dining table vase—Livingston Seed Co., first; the Indianola Florists, second.
- Dining table vase, not over twelve inches high—Livingston Seed Co., first; the Indianola Florists, second.
- Large festival design—Livingston Seed Co., first; the Indianola Florists, second.
- Collection of small designs—Livingston Seed Co., first; the Indianola Florists, second.
- Large funeral design—The Indianola Florists, first; Livingston Seed Co., second.
- Display of cut roses—Livingston Seed Co., first.
- Display of cut carnations—Livingston Seed Co., first.
- Display of cut asters—Livingston Seed Co., first.
- Display of gladioli—Joe Coleman, Lexington, O., first; Livingston Seed Co., second.
- Twenty-five varieties of cut flowers—Sherman Stephens, first; the Indianola Florists, second; Livingston Seed Co., third.

The Storrs & Harrison Co., of Painesville, O., made a fine display of trees, shrubs, etc., with the house beautiful standing in one corner, with its drives, and its clumps of shrubbery, etc., along the drives and walks and miniature fence. Taking it as a whole, it was an exceptionally neat display and attracted a great deal of attention. J. M.

FALL SOWING OF SWEET PEAS.

I wish to plant my sweet pea seed this fall. Would October 1 be soon enough to sow the seed, in this Alabama climate? Would the peas be benefited by using some other manure with the cow manure in preparing the soil? H. C.

In your latitude, I would not sow the sweet peas before November 1. It is better to sow them just before freezing weather. They will succeed best if you dig out trenches two feet deep and two to two and one-half feet wide, mixing cow manure thoroughly with the soil. Some fine bone and potash, such as muriate of potash, can also be added with advantage. It would be well to prepare these trenches as early as possible, to allow the soil to get settled before sowing. You will find that you will get far finer flowers, produced over a much longer period, from trenches than from land simply manured and plowed in the ordinary way. C. W.

TRENCHES FOR SWEET PEAS.

Is good, old, thoroughly rotted horse manure, such as comes from the beds in our mushroom houses, suitable for preparing trenches for sweet peas? I intend to make a number of these trenches for outdoor sweet peas for spring blooming. Kindly inform me how to make the trenches, stating what kind of manure or compost to use, and what kind of trellis. Do you plant more than one row in a trench two feet wide? If you plant a double row, do you use one or two trellises? I am located in Michigan. E. A. R.

While cow manure is the best manure for sweet peas, well rotted horse manure will give excellent results. The rows should be four and one-half to five feet apart. To prepare trenches properly, dig them out to a depth and width of twenty-four to thirty inches. Do not throw up any poor bottom material, however; rather leave it in and mix it with any old coarse manure. Throw out all the other soil and commence refilling by throwing in a layer of manure and then a layer of soil. Mix these with a digging fork. This is not always done, but a proper mixing of soil and manure gives better results. Continue this until the trench is filled somewhat higher than the surrounding soil, to allow for settling.

Remove all stones and gravel which may be near the surface. In addition to the horse manure, scatter in some bone meal as you proceed with the filling; also a little muriate of potash, sulphate of potash, or even wood ashes. Leave the top of the trench somewhat rough, as then frost and rain will penetrate and improve the soil more. If you have clayey soil or subsoil, use considerable coarse litter or manure toward the lower part of the trenches. Of course you can get good peas by trenching to a less depth and width than stated, but if you can afford time to prepare the trenches as suggested, I am sure it will repay you.

By far the best support for sweet peas is brush or tops of boughs of some kind, such as birch, hazel, beech, or almost any deciduous trees; the birch in a young state is probably the best. In many cases, however, brush is practically unobtainable, and then coarse wire netting, six feet in height, is the best to use. The netting must be fastened by staples to posts driven into the ground about eighteen inches, at intervals of about eight feet. This makes a good support. It costs much more than brush, but can be rolled up and used for several years. Still another way of supporting peas is to drive

NEW YORK.

The Market.

There is no encouraging evidence of convalescence in the cut flower market. Up to the present the universal assertion has been continued depression, with no hope of life and strength before October. Some of the old-timers are quite pessimistic as to the coming season. But the outlook is much the same as last year and every year at this time; the clouds will soon vanish. I anticipate a wonderfully prosperous business season in all departments of the trade.

The shipments of roses increase daily, quality is slowly manifesting itself, and anything first-class finds a ready sale. American Beauty roses are abundant and prices low. Shawyer and Milady grow in favor. There will be no lack of novelties in the rose market this winter, and New York will do its share in popularizing any kinds of real merit. There is nothing new to report concerning carnations. Only a small advance guard of the new crop is yet seen. Another week should see a fair supply of these arriving, after which the flood.

Lilies had a good week and were pretty well cleaned up by Saturday. Anything worthwhile brought $6 per hundred. Valley is steady at present quotations and cattleyas have continued to demand excellent prices, their scarcity continuing. Larger shipments, greater variety and lower prices are inevitable. The less said about dahlias, asters and gladioli now the better. There has been a tremendous waste, and it is not over. Mums are coming fast, and begin to show character and beauty.

Club Meeting.

The attendance at the initial meeting of this season of the New York Florists' Club was fair, over sixty being present. Chairman Weathered gave a partial report on the flower show expenditures of the entertainment committee, the complete record to be made at the October meeting. Chairman Kessler's report for the outing committee showed a small deficiency, the receipts being $735.05 and the expenditures $764.05. Mr. Bunyard, for the transportation committee, figured out the cost of the trip for refreshments at so much per capita, per hour and per mile, showing a total of $114 expended on the way, and a balance of $14 necessary for reimbursement, which the club gladly endorsed. Messrs. Westwood, Dailey, Stumpp and Perkins were elected to membership and G. V. Nash and J. P. Dahlborn were proposed.

The exhibits of the evening were a vase of Helene mums by C. H. Totty, an early outdoor variety of pink and white variegation; a splendid collection of dahlias by John Lewis Childs, including Dee-Lighted, an immense white, named for ex-President Roosevelt; and a splendid assortment from Thos. Head, of the Bergenfield Nurseries, staged by the foreman, Wm. Saville, including ten varieties of his 1914 collection. This collection comprises Splendor, lake with flame center; Dorothy Head, salmon pink; Magician, light pink and carmine; Belvedere, lilac, shaded yellow; Lilacina, lilac; Ameer, red shaded yellow; The Author, terra cotta; Princess Julianna, white decorative; Collarette Rheinkrone, crimson, white collar; Picador, blush shaded lilac; Hortulanus Budde, orange red; Geisha, Germania, Bertha von Suttner, Belfast Gem, Betty, Pembroke, Caecilia, Cochineal, Mator; Golden Cactus, amber, single; and The Lyon, bronze, single.

The addresses of the evening were all interesting. Secretary John Young gave an interesting account of his stay in Minneapolis. He deplored President Wirth's accident and moved to send him the club's condolences. Mr. Bunyard gave a fine address on the outdoor plant exhibition, and predicted the continuance of this feature at every convention in the future. Leonard Barton spoke on "American Gardens in the Northwest." "The Ladies and Transportation Secrets," was Mr. Traendly's theme. "Bowling as a Fine Art," was modestly referred to by Champion John Donaldson, who led his team to victory. M. C. Ebel's subject was "Insects, Human and Otherwise," but he branched off to a panegyric of outdoor gardens and their educational value. J. G. Esler told of his experiences and Jos. A. Manda told of the sporting experiences of the club from New York to Minneapolis, and of his experiences there. Messrs. Lenker, Ebel, Bunyard and Max Schling gave some forcible opinions on Governor Sulzer's veto of the Cornell greenhouses bill. The usual refreshments were served. Ladies' night will probably be celebrated at the club's October meeting.

Messrs. Sheridan, Young and Traendly were appointed a committee to draw up suitable resolutions on the death of J. B. Nugent, Sr.

Plantsmen's Outing.

The excursion of the New York and New Jersey Plant Growers' Association, up the Hudson, September 4, was a complete success. The party numbered seventy-five and Charles Van Vliet's orchestra kept the young folks happy. Dinner and supper were equal to the meals of New York's first-class hotels.

Those present were: Messrs. and Mesdames W. H. Siebrecht, W. H. Siebrecht, Jr., Henry Baumann, Louis Dupuy, F. H. Langan, A. L. Miller, Julius Roehrs, H. C. Steinhoff, H. Schoelzel, Louis Schmutz, Carl Woerner, Alfred Zeller, Chas. E. Koch, F. Doerhoefer, R. J. Irwin, J. A. Shaw and Madsen; Mesdames C. W. Scott, H. A. Lorenz, V. E. Riech, Herman Dreyer and M. Auer; Misses Mabel Dreyer, Lilian Zeller, Louise Zeller, Anna Koch, Louise Dupuy, Dorothy Dupuy, Anna Schultheis, Adrienne DeLaney, Steinhoff, Smith and Siebrecht; Messrs. Anton Schultheis, Anton Schultheis, Jr., Daniel Schultheis, William Schultheis, T. B. DeForest, Gerald Dreyer, Paul Dailedouze, Henry Dailedouze, Oscar Boehler, J. H. Fiesser, Jos. H. Sperry.

The committee, Messrs. Abraham Lincoln Miller, Gerald Dreyer and W. H. Siebrecht, Jr., are deserving of great credit for their efficient management of the outing. The next trip on the society's program is to Bermuda.

Various Notes.

Several New Yorkers attended the annual meeting of the New York Federation of Floral Clubs at Syracuse, September 9, Secretary Young among them.

Mr. Kelley, representing R. Wallace & Sons, Colchester, England, is making a pleasure trip in this country, and last week was a guest of Mr. Boddington.

H. A. Barnard, of Stuart, Low & Co., England, is also in the city.

Edward Eccles, of Short Hills, N. J., is enjoying a trip in Europe and sending his friends here cards marking his progress.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Traendly have returned from their delightful trip through the Great Lakes after the convention.

Herman Weiss is offering some fine Smith's Advance from his own greenhouses. His new store is now completed.

Woodrow & Marketos have just added to their service a $2,500 auto truck for large palm deliveries. Mr. Marketos has joined the ranks of the benedicts, and has been enjoying a four weeks' honeymoon at Saratoga.

Wm. Elliott & Sons open their auction season Tuesday, September 16.

R. MacNiff, of the MacNiff Horticultural Co., accompanied Louis Schmutz, Jr., and his wife on their trip to Europe, from which he returned September 9. He will open the auction season next week in his new store on Vesey street.

A. Warendorff had the floral decorations for the opening of the large new store of Stern Bros., on Forty-second street, and also for the wedding of his niece at Delmonico's, the decorations for the latter being goldenrod, yellow roses and lavender asters.

Henry Blume, formerly at the Grand Central station, is now on the force of P. J. Smith.

Mrs. John J. Gunther was nearly drowned Sunday, August 3, at Woodland beach, Staten Island, where Mr. Gunther and his family have spent the summer. Father McGrath was rescuer, and Mrs. Gunther is none the worse for her dangerous experience.

S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co. reports a satisfactory summer. The connection of the firm's big ice-box with the system of the Kervan Co. is proving a wonderful convenience. Mr. Rigby, of this firm, and his family returned from their summer vacation Monday, September 1.

Mr. Riedel, of Badgley, Riedel & Meyer, Inc., is back from his three weeks' holiday, and his visit to his violet growers at Rhinebeck.

John Timney, with Wolfinger, of Newark, N. J., won the eastern roller skating championship at Brighton Beach.

Samuel Berkowitz, Jr., of Max Schling's force, was married September 7 to Miss Lena Malowsky, at Hennington hall. Five hundred guests were in attendance. The decorations were oak leaves and roses. The bridegroom's brother, Herman Berkowitz, decorated, and Max Schling personally furnished and made the bride's bouquet.

J. J. Wilson, who has been in the service of J. M. Thorburn & Co. during the last fifteen years and has been for eight years secretary of the corporation, has opened a seed business on his own account at Newark, N. J., to be known as the J. J. Wilson Seed Co., Inc. R. F. MacClelland is vice-president of the company and W. A. Schenck, secretary.

The death of John B. Nugent, Sr., is recorded in this week's obituary column.

John Young, the secretary of the New York Florists' club and of the S. A. F., has resumed business as a wholesale florist and is now at 53 West Twenty-eighth street. He has a wide acquaintance and many years of experience in the trade, which should go far toward insuring the success of his undertaking.

The eighty-second annual exhibition of the American Institute will be held in the Engineering building, 25 to 33 West Thirty-ninth street, September 23 to 25. Ample room at last has been provided for the display of dahlias, orchids, plants, fruit and vegetables, and the prize list has been made attractive.

John A. Foley, formerly manager for Lecakes & Co., now has his office at 41 West Twenty-eighth street.

Russin & Hanfling completed removal September 6, into their fine new store, on West Twenty-eighth street, directly opposite the headquarters of Traendly & Schenck and Walter F. Sheridan. They will utilize the entire five stories and basement in the display of their merchandise and in manufacturing. Walter Siebrecht has moved into the store they lately occupied, and will make many improvements.

The guarantee list of the spring flower show already amounts to over $6,000.

The Dailedouze twins, Paul and Eugene, will shortly start on a trip around the world.

Mr. and Mrs. Pankok are sending greetings to their friends, from Jerusalem.

R. J. Irwin's office now is in the Masonic Temple, 71 West Twenty-third street. The increase in his business made larger and more convenient quarters imperative. Mr. Irwin's brother, Stephen, who has spent the last nine years on the Pacific coast, now is associated with him.

J. J. Coan, manager of the Growers' Cut Flower Co., stated early this week that he expected to have the new store ready for the opening September 11.

The new store of Stumpp & Walter Co., on Barclay street, will be in running order within the week. The opportunity for window display is immense.

Robert S. Rennison, manager of the Yonkers Nursery Co., and eleven years with Wadley & Smythe, has acquired the business of A. N. Robertson, the nurseryman of Westbury, L. I., and will do a general landscape and nursery business in his own name hereafter.

Leo Klein and his wife have returned from a two weeks' holiday at Lake George, N. Y.

C. C. Trepel opens his season September 13 and expects an attendance of 30,000. The Sixty-ninth Regiment band has been secured for the initial celebration. Mr. Trepel has added as an extra attraction an animal section, which includes lion cubs, coyotes, monkeys, birds of many kinds and pedigreed dogs, cats and pets of every description. Flowers will be given away on opening day. Two large greenhouses have been added to the glass area at Fifty-ninth street during the summer. The cut flower department on the ground floor has been enlarged. The outlook here for a big business is bright.

Incorporation papers have been granted the Walter R. Siebrecht Co., of Manhattan, with a capitalization of $10,000. The incorporators are Walter R. Siebrecht, Thomas Barker and Thomas F. MacMahon.

A Quartette Well Known in New York, Snapshot En Route to Europe.

Visitors: Will Rehder, Wilmington, N. C.; Seth Miller, of the Green Floral Co., Dallas, Tex.; Miss Genevieve Cook, daughter of W. C. Cook, Montgomery, Ala., returning from a European trip.

NEW YORKERS ABOARD SHIP.

The accompanying illustration shows a group of well-known faces from New York, on board one of the large ocean liners. The photograph was taken when the greater part of the sea voyage was behind them and they were preparing to land on the other side. The group includes Louis Schmutz, Jr., and his wife; R. MacNiff, and C. Bouquet, of Bouquet & Sons, Flatbush. They left in the middle of August for a six weeks' tour of Holland, Belgium, France and Germany.

ST. PAUL, MINN.

The Market.

Business last week continued slow, although funerals and weddings produced a few large orders. Outdoor stock, except asters and gladioli, is practically off the market. Neither asters nor gladioli have been better in years, and the supply seems unlimited.

The State Fair.

A number of florists of this city and also Minneapolis exhibited at the state fair, where premiums to the amount of $1,300 were distributed. Some fine stock was shown in both plants and cut flowers. More enthusiasm than in previous years was shown and all seemed satisfied with the distribution of the premiums. The judge was August Swanson. H. Bofferding, of Minneapolis, assistant superintendent of horticulture, had charge of the exhibits. The awards were:

Decorative plants, covering 100 square feet—Minneapolis Floral Co., Minneapolis, first; Holm & Olson, St. Paul, second; John Vasatka, Minneapolis, third.

Decorative plants, covering fifty square feet—Holm & Olson, first; Minneapolis Floral Co., second; John Vasatka, third.

Decorative plants, covering twenty-five square feet—Holm & Olson, first; Minneapolis Floral Co., second; John Vasatka, third.

Blooming plants, covering 100 square feet—Minneapolis Floral Co., first; Holm & Olson, second; John Vasatka, third.

Blooming plants, covering fifty square feet—Holm & Olson, first; Minneapolis Floral Co., second; John Vasatka, third.

ond; Riverside Greenhouses, St. Paul, third; John Vasatka, fourth.

Blooming plants, covering twenty-five square feet—Holm & Olson, first; Minneapolis Floral Co., second; Riverside Greenhouses, third; John Vasatka, fourth.

Collection of ferns, covering 100 square feet—Holm & Olson, first; Minneapolis Floral Co., second; John Vasatka, third.

Collection of ferns, covering fifty square feet—Holm & Olson, first; Minneapolis Floral Co., second; John Vasatka, third.

Collection of ferns, covering twenty-five square feet—Holm & Olson, first; Minneapolis Floral Co., second; John Vasatka, third.

Collection of caladiums, fancy, covering twenty-five square feet—Holm & Olson, first; Minneapolis Floral Co., second.

Collection of coleus, covering twenty-five square feet—Holm & Olson, first; Minneapolis Floral Co., second; Riverside Greenhouses, third.

Specimen kentia palms—Holm & Olson, first; John Vasatka, second; Minneapolis Floral Co., third.

Specimen Phoenix Roebelenii—Holm & Olson, first; Riverside Greenhouses, second; John Vasatka, third.

Specimen any other palm—Minneapolis Floral Co., first; Holm & Olson, second; John Vasatka, third.

Specimen pandanus—Minneapolis Floral Co., first; Holm & Olson, second; John Vasatka, third.

Pair of pyramid bay trees—Holm & Olson, first; Minneapolis Floral Co., second; John Vasatka, third.

Pair of standard bay trees—Holm & Olson, first; Minneapolis Floral Co., second; John Vasatka, third.

Specimen Boston fern—Holm & Olson, first; Minneapolis Floral Co., second; John Vasatka, third.

Specimen crested nephrolepis—Minneapolis Floral Co., first; Holm & Olson, second; John Vasatka, third.

Specimen fern, any other variety—Minneapolis Floral Co., first; Holm & Olson, second; John Vasatka, third.

Four hanging baskets of ferns—Minneapolis Floral Co., first; Holm & Olson, second; John Vasatka, third.

Ten American Beauties—Holm & Olson, first; Minneapolis Floral Co., second.

Twenty Richmond—Holm & Olson, first; Minneapolis Floral Co., second.

Twenty Killarney—Holm & Olson, first; Minneapolis Floral Co., second.

Twenty White Killarney—Holm & Olson, first; Minneapolis Floral Co., second.

Twenty yellow roses, any variety—Minneapolis Floral Co., first; Holm & Olson, second.

Twenty Kaiserin—Holm & Olson, first; Minneapolis Floral Co., second.

Twenty any other variety—Holm & Olson, first; Minneapolis Floral Co., second.

Twelve yellow chrysanthemums—Minneapolis Floral Co., second; Holm & Olson, third. No first.

Twelve white chrysanthemums—Minneapolis Floral Co., second; Holm & Olson, third. No first.

Panel design not to exceed thirty square feet—Holm & Olson, first; R. A. Latham, Minneapolis, second; Minneapolis Floral Co., third; Riverside Greenhouses, fourth.

Table decoration—Minneapolis Floral Co., first; Holm & Olson, second; Riverside Floral Co., third.

Fifty spikes any gladiolus—D. W. C. Ruff, Bald Eagle, Minn., first; Holm & Olson, second.

Twenty-five spikes any gladiolus—Holm & Olson, first; D. W. C. Ruff, second.

Twelve spikes any gladiolus—D. W. C. Ruff, first; Holm & Olson, second.

Wreaths, on easel frames, not to exceed twenty-four inches—Minneapolis Floral Co., first;

Holm & Olson, second; R. A. Latham, third; Riverside Greenhouses, fourth.
Basket of cut flowers—Holm & Olson, first; Minneapolis Floral Co., second; Riverside Greenhouses, third.

The horticultural building was decorated by Holm & Olson, thirty-five cases of smilax and a large number of bay trees being used.

Various Notes.

N. C. Hansen, on Dale street, has finished the remodeling and planting of his carnation houses.

W. Schwarz, for the last nineteen years in the plant growing department of A. N. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn., has taken charge of Holm & Olson's greenhouses. This firm is putting up a new connecting shed, in which is located office, salesrooms, potting, shipping and packing departments, and a battery of boilers. Concrete is being used.

H. Nielsen intends, in the near future, to take an extended trip along the Pacific coast, with the view to locating there.

C. F. Haupt, on the west side, is remodeling his entire place. His new front is a great improvement.

Holm & Olson last week furnished the decorations for a debutante party held at the Spaulding hotel in Duluth. This is the largest job of the season to date to be executed out of the city. A large number of palms were shipped and used there, as were also many cut flowers and twenty-five cases of smilax.

CINCINNATI.

The Gateway to the South.

The general supply of stock last week was rather more than necessary. Some lines cleaned up well, while others moved rather slowly and a substantial part of them found their way to the ash barrel. The prices naturally followed closely the old economic law of supply and demand. Shipping business is good.

There has been an abundance of roses, caused by the rather slow demand as much as by an increased supply, for the supply was about the same as during the weeks immediately preceding. Beauties are enjoying a fairly active call. The aster market is tolerably well supplied. Fancy stock, however, is running short of requirements. One wholesaler sizes up the aster situation as follows: "The buyers don't tell us how many large asters they want; they just ask how many they can have." Shorter ones have been selling fairly well, but at low prices. Lilies are on the short side. Valley is offered in limited quantities and sells well. Dahlias come in stronger than they did. They are of uniformly high quality. Other offerings include gladioli, carnations, rubrum lilies, cosmos, clematis, snapdragon, feverfew and tuberose.

Various Notes.

C. E. Critchell and wife have returned from their trip to Minneapolis.

Clarence J. Ohmer, of West Palm Beach, Fla., has been shipping elegant plumosus to this market.

Ed. Schumann has been cutting some excellent asters, which have been meeting with a good demand at the Cincinnati Cut Flower Exchange.

Thomas Windram has returned from his trip through California and Canada, and his stay at Cheneaux Islands.

Bob McDonald, of William Murphy's place, is back after an extended trip through Ohio and Indiana.

Alfred Murphy has gone to the Cheneaux Islands for a fortnight.

Milton Alexander, representing Lion & Co., New York, was recently in town. Other visitors were S. M. Harbison, Danville, Ky.; L. G. Barber, Dunkirk, Ind., and L. A. Thomas, Troy, O.

COLD STORAGE LILIES.

What care do cold storage lilies require in order to produce good flowers in winter?

T. J. G.

Various cold storage lilies, such as longiflorum, speciosum and auratum, are obtainable. They can be started at any time when procurable, being generally used for flowering from June until December, or until fresh-crop bulbs of the same sorts are in season. Cold storage bulbs start into growth more quickly than newly imported ones. They possess less vigor, however, and will not throw so many flowers per stalk. Longiflorums can be potted in July and August for flowering from October to Christmas. September ones will come along in January, after which it is usually better to depend on the new-crop bulbs for flowers. Speciosums and auratums started about July 15 will flower from Thanksgiving to Christmas, these requiring a longer season than the longiflorums.

Longiflorums are generally grown in 5-inch pots. The speciosums and auratums, on the other hand, succeed better when planted several bulbs together in a 7-inch or 8-inch pot, or in boxes six inches deep when wanted for cutting. Give a good watering when first potted; then allow them to get moderately dry. Avoid watering too freely until the pots are well filled with roots. Speciosums and auratums do not like so much heat as longiflorums; a temperature of 65 degrees at night suits the latter, while 55 to 60 degrees is better for the former.

OBITUARY

William Henry Maule.

William Henry Maule, 56 years old, wealthy Philadelphia seed dealer, died at the New York Club, 20 West Fortieth street, New York city, at 6:45 p. m. Wednesday, September 3, following a stroke of apoplexy.

Accompanied by his wife, Mr. Maule arrived in New York at 4 p. m., in his auto, having been motoring for several days through the Berkshires. They went to the Waldorf-Astoria, intending to return to their home at Villanova, a suburb of Philadelphia, the next morning. Mr. Maule apparently was in good health, and left the hotel to visit the club, of which he was a member. He was there a few minutes chatting with a number of acquaintances, when he gasped and fell back in his chair. A physician of the club was summoned and a message sent to Mrs. Maule. The house physician, with others who were called in, worked over Mr. Maule for more than an hour before he died. Mrs. Maule, who was present at the time of death, became hysterical and was removed to the hotel.

Born in Philadelphia, Mr. Maule in 1877 formed the wholesale seed firm of Benson, Maule & Co. He bought the interests of his partners in 1880 and had continued the business since alone, doing a large mail order trade. He had large farming interests in New Jersey. For the last twenty years he had been the owner of the Practical Farmer, an agricultural weekly published in Philadelphia.

Mr. Maule was the son of the late Charles P. Maule, a widely known lumber dealer. He received his education in schools of Philadelphia and towns along the Main Line. His wife's maiden name was Miss Mary M. Heiskell. Both being of old Philadelphia families and possessed of considerable means, they soon became prominent in the social life of Philadelphia. His club connections in that city were: The Art Club, of which he was a charter and life member; the Union League, Racquet Club and the Merion Cricket Club. He was a regular attendant at the services of the Bryn Mawr Episcopal church, where he took an active interest in church work. He is survived by his widow and two daughters, Mrs. C. M. P. Herring and Miss H. Ethel Maule, both of Villanova.

Mr. Maule became a member of the American Seed Trade Association in 1904, but he was not personally active in association work.

John Chambers, Sr.

John Chambers, Sr., former commissioner of parks in Toronto, Can., died August 31, aged 63 years. He was born in Canterbury, Kent, England, in 1850, and came to Canada in 1871. He entered the service of the city in 1878 as superintendent of the exhibition grounds, and a few years later was appointed commissioner of parks, which post he occupied until 1908. Under his direction the foundation of the park system of Toronto was laid, his most notable work in this respect being the creation of Island park and Exhibition park, and the laying out of Queen's and other parks. He was widely known in the horticultural world and was promi-nently identified with the American Association of Park Superintendents, the Toronto Gardeners' and Florists' Association, the Toronto Horticultural Society and other similar organizations.

John B. Nugent, Sr.

John B. Nugent, Sr., of New York city, died Saturday morning, September 6, at the age of 92. He was probably the oldest florist in the United States. He was born in Ireland and began his apprenticeship under John George seventy-eight years ago. Until two years ago he and his son, William F., conducted a large business at Lexington avenue and Seventy-third street, under the name of John B. Nugent & Son. About March, 1911, this business was united with that of Young & Nugent, of which his other son, John B. Nugent, Jr., is the active member.

Mr. Nugent was a conspicuous figure in the New York trade and well liked and respected by all. He retained the use of all his faculties until the last. The funeral services were held Monday, September 8, and many beautiful floral emblems were sent by members of the trade. The burial took place Tuesday morning.

John George Stodtbeck.

John George Stodtbeck died Friday, August 29, after a long illness at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Sophia Reitz, 745 Palmetto street, Brooklyn. Mr. Stodtbeck retired from the business some years ago. He was 71 years old, and is survived by his wife, a son and six daughters.

Christian Heller.

Christian Heller, a florist and market gardener at Cuyahoga Falls, O., died August 26, after a short illness. He was 56 years old. The funeral services were held August 29, with burial at Mount Peace cemetery. It is understood that the business will be continued by his son, Carl Heller.

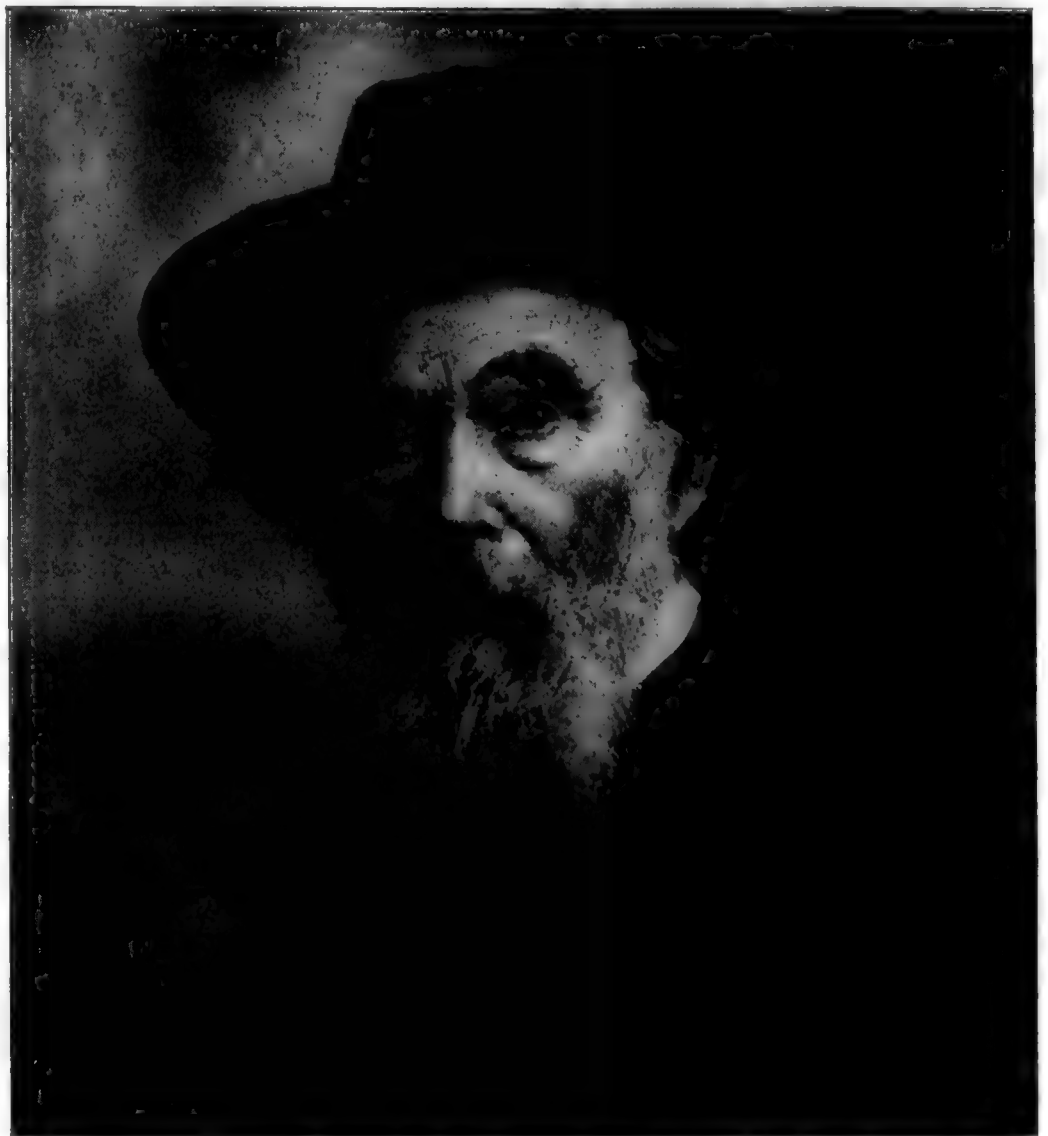

James Bishop.

James Bishop, curator of the herbarium at Highland park, Rochester, N. Y., died September 7. He was one of the pioneer florists of Rochester.

Mr. Bishop was born in London, England, October 1, 1850, and came to this country in 1881. For a year he resided in Albany, then removed to Rochester. He opened greenhouses on St. Paul street and devoted his time to chrysanthemum growing. In the autumn of 1891 he conducted the first chrysanthemum show held in Rochester.

Mr. Bishop was engaged by the park board in 1908 to care for the flowers in Highland park and not long afterward was made curator of the herbarium in which the specimens of local flora are gathered. He was guide at the park board's exhibit of the ornamental fruits at the annual show of the Rochester Florists in Convention hall last winter.

Mr. Bishop was a member of the Rochester Florists' Association and of the botanical section of the Rochester Academy of Science. He leaves his wife, Mrs. Fannie Bishop; two sons, Harold S. Bishop, of Cincinnati, and James H. Bishop, a student of Nashotah Episcopal Theological Seminary at Nashotah, Wis., and two daughters, Mrs. Hazel W. Newman and Miss Helen M. Bishop. Interment was made at Riverside cemetery.

FORCING STORAGE VALLEY.

Will you be so kind as to let me know what kind of care cold storage lily of the valley requires so as to produce good flowers in winter? T. J. G.

To grow and flower cold storage lily of the valley well, a bottom heat of 80 to 85 degrees, with a top heat 20 degrees lower, should be maintained, if possible. The pips must be kept dark in the early stages of growth, but light should be given gradually as the flower spikes develop, so as to give the stalk and blooms more substance and encourage the production of leaves. Valley does not need any soil when being forced, as it makes no new roots, all energy being stored up in the roots carried by the pips when bought. Clean, sharp sand is the best medium in which to plant the pips. Place it five or six inches thick in the case or frame in which your forcing will be done. The same sand will do an entire season. Usually one watering per day suffices. After the flowers commence to open be careful not to wet them, as they easily rot.

GLADIOLI IN FLATS.

Will baby glads do well in flats and how closely should they be planted? C. A.

By "baby glads" I suppose you mean the nanus section, including such varieties as Blushing Bride, Peach Blossom and Ackermanni. These do splendidly in flats containing four or five inches of soil. A flat twenty-four inches long and twelve inches wide will hold from fifty to seventy-five bulbs, according to variety. Of Peach Blossom, seventy-five bulbs can go in, but others, which are more robust, do better if planted a little more thinly.

C. W.

CYCAS NOT GROWING.

I have a sago palm which has been dormant for over a year. How long does it take plants of this kind to throw out leaves again? A. F.

Sometimes the cycas, or sago palm, remains dormant over a year before making any growth. Keep the stems well syringed and growth will eventually start. Your palm house will be a suitable place for this plant, and a moist atmosphere is what it likes.

RED SHOW TYPE OF DAHLIA.

Please give me the name of the best double dark red show type of dahlia.

Arthur Rawlings is a large, rich, deep crimson colored variety of fine form. Warrior, intense scarlet, is also good.

Marion, Ind.—E. Hartson has leased his greenhouses to Clarence Meadows for a term of two years.

Sharon, Pa.—A hail storm August 28 damaged the greenhouses of Fischer & Sheick and W. B. Hackett to the extent of $200 and $150, respectively.

London, Eng.—At the show of the Royal Horticultural Society, August 26, Kelway & Son, of Langport, took the principal awards for gladioli. Dobbie & Co., of Edinburgh, Scotland, were prize-winners with their fine dahlias and begonias.

Holm & Olson, second; R. A. Latham, third; Riverside Greenhouses, fourth.

Basket of cut flowers: Holm & Olson, first; Minneapolis Floral Co., second; Riverside Greenhouses, third.

The horticultural building was decorated by Holm & Olson, thirty five cases of smilax and a large number of bay trees being used.

Various Notes.

N. C. Hansen, on Dale street, has finished the remodeling and planting of his carnation houses.

W. Schwarz, for the last nineteen years in the plant growing department of A. N. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn., has taken charge of Holm & Olson's greenhouses. This firm is putting up a new connecting shed, in which is located office, salesrooms, potting, shipping and packing departments, and a battery of boilers. Concrete is being used.

H. Nielsen intends, in the near future, to take an extended trip along the Pacific coast, with the view to locating there.

C. E. Haupt, on the west side, is remodeling his entire place. His new front is a great improvement.

Holm & Olson last week furnished the decorations for a debutante party held at the Spaulding hotel in Duluth. This is the biggest job of the season to date to be executed out of the city. A large number of palms were shipped and used there, as were also many cut flowers and twenty five cases of smilax. C. R. V.

CINCINNATI.

The Gateway to the South.

The general supply of stock last week was rather more than necessary. Some lines cleaned up well, while others moved rather slowly and a substantial part of them found their way to the ash barrel. The prices naturally followed closely the old economic law of supply and demand. Shipping business is good.

There has been an abundance of roses, caused by the rather slow demand as much as by an increased supply, for the supply was about the same as during the weeks immediately preceding. Beauties are enjoying a fairly active sale. The aster market is tolerably well supplied. Eppox stock, however, is running short of requirements. One wholesaler sees up the aster situation as follows: "The buyers don't tell us how many asters they want; they just ask how many they can have." Shorter ones have been selling fairly well, but at low prices. Lilies are on the short side. Valley is offered in limited quantities and sells well. Dahlias are a stronger than they did. The sale of uniformly high quality, finer offerings include gladioli, carnations, cypripediums, cosmos, clematis, ranunculus, geraniums and tuberoses.

Various Notes.

C. E. Haupt and wife have returned from their trip to Minneapolis. Clarence J. Obner, of West Palm Beach, Fla., has been shipping elegant dahlias to this market.

The S. J. Green has been cutting some very fine roses, which have been meeting a strong demand at the Cincinnati Flower Exchange.

Thomas W. Latham has returned from a stop on the California and Canada, and is now at Cheneaux Islands.

John A. Gould at William Murphy's place, is back after an extended trip through Ohio and Indiana.

Alfred Murphy has gone to the Cheneaux Islands for a fortnight.

Milton Alexander, representing Lion & Co., New York, was recently in town. Other visitors were S. M. Harbison, Danville, Ky.; L. G. Barber, Dunkirk, Ind.; and L. A. Thomas, Troy, O. C. H. H.

COLD STORAGE LILIES.

What care do cold storage lilies require in order to produce good flowers in winter?

T. J. G.

Various cold storage lilies, such as longiflorum, speciosum and auratum, are obtainable. They can be started at any time when procurable, being generally used for flowering from June until December, or until fresh-crop bulbs of the same sorts are in season. Cold storage bulbs start into growth more quickly than newly imported ones. They possess less vigor, however, and will not throw so many flowers per stalk. Longiflorum can be potted in July and August for flowering from October to Christmas. September ones will come along in January, after which it is usually better to depend on the new-crop bulbs for flowers. Speciosum and auratum started about July 15 will flower from Thanksgiving to Christmas, these requiring a longer season than the longiflorum.

Longiflorum are generally grown in 7 inch pots. The speciosum and auratum, on the other hand, succeed better when planted several bulbs together in a 7 inch or 8 inch pot, or in boxes six inches deep when vented for cutting. Give a good watering when first potted; then allow them to get moderately dry. Avoid watering too freely until the pots are well filled with roots. Speciosum and auratum do not like so much heat as longiflorum; a temperature of 65 degrees at night suits the latter, while 55 to 60 degrees is better for the former.

Clinton, Ia. The Southern Greenhouse Co. is building two additional houses, 12x50 and 12x40, which are needed to meet the demands of the company's growing business.

OBITUARY

William Henry Maule.

William Henry Maule, 56 years old, wealthy Philadelphia seed dealer, died at the New York Club, 20 West Portfield street, New York city, at 6:45 p. m. Wednesday, September 3, following a stroke of apoplexy.

Accompanied by his wife, Mr. Maule arrived in New York at 4 p. m. in his auto, having been motoring for several days through the Berkshires. They went to the Waldorf Astoria, intending to return to their home at Villanova, a suburb of Philadelphia, the next morning. Mr. Maule apparently was in good health, and left the hotel to visit the club, of which he was a member. He was there a few minutes chatting with a number of acquaintances, when he gasped and fell back in his chair. A physician of the club was summoned and a message sent to Mrs. Maule. The house physician, with others who were called in, worked over Mr. Maule for more than an hour before he died. Mrs. Maule, who was present at the time of death, became hysterical and was removed to the hotel.

Born in Philadelphia, Mr. Maule in 1877 formed the wholesale seed firm of Benson, Maule & Co. He bought the interests of his partners in 1880 and had continued the business since alone, doing a large mail order trade. He had large farming interests in New Jersey. For the last twenty years he had been the owner of the Practical Farmer, an agricultural weekly published in Philadelphia.

Mr. Maule was the son of the late Charles P. Maule, a widely known lumber dealer. He received his education in schools of Philadelphia and towns along the Main Line. His wife's maiden name was Miss Mary M. Heiskell. Both being of old Philadelphia families and possessed of considerable means, they soon became prominent in the social life of Philadelphia. Minneapolis, Minn.—Wm. F. Holmes has moved from 910 Nicollet avenue to 8 South Seventh street.

Rhinebeck, N. Y.—It is said that nearly every violet grower in this district, and a number no longer in the business, has received a letter under a Chicago date, reading: "If you want small returns, ship your violets anywhere; if you want good returns, ship to — —."

Toronto, Ont.—The two first prizes for gladiolus displays at the annual flower show were taken by A. Gilchrist, who had also an exhibit of these flowers not in competition, which occupied a full table the length of one of the wings of the building and was one of the finest ever seen here.

RESULTS

We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

AT Abilene, Kan., September 6 was the fifty-third day this summer that the mercury climbed above 100 degrees.

COLLECTIONS never are otherwise than poor in August. Probably they were as good this year as ever. Improvement naturally will be shown during the present month.

NOT a few subscribers save themselves
the bother of annual renewal by sending
The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper.

CLEVELAND plans to hold a flower show in November that will measure up to the description "a big trade show." It will be under the auspices of the Ohio Horticultural Society and the Cleveland
Florists' Club.

THIS is the season of state and county fairs and the florists are taking advantage of the advertising opportunities in a way that indicates an awakening appreciation of their value. While each fair sees two or three exhibiting heavily, the wonder is that a greater number do not go in on at least a few of the classes.

IN a letter to The Review, dated September 4, Theodore Wirth, president-elect of the S. A. F., says: "I am confined to my bed at the present time with a fractured leg because of an automobile accident of which I was the victim last Friday. I am getting along nicely, however, and expect to be back to work as good as ever within two or three weeks."

TAKING the country as a whole, this has not been a specially good summer for the trade; there has not been the increase in business that has marked recent summers. The prospect for the new season now opening is excellent, however, except for the slight slowing up in other lines that generally is charged up either to tariff tinkering or the crop damage in the west.

J. A. PETERSON is working up stock of another new begonia, one that he thinks will prove as much better than Cincinnati as most growers think Cincinnati better than Lorraine.

THE Bostonians are planning a convention with business sessions in the mornings only, to give the visitors opportunity to do their duty by the S. A.
F. and at the same time see the interesting things in the vicinity.

THE trade in the southwest has had a hard summer and the prospect for fall and winter in Kansas and contiguous states is none too good. Not only have the florists lost a great deal of stock through drought, but the purchasing power of their communities has been impaired by the same cause. However, things seldom turn out as bad as they seem.

LEADING manufacturers of greenhouse building material, while they report an excellent season, admit that the erection of new glass in 1913 will not equal the record year of 1912. While the number of small jobs has increased, there are not so many big ranges going up, and the number of concerns actively engaged in the manufacture of greenhouse material has been reduced.

THE SAFE SIDE.

To be on a sound footing a florist should take in enough money:

To clean up his indebtedness monthly.

To insure his property.

To keep it in repair.

To live.

And to lay away enough cash each year so that when the greenhouses are worn out he can rebuild them without going into debt.

After that it will be time enough to talk about profits.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

Cooler weather, a less abundant supply and a steady improvement in the demand are among the things that might be mentioned in the report at this writing. Autumn undoubtedly has gained a foothold, as is evidenced by the decrease in asters, gladioli and straw hats. They all start to go at the same time and the total eclipse of these summer specialties is only a matter of a few days. At present the market affords almost everything, but not in the great quantities that have been on hand in some lines. Good fancy asters are more in demand and less abundant, although the number of poor asters never seems to decrease. The inability of the wholesaler to find buyers for the lower grades is probably the reason. They can hardly be sold at any price, even in job lots. Gladioli are not so numerous, but they appear to be holding up well in quality. They make no great flurry and the prices are reasonable.

Beauties evidently have worked off to some extent, for the huge cuts have decreased and there is a more steady market, with the prices holding firm but not advancing to any great extent.
There are plenty to satisfy the demands at the present, but the cool weather, if it continues, may put a second check on the supply. Longer stems are coming into the market, but the greater quantities still are of the medium and short lengths.

The two early mums are seen in

This week we ask your special attention to our crop of FANCY ROSES

Long-stemmed stock to be had here in quantity

ALL THE markets are full of short roses at this season of the year—and there are scarcely any long ones. Consequently WE planned to have a good supply of medium to LONG stems (our second crop), while such stock is scarce. The result is we now can furnish fine flowers in quantity on stems 24 to 36 inches long, as well as the shorter grades. Quite exceptional stock for this time of year. All the popular varieties.

A specially fine lot of Bulgare (Taft) this week.

BEAUTIES

The trade can count on us for Beauties of the best quality every day in the year. We are filling all orders and still have some Beauties with which to help out other wholesalers not so well supplied—but why not order direct? We aim never to be without Beauties in the ice-box awaiting YOUR call.

FANCY ASTERS

In many places the aster season is about over; the crop has been practically a failure this year, but the growers of the stock we are offering have seldom had better success. (They have field irrigation.) We still can furnish fancy asters in all colors.

CARNATIONS

You can begin using Carnations again—our new crops are of a quality that will please your customers. Nice clean flowers in large quantity, good stock, but a little short in stem.

MUMS

You can take any order for Mums that gives us a little time. Daily arrivals, but not long unsold. Principally Golden Glow, yellow, but also can supply Smith's Advance, white.

WHITE DAISIES

We still have a large supply of big white daisies. You can book orders with confidence that you can get all the daisies you need by wiring Amling.

FANCY VALLEY

You can depend upon us at all times for valley. If you run short, a wire to Amling will bring the valley you need.

EASTER LILIES

We can supply fine Easter Lilies in large quantity every day in the year. A specially good crop now on.

small quantities in many of the wholesale houses, but as a rule the quality is nothing to brag about. A few fine ones have been cut, but the general run so far has been of the usual pre-season kind. The season, however, is advancing rapidly and almost every local wholesaler is preparing for the first big shipments within the next week or ten days. Those that are arriving now are sold if they show any quality at all. Of course the varieties are limited to two, Golden Glow and Smith's Advance. The latter is not nearly so plentiful as is the yellow sort.

Short roses now are the wholesalers' greatest problem. Of Killarney the crops appear to be holding up well and there have been more than enough to go around. The quality is improving every day, as more growers get through the first crops and into the second and larger one. During the hot weather last week many of the roses were open or soft, but the cooler weather September 7 corrected this fault. White Killarney is not in oversupply and still commands a better price than pink roses. Maryland is not being cut in such large numbers as before and Sunburst has not yet come back into heavy crop. The yellows are not being cut freely in any variety and only scattering cuts of Aaron Ward and Melody can be found. Mrs. Taft is less plentiful. Mrs. Russell, Milady and Mrs. Shawyer have not been cut in any great numbers, but they sell better than the older and more plentiful varieties. The trade likes Mrs. Russell especially well.

Carnations have improved and show longer stems than those that have been coming into the market for the last three weeks or more. They suffered somewhat from the heat last week, but in some quarters there are those that measure up to what might be termed good stock. The supply is several times as large as a week ago.

Easter lilies are not overplentiful, but the demand is light and prices have not advanced. Valley probably will have a run within a short time, when the fall weddings are in order, but at this writing there is no oversupply or unusual call. Cattleyas continue scarce. Greens, with the possible exception of smilax, can be had in quantity.

Those who order in this market appear to lose sight of the fact that everything takes time. It takes time to pick out the stock, to check and bill it, to pack it and, above all, to get it to the depot. When a buyer really needs his stock on a certain train he should get his order on the wire or into the mail in season to give the shipper something better than a mere chance of catching the train by hard work.

Club Meeting.

The Chicago Florists' Club held its monthly meeting at the La Salle hotel September 4. Secretary E. C. Toepel, who is leaving for the west, tendered his resignation, which was accepted with regret, and J. B. Foley, son of last year's president, was elected to fill the unexpired term. James Morton was elected to membership. Florian D. Wallace, whose specialty is wind insurance, was present and gave an interesting talk on safeguarding the greenhouse trade from the losses occasioned by big storms.

The club voted to have a ladies' night in November.

YOUR

INTERESTS WILL BE WELL SERVED HERE

We have found that our interests are best served when the interests of our customers are best looked after. Consequently, we want as many as possible of those not now our customers to learn of the increased facilities we have provided for serving the shippers and buyers of Cut Flowers. We respectfully urge all those looking for the best connections for the season of 1913-14 to visit our store.

With the assurance of much the largest supply of Cut Flowers we ever have handled, we have increased our selling space, our cold storage facilities, and our packing and shipping department, to make our equipment at least equal to the best in this country for the quick, careful, satisfactory handling of every flower and every order entrusted to us.

WE HAVE THE STOCK.
WE DO THE VOLUME.

WE HAVE THE FACILITIES.
WE GIVE THE SERVICE.

Most out-of-town Retailers find it exceedingly satisfactory to place with us a standing order for a certain quantity of stock to be shipped regularly. Such orders can be added to as the occasion demands, and they insure a regular, dependable supply of known size and high quality, so that the Retailer can sell with confidence. But a good many good buyers call on the Chicago market for only such stock as they do not have at home. To these our very large SUPPLY AND FACILITIES ARE IMPORTANT.

Handling the immense quantity of high grade stock of all kinds, and with the large force of trained employees, we can get out orders in much less time than it would take a house with smaller resources. We make the train the other fellow misses. Send us the order, even if it is late. We fill it if there is any possibility of doing so.

Association Picnic.

The second annual picnic of the Cook County Florists' Association was held September 7 at Karthausers grove, 6656 Ridge avenue, and was well attended by the local growers, wholesalers and retailers, for the location was right in the north shore greenhouse section. Although the heat was intense, everyone enjoyed the entertainments provided by the committee in charge and a neat sum was realized for the association. There was plenty of fun for everyone, including dancing both afternoon and evening. Chairman Zech said that the picnic was one of the most successful affairs of which he has knowledge, both in point of attendance, entertainment and the amount of money realized. As an indication of the friendly feeling between the Chicago Florists' Club and the Cook County Florists' Association, Guy French, president of the former, was present and was warmly greeted by the officers and members of the association.

Various Notes.

John Michelsen, of the E. C. Amling Co., returned September 7 from his annual trip to the Hudson river violet section. He says the atmosphere there is almost as blue as the flowers. A few growers continue to report profitable business, but nearly twenty-five have quit since last season, and not one new place has gone up. Some of the places that dropped violets are idle, while others have been used for asters, chrysanthemums and peas. In addition to unsatisfactory market conditions, the growers have had to contend with root rot and grub worms. Many places have changed hands lately. A majority of the growers have other business interests. Mr. Michelsen says that although the growers are inclined at the moment to look on the dark side of things, he believes that the season will prove a fairly good one for those who give their plants proper care and thus turn out the right grade of stock.

The coroner has named Peter Reinberg as one of a committee of twenty-five on public safety, to devise means of reducing the number of automobile accidents. Mr. Reinberg's cars never break the speed laws.

Emil Buettner is cutting about 500 flowers per day of the new pink rose, Mrs. George Sawyer, originated in England and distributed this season by C. H. Totty.

This has been an excellent season for

PHILADELPHIA.

The Eastern Market.

Extremely warm weather has interfered with the cut flower business. The dahlia, the leading flower for September, is not at its best when the thermometer soars around 90 degrees. Such heat interferes with the keeping qualities of all the flowers. Still the dahlias are fine. They have been selling quite as well as could be expected. Asters have fallen off a trifle in quality as the height of the crop of Semple's passes. The New York asters have not arrived. Beauties are plentiful. The open flowers were in demand last week because of the New Haven tragedy, while many of the better blooms were shipped out of town. All roses are in heavy supply. The only drawback is that most of them are rather short in stem. White sells best. Valley has been in fair demand. Asparagus is a little more sought, a good sign. Cattleyas continue scarce. The new crop carnations are improving slowly. Indications point to a better market soon.

The Wanamaker Dahlia Show.

Through an arrangement made between the firm of John Wanamaker, of this city, and the Peacock Dahlia Farm, of Williamstown Junction, N. J., the public was treated to a fine display of dahlias in the Wanamaker store this week. There were somewhere in the neighborhood of 10,000 dahlia blooms

The Market.

There is rather more activity in the cut flower trade. This is less apparent in wholesale than in retail circles, however, and prices have not yet had any fillip. Society people now linger quite late at the seashore and mountains and it will be some weeks yet before real activity will prevail.

Short-stemmed roses are a veritable glut, and even at $5 per thousand large numbers cannot be moved. Ward, Killarney Queen, Russell and Cardinal are popular varieties. A few short-stemmed, new-crop carnations are seen, as well as small pickings from the old crop, but neither kind of stock cuts much figure. Chrysanthemums are getting plentiful. Golden Glow is abundant. There are also smaller lots of Mme. Bergmann and Smith's Advance.

One or two small bunches of single violets appeared last week. In two or three weeks there will be good pickings from outdoors.

Asters are abundant and good, with the prices a little lower. Gladioli continue overabundant and they move slowly. Lilium longiflorum and auratum have been selling better. Valley is good and in fair demand. The few sweet peas that come in are poor. A good many dahlias arrive; the cactus and peony-flowered sell well. Good cosmos sells well, but a lot of poor material is seen. A considerable number of montbretias are arriving, and Hydrangea paniculata grandiflora is used freely in window decorations. Green stock shows a little more activity with the arrival of cooler weather.

Various Notes.

The annual auction sale of stalls at the Boston Flower Exchange, Winthrop square, took place September 6. The weather was clear and crisp and a large number of growers were in attendance. First choice fell to W. W. Edgar Co., at a premium of $85 over and above the rent, which is $25 per stall. N. E. Boyle, of Malden, secured second choice. The bidding was animated, and, while prices did not reach the high figures of last year, the general average held up better and the net receipts were satisfactory to the directors.

Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Houghton are home from a vacation spent in a log cabin on an island in Lake Winnebago, N. H., which they found restful and enjoyable. Mr. Houghton says fall trade is starting up nicely and that summer business was good.

William W. Tailby is the candidate of the Democratic party for representative to the general court from the eleventh Norfolk district.

The Boston Coöperative Flower Market disposed of 110 stalls at its auction August 30. The rentals were dropped from $25 to $20 per stall. The gross receipts from the auction were $1,200 ahead of 1912.

The Boston Cut Flower Co. keeps its windows attractively arranged at all times. Baskets of yellow montbretias and Richmond roses, and scarlet montbretias with Mrs. Aaron Ward roses, made an effective display September 6.

Trade has been fairly good for the last few weeks. There has been just enough funeral work to keep the stock cleaned up. Asters have been in fair supply; gladioli still are plentiful. Dahlias have been arriving in fair supply; the recent dry, hot weather has been hard on them, however, and the outlook is not so good as it was last year. Lilies have been available in a medium supply.

FLORISTS' REVIEW

WHEN WRITING
ADVERTISERS

Gloucester, Mass.—Frederick B. Barrington and John F. Wonson, Jr., of this city, and G. Forest Stevens, of Rockport, were the judges at the Gloucester flower show.

Salem, O.—V. A. Cowgill, who recently disposed of the retail business of his Garfield Avenue Greenhouses to John Gunn & Son, has leased, with the privilege of buying, the greenhouses of J. E. Bonsall, where W. E. Sharpnack will have charge. Mr. Cowgill's intention is to grow vegetables at present, but he will take up the cut flower business later.

New Hartford, N. Y.—At the first annual exhibition of the Central New York Horticultural Society, C. W. Bushinger, of this city, was awarded first prize for the best general collection of gladioli. Some fine gladiolus displays were made by B. Hammond Tracy, of Wenham, Mass.; John Lewis Childs, of Flowerfield, L. I., and W. E. Kirchhoff & Co., of Pembroke, N. Y. William Mathews and Peter W. Crowe, both of Utica, exhibited some good collections, the former of orchids, roses and foliage plants, and the latter of ferns and palms. James Auld had a collection of different varieties of geraniums.

EIGHT PAGES OF RETAILERS' CARDS

This department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists—those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists—has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now—before you forget it?

The Market.

A slight increase in business, especially among the cut flower dealers, has been noticeable since the beginning of the month. Several engagement parties and some early fall weddings helped to dispose of the flower shipments from the north, and whatever is grown here in the cut flower line at present finds ready use for funeral work. This is about the worst month in the year for outdoor cut flowers, which now consist mainly of small cuts of roses, asters, tuberose, althæas, etc. The plant sales are slowly picking up, but with the return of the summer tourists in October, a big rush in this line of the trade takes place regularly each year. Wholesalers and retailers are well prepared with a big stock of all kinds of decorative plants for indoors and outdoors. Everything in that line is still kept outdoors, making the best and hardiest growth during the cool September and October days and nights.

Lilium Harrisii, as well as the different varieties from Japan, have arrived in great quantities; the first shipments of narcissi, Roman hyacinths, freesias, callas, etc., are also at hand. Most of the first named intended for early forcing are potted, but the start with the other kinds of bulbs will not be made before October, on account of our warm climate. As far as can be ascertained, no Belgian or Holland importations have arrived so far, but it is a fact that these will surpass all previous ones in quantity as well as quality, especially in the line of the various evergreens, which have been the last few years in an ever increasing demand. The dry weather during the last three weeks enabled the landscape gardeners to take things a little easy. Carpet and summer-flowering beds are now in the last stages of their beauty and with October the replanting of these, as well as of the foliage groups, with hundreds of thousands of winter and spring-flowering plants, especially pansies, will begin, and with it the busy season for all those who help to make the Crescent City a veritable little paradise all the year around.

Various Notes.

P. A. Chopin's store on St. Charles avenue is always one of the main attractions on that aristocratic thoroughfare, and his business is constantly increasing. His entire stock is fine; he made especially big preparations for the coming season, being up-to-date in everything and a great optimist.

Wm. J. Croft, one of our leading landscape gardeners, reports that in that branch of the business more work is done at present than ever before, and he says there is a good outlook for the coming planting time.

The Orchid Store, of which J. A. Newsham and H. Scheuermann are the proprietors, is nearing completion. The beautiful, white enameled refrigerator was manufactured by a local firm. Large plate glass mirrors will almost entirely cover the length of the walls. The high wainscoting and the entire furnishings are carried out in mission style. Elegant white-globed electric lights with heavy brass ornaments are suspended from the ceiling. The showcase is fifteen feet long and can be moved on rollers to a depth of the same dimensions. The workroom in the rear of the store is 22x36 feet. The business done by the new firm is far above their expectations. Large shipments of decorative plants both for indoors and outdoors will shortly arrive from Europe and, judging from the strenuous efforts made by the Orchid Store people, the opening promises to be something of a sensation.

Chris. Reuter is doing a rushing business at his wholesale and retail seed store. He stated that the sales up to the present far surpass last year's.

The Jos. Steckler Seed Co. is working overtime to fill the incoming orders, both for the city and the country. Although it is still early in the season, large quantities of all kinds of flowering bulbs are being sold. R. E.

Kaiserin, and if the hot spell would only let up, they would ship better and more could be sold. The market is overcrowded with these. Beauties, which hold in bud better, have the best demand just now. The last week experienced an oversupply in gladioli and tuberoses spikes, which had to be sold as low as $1 per hundred, and even cheaper in big lots, to be got rid of. Asters are taking the place of carnations at present, and of these all the five wholesale houses have a large supply, with prices from 50 cents for culls to $4 per hundred, the fancy stock having the best demand. Carnations, of the short-stemmed varieties, are in big supply, only to be dumped, as nothing but the long-stemmed stock sells at anything like a price. Easter lilies are up to $10 per hundred and valley is not any too plentiful at present.

There is plenty of everything in greens except smilax.

Various Notes.

William Ossick, of Smith's, Al Gumz, of Windler's, and John Bentzen spent last week at Wentzville, Mo., fishing. The trip was made in Mr. Ossick's touring car.

There were quite a number of out-of-town visitors last week, including J. J. Karins, with Henry Dreer, and Martin Reukauf, with H. Bayersdorfer & Co., both of Philadelphia; H. Wenderoth, representing Nicholas Wapler; Sam Seligman, representing Wertheimer Bros.; J. Bubach, with Schloss Bros.;

WANTED—PARTNER

With not less than $3000.00 to buy interest in established seed business. For a young man who is ambitious and wants to make something of himself this is a splendid opportunity. Prospects unlimited. Best of references required. Give particulars as to education, experience if any, and references in first letter.

Address No. 156, care Florists' Review, Chicago

Seed Trade News.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, C. O. Massie, Minneapolis; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

THE death of William Henry Maule is recorded in this week's obituary column.

PETER HOLLENBACH, Chicago, returned this week from a three months' European trip, on which he was accompanied by his wife.

C. H. VICK, of Rochester, is putting in a busy week in charge of the floricultural department of the New York state fair at Syracuse.

It is perfectly sure that onion sets will be short of the customary demand in 1914. The question now before the holders is, "How much will the traffic bear?"

ON the Marseilles steamer which reached New York September 6 were twenty-one cases of bulbs consigned to R. M. Ward & Co., raising the season's total to 18,424 cases.

REPORTS indicate that the Montana peas are so spotty that the condition of each individual piece must be ascertained if the contract grower is to have any idea how his own crop is going to turn out.

A FOUR-STORY building with all up-to-date equipment is being erected for the St. Louis Seed Co., St. Louis, Mo., at 411-13 Washington avenue. According to the terms of the lease, the company will take possession November 1.

THE seeds paragraphs of the new tariff bill have been adopted by both houses of Congress, which takes the subject out of the jurisdiction of the conference committee and makes it certain that the law will read as printed in The Review of June 26, page 16.

E. S. GUNN, for seventeen years identified with the Griswold Seed Co., Lincoln, Neb., is removing to Waterloo, Ia., to become general manager of the Galloway Bros.-Bowman Seed Co. Mr. Gunn has been vice-president of the Griswold corporation, in direct charge of its mail-order department. The Waterloo house recently has extended its mail-order operations to a considerable extent and will push in this field strongly in the future.

THE J. J. Wilson Seed Co., of Newark, N. J., has recently been incorporated under the laws of the state and will be ready for business about the middle of September, at 79 Orange street. The president of the company is J. J. Wilson, who for fifteen years has been with J. M. Thorburn & Co., New York, for eight years secretary of the corporation. He severed his connection there August 30. R. F. MacClelland is vice-president and W. A. Schenck secretary of the new concern. Newark, Mr. Wilson says, always has appealed to him as one of the best cities in the United States for a seedsmen.

THE Senate has added to the tariff bill a provision that mother bulbs, imported exclusively for propagating purposes, shall be admitted free of duty. The amendment was offered by Senator Shively, of Indiana, for the finance committee, it having been suggested some weeks ago by the senators from the state of Washington, in behalf of the bulb industry in that state.

LANGPORT, ENGLAND

STATISTICS compiled by the federal government show that the imports of bulbs for the twelve months ending June, 1913, were 288,646,000, compared to 216,159,000 for a similar period ending June, 1912. The number imported for the same length of time ending June, 1911, is not known, but the values of the bulbs imported during that period and the two twelvemonths following were respectively $1,636,113, $1,718,839 and $1,823,307.

ARTICLES of incorporation have been filed by Woodward & Co., of Duluth, Minn., to deal in grain, seeds and agricultural supplies, with a capitalization of $25,000. The incorporators and board of directors are as follows: President, Austin M. Woodward, of Hibbing; vice-president, George S. Wilson, of Minneapolis; secretary, Morris Hoyt Woodward, of Minneapolis; treasurer, Earl Raymond Woodward, of Minneapolis; directors, Ernest A. Woodward, of Winni-

SEPTEMBER CROP REPORT.

Drought and hot weather throughout the west and southwest during August caused further enormous losses to the corn crop of the country, as well as to all other late crops. The corn crop suffered further losses during the month of 292,000,000 bushels, as estimated by the government report, issued September 9, the crop indicated being 2,351,000,000 bushels, compared to 2,643,000,000 bushels a month ago. Compared to last year's final estimate there is a loss of 764,000,000 bushels. Not since 1901 has the corn crop suffered such losses as it has this year. The condition in Kansas fell to ten per cent. The showing of the principal corn states is as follows:

	Pct.	Condition—	10 yr.
	U. S. Sept. 1, 1913.	Sept. 1, 1912.	aver- age, 1913.	Aug. 1, 1913.
Illinois	9.9	62.0	85.0	72.0
Iowa	9.3	76.0	93.0	85.0
Nebraska	7.1	37.0	80.0	67.0
Kansas	6.9	10.0	74.0	30.0
Missouri	6.9	41.0	84.0	70.0
Texas	6.6	78.0	75.0	79.0
Oklahoma	4.8	39.0	64.0	44.0

Crops that reached maturity earlier in the season did well, the total wheat crop being placed at 754,000,000 bushels, breaking all previous records, and being 24,000,000 bushels larger than a year ago. The spring wheat crop was placed at 243,000,000 bushels, the August estimate being raised by 10,000,000 bushels. Compared to last year the crop is short 87,000,000 bushels.

THE REASON WHY

The fact that we sell many more lily bulbs to florists than any other firm in the world is of little consequence. But the reason why this is so is important. It is because the bulbs have given better satisfaction on the average than any other brand known. There are no better lily bulbs grown anywhere in the world than Horseshoe Brand Giganteum--due here very soon. Now is the time to order if you have not done so before. Prices as follows:

Size 6/8	$16.00 per case of 400
Size 7/9	18.00 per case of 300
Size 9/10.....	22.00 per case of 200

Oats also have turned out better than expected, the condition of the crop at harvest being seventy-four, a shade better than a month ago, with the preliminary final estimate 1,066,000,000 bushels, or 38,000,000 bushels more than last month, but comparing with a bumper yield last year of 1,418,000,000 bushels. Compared to all ordinary standards the oats crop would be considered a large one.

The drought had almost as serious an effect proportionately on the potato crop as on corn. The September report indicates a yield of 325,000,000 bushels, compared to 421,000,000 bushels a year ago.

PITTSBURGH, PA.

The Market.

The weather last week was hot and vegetation of all kinds has dried up so that it looks much like fall. This has had a bad effect on outdoor flowers, such as gladioli and asters, except where irrigation is possible. Trade also seemed to be affected as much as the flowers, and business was generally quiet. There are more short roses, as the young stock is coming along now, and the scarcity of last week is not felt. Beauties are still plentiful and cheap. Good lilies and valley also are cheap, so that it is possible to take satisfactory care of orders if customers will only take the kinds of flowers that are good.

Club Meeting.

The Pittsburgh Florists' Club held its last meeting at Fort Pitt hotel, September 2. There was a fair crowd in attendance.

P. S. Randolph & Sons exhibited the following gladioli: Peace, Niagara, Mrs. Francis King, America and Baron Hulot.

The Schenley park conservatories exhibited fine cut blooms of Semple's asters.

President Neil McCallum had an exhibition of hardy and wild flowers, on which he gave an interesting talk.

Mrs. Elsie McFate, of the Hillside Hardy Flower Gardens, Turtle Creek, Pa., gave a most interesting and instructive talk on hardy plants and flowers for the garden. Mrs. McFate is the first woman who has ever read a paper or talked before the club and the club will certainly lose nothing by hunting up a few more ladies who can give as intelligent a talk, for there are some things women see that men pass by and it is well to have someone show them what they are missing.

Fred Burki, the only member present who attended the convention, made a report. He said that the convention, although not so large as some, was one of the best he ever attended. He spoke of the outdoor planting, which attracted considerable attention, and thinks it would not be surprising if that would be a feature at future conventions. His report of the bustling, beautiful city, of the fine parks, beautiful lakes and drives, as well as the beautiful homes and delightful people he met in Minneapolis, made those who might have gone feel they had missed a good deal by staying at home. meeting was an especially interesting one. President Neil McCallum arranges some special features for each meeting and is desirous of having even more assistance than he is receiving.

Various Notes.

Frank Stafford, of Randolph & McClements, leaves this week for his vacation, which will be spent on a trip with his family to the seashore.

George Marshall has returned from Canada and reports the fishing fine. He will now be included among our noted fishermen, as he has stories as good as the best of them.

There are rumors of the consolidation of several growers and a wholesaler, but nothing definite has been given out so far.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Market.

In spite of the fact that the weather is unusually hot, the month of September has started well from a business standpoint. As a rule Labor day is dull, but this year it proved an exception. Although the bulk of the week's business was funeral work, several of the stores had some nice openings and one or two weddings. Stock in general is good, considering the heat. The new American Beauty roses are really fine for this season of the year, in size, color, foliage and length of stem, and are meeting with good sale. The new indoor carnations are not all that could be desired, being too short-stemmed. Indoor asters are about gone. Dahlias are now coming in by the wagon load in all varieties. Yellow and white chrysanthemums are also plentiful.

Various Notes.

The Washington Florists Co. is showing a number of foreign rose novelties, including one of the Richmond type but of a deep maroon color.

The sale is reported of the property

IT PAYS TO PLEASE

Yes, it pays to please some people sometimes. I have always tried to please my customers, as they have proved to be real friends in most instances, and I owe my success largely to the clever class of Florists who have so generously extended their patronage to me; they have given me every chance, all they want is fair treatment, right quality of stock and right price, it depends on me to do the rest. But every rose has its thorn, and if unfair and unjust impositions from a few competitors could have put me out of business, I would now be "ancient history"; but it's not in me to be a quitter, as long as I do right; I will buy, sell and even fight, if necessary, to make an independent living. I am not in it for the "novelty," "distinction" or "honor" of some day being a business woman. The highest honor a woman can achieve, in my opinion, is the honor of well doing the duties of wife and motherhood, the purpose for which she was created, but this is not the argument for the present. If hustling will give me a good living, and a few luxuries, I will never dwell in a poorhouse, if I can help it. I make every effort to give a full dollar's worth for every dollar I receive, but I certainly have had my money most graciously extracted by a few dealers, especially the Dutch; a woman does look easy to some people, perhaps they will learn it's only in looks. If you doubt any of this little "spiel" I will be most appreciative of having an opportunity to fill any part of your belated orders for Paper White Narcissus, 1,250 bulbs to a case, $8.25 per 1000; Roman Hyacinths, 400 left, $12.00 for the lot or $3.25 per 100; Calla lily bulbs, No. 1, $11.50, and No. 2, $8.50 per 100; Hyacinths, in best commercial named sorts, $4.50 to $6.00 per 100; Hyacinths, Miniature, best named sorts, $2.25 per 100; Tulips and Dutch Narcissus, many varieties and prices. Am still booking orders for Lilium Album, Roseum, Rubrum, Magnificum and Auratum, also Giganteum, and Spiraea Gladstone. I will be pleased to quote on anything for fall or winter delivery.

Mr. and Mrs. William Marche have returned from a three weeks' stay at Asbury Park, N. J. On their return trip a visit was made to the New York and Philadelphia flower markets.

The regular monthly meeting of the Florists' Club of Washington, held last week, was a quiet affair and, aside from an interesting talk by W. F. A resolution was adopted commending Robert McLennan for his skill in making the highest individual bowling score during the convention. Following adjournment, refreshments were served.

The Market.

Business remains in a quiescent stage at present, but indications now point to an active fall and winter, as there are rumors of several large society events and weddings to occur during the season that is just opening. The growers report their various stocks in as good condition as could be expected after the series of excessively hot days and exceedingly cold nights. Funeral work remains good. Being well distributed, it has given everybody something to do. Asters are at their best and in large quantities.

Various Notes.

Eugene Appleton had a large wedding decoration last week that called for more than three loads of palms and ferns.

J. G. Jansen, of the Park Greenhouses, left last week for an extended vacation trip through New England.

E. A. Chipman, of Woonsocket, is doing an extensive business in making daily or weekly delivery of flowers to cemetery lots under special contracts for the service.

William Doel, of Pascoag, is in New York this week to meet his wife on her return from an extended sojourn with relatives in England.

Leo Engel has been making a business visit to Philadelphia during the last week.

R. Higgins, at 217 Academy avenue, is busy planting his new greenhouses.

C. S. Andem, of Putnam, Conn., was in this city last week, placing orders for supplies.

Frederick C. Green was elected a vice-president at the recent annual convention of the American Association of Park Superintendents at Denver.

Walter Macrae, of F. Macrae & Sons, has been spending his vacation in Nova Scotia. The firm is cutting some fine roses and lilies.

A. W. Vose has moved his store from 241 to 243 Main street, Woonsocket.

Thomas Curley has returned from a trip through the White mountains and the Berkshires.

According to the last assessment, just announced by the board of tax assessors, Elizabeth O'Connor, wife of Timothy O'Connor, is taxed on property valued at $120,840.

SEPTEMBER SOWING

BY SOWING seed of Silver Pink Snapdragon during September, you can have a continuous supply of blossoms from Easter until July. Pause a moment and figure what this means. There is no other plant that can be depended upon to do half so much business nor yield half so much profit. See recent ads to find what our patrons say. A big grower who had one pkt. of seed last year has just reordered seven pkts. This is the kind of evidence that counts.

Silver Pink is easy to grow, and our free directions give the necessary rules. Our prices are low and, whether you use seeds or plants, you can have a bed at very small cost. Price of seed, over 500 to the pkt., $1.00; 3 pkts., $2.50; 7 pkts., $5.00—by return mail.

PLANTS

We have the finest plants that we have grown—about 25,000 of them, ready for shipment in October. They will be ready for the bench or potting on without further topping. Order early, even if you are not ready to bench. By getting them when ready, you will save on the price and express. If your bench is not ready, you can hold them in 3-inch pots. Figure your needs and let your order come. The price is only $4.00 per 100, $35.00 per 1000, by express.

Cash, please.

the large exhibitors of dahlias in all classes at the state fair at Syracuse, N. Y., this week. He has arranged to have exhibits at all the large fairs this fall.

Charles H. Hunt figured in an accident with his automobile a few days ago. A small child suddenly dodged from behind an ice-wagon and ran directly in front of Mr. Hunt's machine, which struck the child but fortunately without seriously injuring it, as the machine was moving quite slowly. No blame was attached to Mr. Hunt for the accident.

Paul Berkowitz, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, was a business visitor in this city last week.

H. Shaw, Branch Village, Woonsocket, is making an attractive exhibition of asters at his greenhouses.

Joseph Koppelman has recently installed a new electric plant at his range at Oaklawn.

The window displays by Johnston Bros. are among the most attractive in the city. W. H. M.

NASHVILLE, TENN.

The Market.

The last two weeks have been uneventful ones in the business here. The drought continues, with no appearance of a break. Stock is growing well in general, for everything, of course, is indoors now.

Roses are arriving in good quantities, especially short-stemmed ones. There seems to be an unusually large number of fairly good American Beauties for this season of the year. Radiance is seen in greater quantities than ever before, while Kaiserin is always abundant in this market. The yellows are more numerous than ever before, and they are being used a great deal in design work, especially Ward. Dahlias are beginning to put in their appearance, but not in sufficient quantity to

Begonia Prima Donna

A grand winter-blooming variety of easy cultivation, bright, glossy foliage, with a profusion of bright pink flowers at their best in winter; flowers the size and color of the Lorraine type. Sow seeds now. Liberal trade packet, 25c; 5 for $1.00.

PERENNIAL PLANTS

Q Strong spring seedlings, ready for nursery rows: Digitalis Gloxiniaeflora, purple, pink, white; Shasta Daisy Alaska, large-flowering, best hardy daisy; Aquilegia Chrysantha (yellow), Grandiflora Alba (white), Rose Queen (pink), $1.00 per 100, $6.00 per 1000.

Larger plants, ready for immediate sale: Campanula Calycanthema, blue, white, pink; Sweet Williams, blood red; Double Hollyhocks, dark rose, salmon, pink, crimson, white, $2.00 per 100, $18.00 per 1000.

Vinca Variegata, heavy field clumps, $6.00 per 100.

Boston Fern Runners, 2 to 3 leaves, $2.00 per 100.

amount to much. The first of the new Russell roses were seen in the Nashville market last week. When they were placed in the same vase with American Beauty, it was difficult to distinguish the two varieties. Those who are growing the Russell rose state that they are much pleased with its behavior thus far.

Carnations are beginning to put in their appearance, but the quality is not right yet. The French bulbs have begun to arrive, though the main shipments are not here. A limited number of Paper Whites have already been planted. Contrary to all reports, the quality of the bulbs is fully up to the usual standard. None of the Dutch bulbs have arrived here as yet.

Various Notes.

A new pest has attacked the cannas in some places in Nashville this year—a peculiar, striped worm, not unlike the worm that attacks parsley and other such stock. Of course, it is easy to control the pest by poisoning.

The Joy Floral Co. is trying the plan of holding a special Friday afternoon sale at low prices, to clean up. A week ago the firm had a card in the window announcing the offer of two dozen asters or two dozen roses for $1 for the afternoon only.

CURRIE BROS. CO., 108 Wisconsin Street, Milwaukee, Wis.
312 Broadway,

Joe Browne, of Lischey's Gardens, continues in poor health. He has stopped all building operations, and says he has decided to wait until he sees how things turn before doing anything.

Leo Geny has returned from his vacation, spent in Louisville and Cincinnati. He says he is feeling fine and that he had the time of his life. He says that business has been good during the last week, with a large demand for funeral designs.

McKay, Reece & Co. say that there is not a great deal going on in the seed line so far, and that business will not be lively until there is a general rainfall. They say that in their entire experience as seedsmen they have never known a more unfavorable season than this summer. F. B.

During the last year McIntyre Bros. have expended thousands of dollars in alterations and additions. The improvements include a new iron-frame greenhouse at Woody Crest station. The firm has also put into service two handsome auto delivery cars, which are something of an innovation in the florists' trade in this city. The cars were built by the Waller & Porter Carriage Co. A car of the same sort will be put into use by Geny Bros. this fall.

BRAMPTON, ONT.

The Toronto Exhibition.

Exceptionally warm weather continues and a great many of the men are taking a day or two off to visit the Toronto exhibition, as both inside and outside work is well advanced for the season.

Sir Henry Pellat's gardener, T. McVittie, again took the big prize for the finest group displayed in the horticultural section, with Thomas Manton running a close second. Among the many beautiful exhibits was a collection of about 300 rose blooms grown outdoors and shown by John T. Moore, of Toronto. There were various types and varieties in great size and magnificent colors.

The floral designs proved a greater attraction than usual. The bridal bouquets and presentation baskets also were prettily and daintily arranged. S. A. Frost took first prize for bridal bouquets; T. Manton, second; A. S. Jennings, third. S. A. Frost also secured first prize for baskets, with T. Manton second and C. E. Lewis third.

The original designs attracted much attention. A. S. Jennings carried off first prize for a sailing yacht in white, and S. A. Frost again proved his artistic ability in a "wheel of time," which took second prize.

Various Notes.

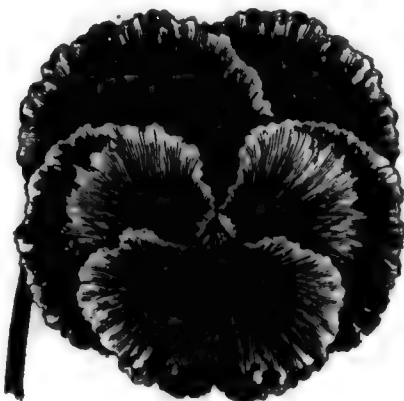

John Chambers, Sr., former commissioner of parks in Toronto, died August 31. Further particulars will be found in this week's obituary column.

The entertainment and supper given by employees of the Dale Estate, in honor of Superintendent Edward Dale's return from Europe, took place on Wednesday evening, September 3, and was a great success. J. Dunkley, T. Morris, A. Kensley and W. Little were responsible for the arrangements.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Montesano, Wash.—Mrs. M. Demaree is erecting a 100-foot chrysanthemum house.

Centralia, Wash.—E. J. Berneehe, of Olympia, was awarded first prize for the best exhibit at the Southwest Washington Fair. J. W. Wibra, of Chehalis, took second place.

Oakland, Cal.—H. M. Sanborn is the defendant in a suit for $30,000 personal damages, filed by Alfred D. Crittenden in the Superior court. The latter was injured July 2 while crossing San Pablo avenue at Eighteenth street. Mr. Sanborn is also a member of the present grand jury.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

The Market.

The weather remains quite cool, and everything favors cut flowers of all kinds. There have been no noticeable changes in stock during the last week. Asters are now at their height and are both good and cheap. Mums are not yet in full supply, as the outside supply is not yet to hand except in small lots. Japanese lilies and amaryllis are much scarcer than they have been. Dahlias are at their best. The bright red varieties sell well, but none of the other colors are in much favor with flower buyers. Gladioli are getting past their season, and only a few of the later sorts are seen. Violets are coming into town, but they are poor of stem and color, and do not keep well. Carnations are better than they have been at any time this fall. Roses are also much better than they were last month. Valley is not overplentiful, and orchids are scarce. Business is quiet, but there are some evidences of its early resumption.

Various Notes.

Rudolph Hackel has returned from a trip to Placerville, Cal.

Frank Shibeley, of the Shibeley-Mann Co., who has been on the sick list for several weeks, is able to attend to business again.

John Kappelman has returned from Los Angeles and is with the Julius Epstein Co.

Armanino & Co. have leased the greenhouses of Cook Bros., at Stege station, Alameda county, and will grow roses for the market.

George Cooke, of St. Albans, Vt., is in town. He has been on a sight-seeing trip in California for several weeks.

The Western Evergreen Co. has opened a supply house for all kinds of green goods on the corner of Bush and Kearny streets.

It is reported that the E. W. McLellan Co. has secured control of practically all the output of the violet growers on the peninsula for the coming season.

The Elmhurst Floral Co. has closed its retail store on Thirteenth street, Oakland.

On the completion of the new building on the corner of Fourteenth and Washington streets, Oakland, the Thorsted Floral Co. will open on the site of its former stand.

Henry Kessell, the well known fern grower, has been chosen chairman of the committee of arrangements for the convention of the Sons of Hermann, which will be held in San Francisco during the present month. G.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

The quantity of stock has decreased considerably, especially the better class of indoor flowers. The demand for valley and orchids, for instance, on certain days has been away above the supply and other flowers must frequently be substituted. There is not enough of this class of stock grown here, but at times there is far too much of the cheaper grades. The early chrysanthemums are now making a little better show, with Golden Glow in the front, as usual. Carnations are plentiful. Gladioli are not quite so numerous. There is an abundance of centaureas. Asters are past their best. Outdoor roses are fair, but the indoor flowers are short-stemmed and, as a rule, are thin in texture. A few more weeks and much better stock will be forthcoming. Greens are plentiful, especially the outdoor sorts. Good maidenhair ferns are not overplentiful and they sell well.

Club Meeting.

The regular monthly meeting of the Los Angeles Horticultural Society was held September 2, in Kruckeberg's hall. There was a fine attendance to hear W. W. Felgate speak on "Perennials and Their Culture." A large number of ladies were present. The interest in this natural style of gardening is gaining ground here, and in the discussion which followed Mr. Felgate's excellent paper it was plain that the importance of the subject was fully realized. Mr. Felgate dwelt considerably on the propagation of perennials and his remarks were followed closely and with interest.

President Winsel's call for a report from the flower show committee brought out the fact that nothing had been done but that great things were proposed.

Some splendid zinnias were exhibited by Mr. Felgate, the flowers being immense and of exquisite coloring.

Various Notes.

Lanss Bros. continue to improve their place and they are working up a fine stock of a considerable variety of plants, more than is usual at local nurseries. The cute down-easter said, "Never prophesy until you know," but a prophecy of success for the Lanss boys seems a pretty safe one.

Shipping business opened up strongly at the beginning of the month at the Los Angeles Flower Market. Probably the cooler weather and rains in the hills had something to do with this, but there is a better tone to business generally. There is mighty little stock left on the tables here at night.

The H. N. Gage Co. has the lumber and other materials on the ground for the new greenhouse at the Montebello ranch and will commence operations at once. Business at the store is reported excellent.

H. Reeve Darling says his August business was away ahead of that of last year.

One of the biggest social events of late was the wedding of J. R. Clark and Miss Florence Wood, which was celebrated September 1. Howard & Smith, of Ninth and Olive streets, had the decorations, which were elaborate and were under the supervision of W. Collins, the artistic florist who has charge of this department. Mr. Collins certainly beat all his own records in this. Both the church and the house were decorated. Over 4,000 Killarney roses, 1,000 gladioli, 150 cattleyas and nearly 2,000 valley were used, besides large quantities of other flowers and many Asparagus plumosus strings. The guest table was arranged around a sunken garden of Farleyense, valley and orchids, with a large kentia in the center, from which festoons of valley and orchids were arranged in a fountain effect which was exceedingly tasteful and elegant. The bride carried an arm shower of white orchids and maidenhair ferns. The maid of honor carried Killarney roses; the six bridesmaids carried shower bouquets of valley and orchids. The firm had carte blanche in the matter of cost.

Wallace Boyd, of the O. C. Saakes force, was in an accident to the "Angel's Flight" car when it ran wild down the steep incline and collided with the car going up. Fortunately, the injury was not serious, a sprained ankle being the worst part of it.

F. L. Smith, of Smith & Fettes, Cleveland, O., is in Los Angeles again. He seems to be undecided between the Angel City and San Francisco as a place in which to open a first-class store.

Fred Abrams, of the nursery department of the Germain Seed & Plant Co., started on a business trip to San Francisco and intermediate towns September 1, using his new automobile.

John Gordon is back at his post at Morris Goldenson's, looking well after an enjoyable holiday at Catalina.

H. R. Richards.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

Business is showing a gradual increase as the summer passes. August, compared with last season, shows a gradual increase, which speaks well for the business, considering the money stringency. Fall weddings are numerous; good prices prevail in all lines of decorative work. Flowers are not overplentiful, asters being the best flower obtainable. Lilies have held out well, auratum especially; rubrums have about passed out of the market. Roses are improving, yet are rather small. Young stock of carnations is coming in nicely. Dahlias, sunflowers and Golden Glow make some good store effects.

Various Notes.

R. D. Van Slyke, of Tacoma, Wash., was in town and visited the local greenhouses.

were badly injured by fire last week; defective wiring in the garret was the cause.

The dahlia show was held at Vancouver, Wash., August 29 and 30. Many fine flowers were exhibited. While amateurs were the principal exhibitors, the show was of great interest to the public.

John Olson, the local woodsman, has purchased a one-ton automobile truck, which solves the delivery proposition for him.

Clarke Bros. are growing the Prima Donna rose extensively this season. So far it has proved to have wonderful keeping qualities and bids fair to be a popular variety.

A call at the various greenhouses finds stock in general in good condition. Mums are looking fine, in all varieties. Special efforts are being made to have specimen stock for the fall flower show. Carnations are looking fine; while stock is generally late, the new stock has been coming in gradually. Roses of all varieties are looking well. While stock is short for the present, indications are that there will be plenty by the time the demand increases.

Hendee Bros. have a good cut of auratum and albums coming in, which sell readily.

The Clackamas Greenhouses, at Clackamas, Ore., are building two houses, 22x125, adjoining their present place. E. R.

SPOKANE, WASH.

Business is dull. Asters are of fine quality; so, also, are gladioli and the cactus dahlias.

The Spokane Florist Co. has some excellent baskets of cactus dahlias on display. The firm continues to have attractive window decorations.

The A. J. Burt Co. has an elaborate miniature reproduction of the Munroe concrete bridge, which spans the river, with the proposed steel railway bridge towering over the river. It is a clever display.

The Hoyt Bros. Co. has a reproduction of Glacier park as a window display and it is quite realistic.

A new flower store will be added to the list here shortly; so I understand. B. G.

Fifty Acres for Seed.

The seed farms of the John Bodger & Sons Co., near Los Angeles, are never more interesting than during the aster season, when all that is best in these flowers can be seen. Some fifty acres are devoted to asters alone and they are grown on a southern exposure, so that, looking north, they have the effect of an immense carpet of all colors, with other flowering plants grown between the varieties. The number of these that are grown is almost bewildering, but the principal interest lies in the fine strains of American Branching and the Giant Comet Branching.

The American Branching type is well known and almost universally grown for florists' use, but the Giant Comet Branching does not seem to have become so popular as yet—why, it is difficult to say, for the flowers are immense, some of them six inches across, of the finest and most pleasing shades of color and absolutely free from the defect the older strains had, of showing a bare center.

Bodger Strain of Comet Asters.

The Bodger strain of Comet asters, indeed, has always a raised tuft of central petals that absolutely prevents the center from showing, even if the flowers were not full. The range of coloring is as great as in the American Branching types.

ond. The petals of both are finely waved, like those of the Crego type, but they make a fuller, more massively built flower. The purple, too, is excellent and a large acreage is planted to this. Crimson, lavender and light blue are all of the best in their separate colors, and the habit of the plants is all that could be desired. There is also a lovely flesh-pink, of which the stock is not particularly large as yet, but it is certainly a beauty. At the time of my visit, little in the way of roguing had been done, but it was surprising how few had come untrue to color or type, and it takes the eye of an expert like Mr. Bodger to distinguish the sheep from the goats.

American Branching Types.

Though I have mentioned the Comet varieties somewhat more fully, it must not be thought that the American Branching types are any less grown, for there are many acres of the finest in all the popular colors. Violet King is excellent, being the true Elks' color, and several of the older types, such as Mary Semple and the Victorias, are still grown here. The early Hohenzollern kinds were past their best, but there were enough flowers left to show their beauty and a fine crop of seed was maturing. The peony-flowered kinds, too, were well to the front, and in what Mr. Bodger calls his nursery a number of choice things are being tried out.

Cosmos and Other Flowers.

The early flowering varieties of cosmos are rapidly taking the place of the older, later kinds and they are grown here in considerable variety. The Mammoth zinnias, too, are worth a long journey to see, the flowers being immense in size, with the brightest and clearest colors. This strain is unsurpassed by any of the imported ones.

Care in roguing, good soil and the fine climate of the Pacific slope, all contribute to the excellence of the seed which is grown on the Bodger ranches, and which is well known from coast to coast. To save unnecessary correspondence, it may be well to mention the fact that no seed is retailed here. All is grown by contract or for purely wholesale trade, H. R. R.

FORCING SPANISH IRIS.

What is the best way to force Spanish iris? I have planted them in solid beds in the greenhouse for two years, but have had poor luck with them. I planted new bulbs each year, but only one-third of them bloomed. I keep them in a temperature of about 48 to 50 degrees at night. Will they grow in flats or coldframes? C. A.

Spanish iris will not stand hard forcing. It will hardly pay to grow them in beds or benches, as they occupy them so long before flowering, unless you really have beds which you would not otherwise require. They do well in flats containing six inches of soil. It would be best to keep them in coldframes until November and then place them in a cool house where they would get abundant light. The temperature would better not be over 45 degrees at night. This early lot will flower about March 20. Later lots can be housed at intervals of eight or ten days. They will also grow well planted in coldframes. C. W.

To Pacific Coast Florists:

What stock have you for sale to the trade? Is it moving as it should? No?

Then tell the trade about it by using the Pacific Coast Pages of The Review.

Pacific Coast advertisers almost invariably report good results. Like this:

Say! That ad's a humdinger for getting the business.—Everett Floral Co., Everett, Wash.

I sold all the Mum cuttings advertised, and you will not hear from me again until I can get some more stock ready. Shall root 100,000 carnation cuttings for next season, as I know The Review will sell them for me.—Frank Wilhelm, Los Angeles, Cal.

Please cut out of our advertisement in The Review the cyclamen seedlings. We sold all our surplus cyclamen seedlings as a direct result of our advertisement in your paper.—Spokane Greenhouses (Inc.), Spokane, Wash.

We want to say that our last advertisement in The Review brought us orders from both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts. We had, strangely enough, on following days, orders from Salem, Ore., and from Salem, Mass.—State Floral Co., North Yakima, Wash.

We are well pleased with the results obtained by advertising in the Pacific Coast Department of The Review. We sold out clean and refused many orders. The Review surely gives results.—Van Slyke & Seamons, Tacoma, Wash.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

SEPTEMBER is the month the retail nurserymen devote to the state and county fairs.

THE long term of high heat and drought has inflicted a great deal of loss on the western specialists in seedling apple.

J. W. TETIRICK, of the C. V. Nurseries, at Blackwell, Okla., has been looking over the ground at Corpus Christi, Tex., with a view to starting a nursery business there.

AFTER the meeting at Mont Eagle, Tenn., a number of the members of the Southern Nurserymen's Association accepted the invitation of Chase Bros. and visited the nurseries at Chase, Ala., where they were treated to an old-fashioned barbecue.

W. H. SAMSON, of Corning, Cal., who owns one of the largest nurseries in the Sacramento valley, has turned over the management to two young men, Messrs. Hoffman and Cole, who have been in his employ two years, with a working interest of one-fourth of the output of the nursery.

THE paragraphs of the new tariff bill relating to nursery stock have all been adopted by both houses of Congress, thus removing them from the jurisdiction of the conference committee and making it practically certain that the law will read as printed in The Review for June 26, page 16.

NURSERYMEN in the middle west and southwest have given up hope of securing a normal season's growth for their stock this season; the loss in spring plantings has been heavy and growth has been the poorest in years. Rains now can not help much and might do considerable damage by preventing the maturing of growth at the usual time.

SUIT has been filed against the Phoenix Nursery Co., of Bloomington, Ill., by Henry Theze and Joseph Mahassek to recover the sum of $1,035.90, alleged due on three checks upon which payment was refused at the bank. F. Rynveld has also filed a suit in assumpsit for $600 which he claims is due him for supplies sold to the company. A credit on the original bill makes the balance $436.57.

NEW YORKERS ORGANIZE.

An organization to be known as the New York State Nurserymen's Association was formed at a meeting at Utica September 4, attended by nurserymen from many sections of the state. The following officers were chosen:

President—E. S. Osborne, of Rochester.

Vice-presidents—J. M. Pitkin, of Newark; Maxwell Sweet, of Dansville; F. A. Guernsey, of Schoharie, and F. J. Smith, of Fredonia.

Secretary—John Watson, of Newark.
Treasurer—Horace Hooker, of Rochester.

The meeting was called to order by Mr. Osborne, who had in the Rochester delegation such men as Wm. Pitkin, C. J. Maloy and Horace Hooker. Mr.

Osborne is president of the National Association of Retail Nurserymen and the purpose was stated to be the amalgamation of this organization and the Eastern Nurserymen's Association. The territory covered by these associations is confined to western New York and it is proposed to extend the new organization's influence to all parts of the state. While the New York State Association will not affiliate with the American Association of Nurserymen, which is international in scope, it will in no way conflict with the larger association, since nearly all the members of the new organization are members of the American association.

The subject of a new state organization has been under way for several months, Mr. Osborne being the father of the idea. It is said a membership of 130 is assured.

QUESTIONS OF THE DAY.

A page and a quarter of the printed program of the annual meeting of the Southern Nurserymen's Association, which was reported in this department in last week's issue of The Review, was devoted to a list of questions of importance to nurserymen today. These were taken up in the open discussion at the final session of the meeting. What were the points that appealed to that association is undoubtedly of interest to many nurserymen not at that meeting, and the list is given herewith:

QUESTIONS AND SUGGESTIONS.

Is there any way to raise the standard of labor?

Will nurserymen continue to grow long lists of trees and plants, many of which are worthless, or seldom called for?

Why should nurserymen be expected to replace trees that die after planting?

Are southern retail nurserymen ready to take any definite action on the replace evil?

Would it be practical to use as budding stock apple grafts which have proved rather free from crown gall and aphids?

Do nurserymen want their products included in the parcel post rates?

Is the sale of budded pecans a profitable feature of our business under present conditions?

Experiences in spraying with Bordeaux to make leaves drop early in fall before digging.

Who knows what it costs to grow a tree—any tree?

Who has had experience with the use of lime on nursery lands?

Unfavorable newspaper criticism.

How may we sell at a profit trees which are already grown?

State owned vs. privately owned nurseries.

The cherry—what kind of stock is best—budded in summer, or ground grafted in winter—if budded, when, and with bark or wood bud?

Spraying privet to cause the leaves to turn loose.

What difference in price should be made to tree dealers, and at wholesale to nurserymen?

New fruits of special merit.

Old varieties of special merit.

Do lower prices at retail help to make larger sales?

Surplus lists last spring.

Is nursery cooperation a success?

Do the low prices quoted on apple and peach by some catalogue houses help the salesman on the road?

Can you use gas or gasoline lights in nursery storage buildings without injury to stock from heat and drying the atmosphere?

What benefit has this association been to you, and how may we make it more beneficial?

STANDARD INSPECTION.

The problem of inspection is still a thorn in the side of every nurseryman and, what is worse, it is pricking more and more. Something must be done before long to remedy conditions; at the Portland convention, William H. Stark, of Stark City, Mo., presented a plan to standardize state inspection by the aid of the federal government.

"What we want," said Mr. Stark, "is thorough, uniform inspection, in so far as inspection is necessary, administered in a way to eliminate the present loss and delay due to the inspection, and to put the increased cost of conforming to the inspection upon the ultimate consumer, where it properly belongs.

"We cannot hope to get any degree of uniformity by working through the different nurserymen's and fruit growers' associations, trying to get each state to pass a uniform law. It is practically impossible to find any two states with the same requirements. There is no question that the inspection, as done under the direction of the state experiment stations and state universities, has certain advantages.

Their organizations are the logical ones for the work. It is necessary that every function that can be performed by the states be entrusted to these individual state organizations. tween the state and the federal offices. The solution in our case is one utilizing both the state and federal organizations to secure the desired results.

"To have thorough and adequate inspection throughout the United States it would be necessary to have federal aid. If this aid were given in the form of substantial appropriations for carrying on the work, it is reasonable to assume that every state would come into an agreement providing for uniform and thorough inspection. If the federal government would pass a bill providing $1,000 a year for each state and then give as much in addition to this as would be appropriated by each state for carrying on the work in its boundaries, it is safe to assume that every state would agree to adopt the requirements for uniform inspection, and accept the inspection certificate of other states.

"The success of such an arrangement depends upon thorough work, at a minimum cost, by competent, responsible, fair-minded men. It should be provided that the actual inspection be done under the direction of the state universities and experiment stations, as they have trained workers who understand the conditions of each state. The individual inspectors should be paid good salaries. They should be paid enough to insure getting trained, competent and disinterested men. These men should be required to pass a strict examination before qualifying for the work, and their appointment should be entirely free from any taint of party politics. Ten years ago it would have been impossible to secure enough trained men for inspectors, but our universities are turning out thousands of trained men every year and it is now possible to get experts to do this work. The entire success of this arrangement depends upon the thoroughness and fairness of the work done by these inspectors."

SHRUBS FOR SHADY PORCH.

Will you please let me know what are the best plants to grow along a porch where there is shade from trees? I want, especially, rhododendrons and other shrubs. I am in the latitude of Pittsburgh, Pa.

J. M.

I am somewhat uncertain from this query whether you want climbers for your porch, plants to stand on the porch itself, or shrubs to grow below the shade of overhanging trees. If the last-mentioned are wanted, you could have nothing better than rhododendrons. Use such reliable varieties as album elegans, roseum elegans, Delicatissima, Charles Dickens and Caractacus. Prepare a bed not less than two feet deep for them, working in a liberal quantity of decayed cow manure and rotted leaves. Prepare the ground

TOLEDO, O.

The Market.

Business during the last week has been unusually good for this time of the year. The rain we hoped for has not come, and, as a result, asters are extremely scarce and not of good quality.

Various Notes.

The Cushman Gladiolus Farm has some fine gladioli which have been greatly appreciated by the florists, as they have taken the place of asters.

Mr. and Mrs. Otto Krueger had a delightful time on their trip to Yellowstone Park and at the convention.

Miss Helen F. Patten and Miss C. B. Flick enjoyed a lake trip to Port Arthur, Ontario, and Duluth, going from Duluth to the convention. They are enthusiastic over Minneapolis and the royal manner in which the ladies of Minneapolis and St. Paul entertained the ladies of the S. A. F.

Lester Ritzman, of Krueger Bros., is enjoying his vacation.

Congratulations are being extended to J. Helmer on the advent of a baby daughter.

Visitors to our city last week were Steven Green, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., and Mr. Smith, of the Wm. Boas Co.

H. F. P.

Montgomery, Ala.—W. E. Denny, formerly of New Orleans, La., has started in business here. His greenhouses are on the outskirts of the city and his office at 14 Dexter avenue.

Carthage, Mo.—The Carthage Greenhouses, formerly owned by Frank Finn, which were sold to satisfy a mortgage to Oscar De Graff, of Joplin, have been sold by him to Thomas R. Johnson, of Joplin, for a consideration of $8,000. Perry Swindle, who has been in charge of the plant for the last four years, will continue under Mr. Johnson, who takes possession at once.

Anthericum Mandaianum

Without doubt the most valuable introduction of late for all florists, resembling a tufty miniature Pandanus Veitchii, excellent for fern dishes, etc., standing lots of abuse. Quick grower anywhere. Strong plants, ready for shifting from 2½-inch pots, 10c each; $6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000.

The Best That The Future Has To Offer

IT IS our custom to handle only varieties we believe to be worthy of a place in the best commercial establishments. The new Roses we have offered in past seasons have made a reputation for themselves and the character of stock we have sent out has made an enviable reputation for our firm. We offer Killarney Brilliant in the belief that it is the coming standard of perfection. We have arranged with the originators for eyes for grafting purposes. We can supply any quantity you may require.

Killarney Brilliant

A sport from Killarney, grown in the open ground in England. Killarney was introduced in 1898, and since then there have been so many sports that Killarney has developed into a type rather than a variety. Messrs. Alexander Dickson & Sons, the original introducers, are to be congratulated, sixteen years after the advent of Killarney, in giving us now this distinct novelty which is undoubtedly the best of all varieties of this type.

Killarney Brilliant has the same habit of growth and the same freedom of bloom as its parent while the flower is twice as large, having 25 to 40 full-sized petals. It will be as useful for summer blooming as for Winter forcing. The color is a very brilliant pink and varies like Killarney; in bright weather it is almost crimson, and in dull weather, when Killarney is so pale, it is as bright as Killarney at its best. The sale of Killarney Brilliant a year before its introduction has been larger than that of any other Rose ever sent out in this country.

Grafted Plants, 75c each; $7.50 per dozen; $35.00 per 100; $300.00 per 1000.

New Carnation Gloria

(H. W. Field and A. N. Pierson, Inc.)

In offering this new Carnation to the trade, we offer what we believe to be a paying commercial variety; strong in growth, making a quantity of flowering shoots rather than wonderful length of individual stems. In color, the brightest pink we have ever seen in a carnation, and a color that will sell, which, combined with good calyx, fair-sized bloom and great production, makes this an attractive proposition to a man who knows Carnations.

Rooted Cuttings for December, $12.00 per 100, $100.00 per 1000.

Enchantress Supreme

As the best of the Enchantress family it needs no description. An improvement in color, in form of flower on a race of Carnations that have stood the test of time. We have a large stock.

Rooted Cuttings for December and later, $6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000.

NEWPORT, R. I.

The Market.

The florists of this city, as well as those of New York who maintain branch establishments here during the summer months, express themselves as well satisfied with the summer's business. The numerous large social functions—dinners, luncheons and dances—together with the tennis tournament and horse show, have created an unusually active demand for decorations and cut flowers, that has kept the florists busy. Orchids and lilies of the valley have been among the leaders.

Various Notes.

The autumn exhibition of the Newport Horticultural Society will be held in Convention hall, Newport beach, September 16 to 18.

The Wilson Nurseries, of Middletown, are having a good run of work on ornamental trees and shrubs.

Members of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society and of the Rhode Island Naturalists' Club visited the Barker Fig Gardens, at Middletown, last week. W. H. M.

Monmouth, Ill.—Charles A. Hewitt has started work on two new greenhouses, 30x75 feet, which he expects will be ready for planting in about a month.

Albuquerque, N. M.—Byron H. Ives and his wife returned August 31 from a three months' honeymoon trip through the east. They were married in Canada, July 9, and have been traveling since then.

KANSAS CITY.

The Market.

The market conditions are unchanged, as the hot weather continues. Funeral work is about the same as it has been, and this is the only business that is being done at present. Rain and cooler weather are what are needed, as the people are home from their vacations and school starts this week. Cut flower stock shows little improvement as yet, except that American Beauties and Killarneys are somewhat improved. Carnations are in demand; the public seems to have done without them long enough. Asters are about the same. Fancies sell well.

Various Notes.

The Geo. M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co. reports that business for last month was double that of the same month last year. Some nice Beauties are being cut. Everything looks good at the greenhouses, except the roses, which have not come up to expectation, on account of hot weather.

W. J. Barnes has started into his decorating season. He will be busy from now until October 8.

Kusik & Co. report business as being slow. They are receiving some nice Beauties. In the supply department business is opening slowly.

Walter Mott, representing Hammond's Slug Shot Works, and J. J. Karins, representing Henry A. Dreer, were in the city last week. W. J. B.

Grand Rapids, Mich.—Reed & Cheney, proprietors of the Grand Rapids Greenhouse Co., have been making repairs and changes in their plant, which now consists of 230,000 feet of glass. They have sown lettuce seed and expect to make the first cutting in time for the Thanksgiving trade.

LILIUM HARRISII

For Immediate Delivery

We offer a selected stock of the original true Harrisii for early forcing. The stock was grown from the original true type and will be found splendid stock for early forcing, for which purpose Harrisii is so valuable. The crop this season is much shorter than usual, but we are still in position to supply a nice lot of selected stock.

The Market.

Business was a little quiet last week, owing to the excessive heat; it was the hottest for any September since 1897. Quite a variety of flowers was seen on the market Saturday, including asters, which were small. Roses and carnations are more plentiful and the demand for them is good.

Various Notes.

C. L. Niednagel is cutting nice American Beauties of fine color. His Killarney and White Killarney and the new roses he is trying are growing well and the prospect is excellent.

Karl Zeidler is cutting large quantities of roses of the shorter-stemmed grade and finds a good sale for them.

Theodore Kuebler, of Santa Rosa Nurseries, has under construction a propagating house for chrysanthemum cuttings and will propagate eighty varieties for his rapidly increasing trade. He has about 10,000 mum plants and expects to cut about 15,000 flowers this season.

Julius Niednagel & Sons are having a good business. Their roses and carnations are looking excellent, as are also the mums and other stock.

The Wm. Blackman Floral Co. reports its usual good business. The company is cutting some carnations and lots of good roses.

J. C. Elspemann is enjoying a good trade. E. L. F.

Beatrice, Neb.—The Dole Floral Co. has purchased a Metz roadster for delivery in the city and to neighboring towns.

FIELD-GROWN PLANTS

READY NOW.

We do a very large business each season on carnation cuttings and field-grown plants because we never ship out stock we would not be willing to plant on our own benches. The field-grown plants are ready. This is not surplus stock, left after selecting the stock for our own use, but is stock grown especially for sale to the trade. If we did not know it was good stock, strong, stocky, well branched, and free from disease, we should not offer it for sale. Last year's customers will be back—and this is an invitation to those who have not yet bought here to order of us this year. Immediate shipment.

PEONIES.

"PEONIES FOR PLEASURE."

This book of "Peonies for Pleasure" gives information on peony history, soil and plants to use, how and when to plant, fertilizers and how to apply, and describes the most extensive planting of really valuable peonies ever gathered together under the sun; describes old and new as well as the plebeian and aristocrat of the peony family. If you want information on the plant that stands next to the rose in beauty, that is practically known to the amateur as simply a red, white and pink peony, then send for "Peonies for Pleasure."

We also issue a special wholesale price list of peonies for fall sales, 1913. Send for both of these booklets.

Our catalogue of everything you need mailed on application. Write for it today.

Greenhouse Heating.

THE government has started another trust-busting suit against the hard coal interests. The florists who burn anthracite wish them success.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

STEAM COAL PRICES SAGGING.

The Chicago trade shows a slight easing up in the demand for eastern coal, but some little improvement in demand for western coal. The premium price on smokeless has disappeared, anthracite prices have been run off a little, and other coals are about holding steady.

According to the Black Diamond of September 6, "smokeless continues to occupy the center of interest. About a week ago there was a small accumulation of unsold mine run, and before it was moved the sales agent was compelled to forego premiums and accept circular price. In the meantime that same shipper and a few others have increased their movement of contract coal, and this coal is encountering no increased buying. The larger retailers are not interested in purchasing smokeless at current prices. The market has sagged a little, and while some coal is selling at $1.50, a good buyer might not have much trouble in getting spot coal at circular of $1.40."

TO PREVENT BOILER SCALE.

I noticed in The Review of August 28, page 93, an inquiry regarding boiler scale. If I may offer a suggestion, I would say that a gallon of the cheapest molasses that can be found will slime over the inside of a boiler and prevent the formation of scale. While I grow dahlias for profit, I am foreman, also, for one of the leading coal companies of the city. In my position as foreman I have occasion to keep rather close watch over a 150 horse-power boiler and I know from experience that the preventive I have mentioned is an effective one. I have also found that if any grease or oil gets into a boiler, as is likely to happen when the boiler POINTS FOR STEAM USERS.

"Steam engineering has been defined as the service which produces the greatest income from a pound of fuel," is the sentence that opens the "Foreword" to a new catalogue issued by the Morehead Mfg. Co.

Every process by which more power can be derived from the fuel used under the boiler is of great interest. The question of improving the steam plant is one of the most vital of the day. It concerns the dividend of the business, and that, after all, must settle forever details of equipment and operation.

Successful operators of steam plants do not hesitate to discard old and inefficient apparatus if better results can be obtained. The plant equipped with the best pays the highest dividends. No manufacturing process or steam plant is really established on its feet until the leaks are looked after and the little, despised losses turned back into money.

One of the most formidable leaks in the power plant is that of condensation losses. It is a lamentable fact that there are many steam plant owners and operators who are perfectly indifferent to their losses, but they are not numbered among the progressive. When profits fall off, the wise manager looks first of all for the leaks.

In designing the equipment of a power plant there is often a tendency to devote a disproportionate share of attention to the extremes of the system and to neglect the intermediate details.

Power plant managers are constantly applying their ideas of economy, as shown in the selection of boilers that guarantee the most steam from a given amount of fuel, etc. If they can accomplish a saving of five to ten per cent by the use of stokers, fuel economizers, or other devices, they regard it as a great triumph; while, on the other hand, they allow a large percentage of the value of their fuel, the greatest item in operating expense, to go to waste—a preventable waste—through condensation of steam.

Waste of fuel and power through condensation losses are incessant and well-nigh universal, mounting up to a high total in the course of a year. The loss of steam by condensation in the steam lines has been calculated to be half a pound per hour for each foot of piping, which represents a loss of about an ounce of good steam—coal or its equivalent. This means four pounds of coal wasted per week for each foot of steam piping.

SIZE OF SMOKESTACK.

Will you please give us some information about a smokestack for our boiler? We are using an eighty horsepower, brick-set, return tubular steam boiler, set all above ground. The greenhouses are in a broad valley, so the drainage is good. How large a steel stack will be needed? In case we decide to erect a brick stack, how many brick and how much cement will be required? We wish to build the stack as cheaply as it is possible to do so and still have it satisfactory. S. B.

A steel stack twenty-four inches in diameter and fifty feet in height will answer for an eighty horsepower boiler. By making it sixty feet high, a stack of slightly less diameter might be used. A brick stack should have the same dimensions, and about 1,000 fire brick and 10,000 stock brick will be required. A cement foundation about eight feet square and with a depth of from three to six or more feet, according to the character of the subsoil, should be provided for the brick chimney.

TWO NEW JERSEY HOUSES.

Please give me some information as to how to pipe my greenhouses for hot water. One house is 14x33, seven feet high to the ridge and four feet to the eaves, with board sides. The roof is tight. This house I want heated to a temperature of 55 degrees. The other house is 12x36, ten feet to the ridge and four feet to the eaves, with board sides and glass in both ends. In this house I want a temperature of 40 to 50 degrees. The outside temperature seldom drops below zero. How large a boiler will be needed to heat these two houses? The beds will be solid.

L. S. A.

The boiler for the two houses should be rated for 400 to 450 square feet of radiation. To heat the house 14x33 feet to 55 degrees in zero weather, run a 2½-inch flow pipe about two feet below the ridge, giving it a slight fall to the farther end of the house. At that point branch it each way, using 2-inch pipes for this purpose, and connect them with nine 1½-inch returns, placing the larger number on the side most exposed. All of the returns may be on the side walls, but if bottom heat is desired a third 2-inch pipe may be dropped down and connected with three of the returns. For the other house the same method may be used, but the number of returns should be reduced one-third.

DEPTH OF BOILER PIT.

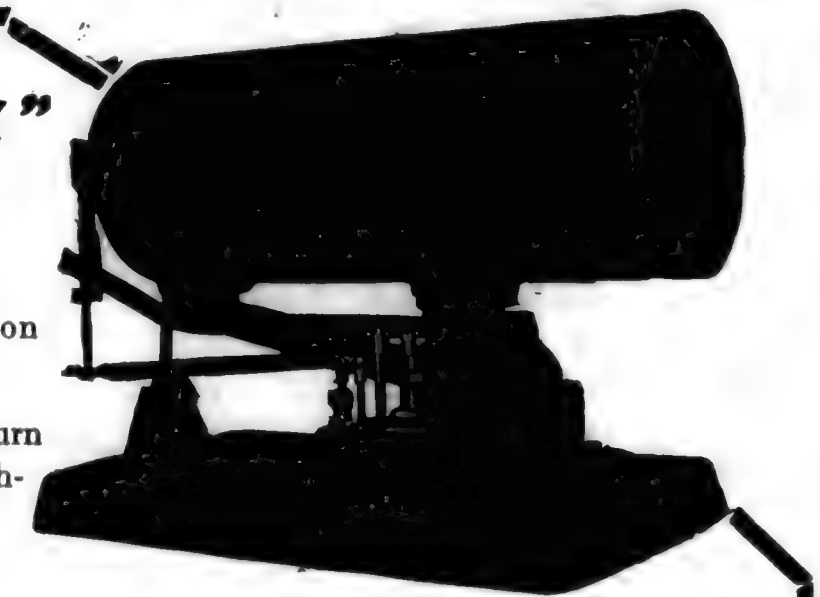

We are building a greenhouse, 24x100, for carnations and pot plants. The house runs east and west. The boiler shed is the full width of the house and is at the west end. The sides are five feet high, with sixteen inches of glass, and will be finished with cement stucco on board siding. The ridge will be eleven feet eight inches high. We wish to heat with hot water and have purchased a second-hand, seven-section Ideal boiler, with a fire-box 32x48 inches. We can conveniently set the boiler two feet below the level of the walks. Will it be necessary to set it deeper than that? Would you advise us to use a generator? Please inform us as to the best arrangement of the piping for this house, to heat it to 55 degrees. In this part of Michigan the outside temperature sometimes drops to 20 degrees below zero. D. & H.

Unless the boiler can be set low enough to bring the top of the fire-pot as low as the coils, a generator should be used. If the top of the boiler is as low as the floor of the greenhouse there will be less occasion for using a generator, although a considerable reduction in the amount of radiation can be made if a generator is used.

To furnish the needed radiation without a generator, use three 2½-inch flows, one of which may be under the ridge and the others on the plates, and nine 2-inch return pipes, connecting three of these with each flow pipe. If a generator is used, only six returns will be required in addition to the three 2½-inch flow pipes, but the economy of the heating will not be so great when the water is under pressure as in an open tank system. The boiler described should heat two houses like the one under construction.

The Market.

Two or three good rains have made a great improvement in the outdoor stock, and asters, which at first were thought to be extremely scarce, are now arriving abundantly. Nevertheless, there will be some slight shortage. The rains and cooler weather have pleased the local florists, and things in general look more encouraging. People are returning to the city, schools and colleges have opened and fall activities may soon be looked for. The fall openings in the large department stores usually bring in large orders for palms and ferns, foliage and hydrangea blossoms. Two or three of the uptown florists have large weddings to care for during the next two weeks.

Stock is arriving in good condition and is cleaned up fairly well without any real waste. There is a large supply of asters, but white ones are scarce. Carnations are improving a great deal in quality, but they are also scarce; there are hardly any red ones on the market at all. Gladioli are plentiful, but the more delicate shades are much used for funeral work. Sweet peas are almost at an end; only a few stray ones arrive now. Easter lilies are hard to obtain. Lilies of the valley are good, but not overabundant. Yellow chrysanthemums have made their first appearance. A few early tuberoses are seen. The supply of roses is unlimited, and they arrive in first-class condition. Killarneys seem to be the poorest of the lot; they open up so fast that they last practically no time at all. Good ones, however, are found in Radiance, Milady, Lady Hillingdon, Mrs. Taft, Mrs. Aaron Ward, Bride, Bridesmaid and the little Cecil Brunner, which works up admirably for corsage bouquets and basket work. The stock of greens is normal.

Various Notes.

H. E. Wilson's chrysanthemum plants are looking fine, and they promise good material for the coming season.

Henry P. Neun's force is kept quite busy at the store with fall business.

The Vick & Hill Co. is cutting some exceptionally fine red gladioli.

F. R. Bohnke has been quite busy of late. He has had a good share of funeral work and quite a number of wedding decorations. He will commence at once to erect another greenhouse for his growing trade.

Among the visitors this week was George Sick, of Canandaigua, N. Y.

E. R. Fry, is doing a fair amount of business. The fruit from his farm keeps him busy these days. H. J. H.

Two Q's, or the Quality Question

An Oil Sale with a Greenhouse Moral

Yesterday I was waiting for a train down at Glen Cove, and to kill time strolled into a nearby garage and sat down to smoke with Joe, the boss. As the first ashes were just about to drop off our cigars, in comes a hustling, bustling salesman and strikes Joe for an order of oil.

First thing that salesman did was to try and find out what Joe usually paid for his oil—then he simply made a price a few cents under it.

Price, price, price was his entire talk. Quality seemed an entirely secondary matter.

Joe didn't buy.

We were just in the midst of a discussion on tires when another oil salesman came in leisurely. First crack out of the box he said, "I understand you have 10 cars. You must use about so many gallons (forgot the amount) of oil a year, don't you?" "Yes."

"Well, you use too much."

Then followed a discussion of oil values and the comparative oiling and lasting qualities of various grades.

Numerous tests with prominent cars were mentioned and accurate facts stated as to actual results. A recent engine endurance run of 300 hours made by one of them without stopping was referred to, in which this salesman's highest grade oil had been used. After this quality talk—then and not till then—was price mentioned.

It had all been a question of what his oils would do; their goodness—their quality.

Joe bought two barrels and willingly paid 10 cents more a gallon than he ever had before.

Why did he do it? Simply because that salesman had shown him that cheaper oils cost more, because you have to use more, and results are less satisfactory.

When quality goes down to keep things balanced, quantity must go up. Don't forget that.

As I sat there listening to that most convincing sales talk, it occurred to me how many growers are today buying their greenhouses entirely on a price basis. For instance, this spring we lost an order for two big Western houses, just because our price was a few hundred dollars higher.

Price sold that order—not quality.

The other day the sales-manager and I dropped around to see the houses. It wasn't a difficult matter to figure the amount of iron in the houses and we soon found out that the actual weight of the iron frames was a third less than we would think of putting in our houses—in spite of the fact that this concern's houses have frequently been blown down. Our Iron Frame ones never have.

Knowing the contract price for the houses, we figured it out that Lord & Burnham could have furnished the same materials for several hundred dollars less.

Our price had been one thing—our competitors' an entirely different proposition.

That man had actually paid a good round price for those houses, and had allowed himself to be jollied into thinking he had a bargain.

It all boils right down to the fact, that you pretty generally get what you pay for, and no more.

With the two big factories we have, the thousands and thousands of dollars of work we turn out, and our years of experience in building greenhouses and figuring the actual costs; if, with such a tremendous advantage over other concerns, they offer to sell you a cheaper house, it's because of either of two reasons: the materials are decidedly poorer or there is a good deal less iron in the framework.

There is absolutely no other way you can account for it.

For the kind and quality of house Lord & Burnham build—no concern in the country can build it for any less and make a dollar.

Of course, we make money—that's why we can make so good a house. If you can't make money—you can't make good. You know that!

When you compare our figures with the other fellows—bear in mind the two oil salesmen—how one sold any old quality at any old price—and how the other sold the one quality at the one price.

FARMERS & FLORISTS TANKAGE FERTILIZER

It is acknowledged by the majority of florists and farmers of the United States to be the best balanced commercial fertilizer manufactured. It carries in its composition a percentage of the ten Basic Salts constituting soil, and it would be an impossibility to use it on any farm, field, lawn or bench without enhancing fertility and productivity. It carries a very high percentage of the principal plant foods, as certified in its guaranteed analysis of:—Nitrogen 2.90%, Ammonia 3¹/₂ to 4%, Phosphoric Acid 8 to 10% and Potash 3%.

Our AETNA BRAND OF TANKAGE FERTILIZER is giving universal satisfaction wherever used, and as we believe in the law of live and let live, and that honesty is the best policy, we have placed this fertilizer within the reach of all growers at the low figure of $22.00 a ton, f. o. b. GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.

The Market.

This has been the hottest summer we ever had, with the most prolonged drought ever experienced. Since June we have had but two slight showers, the effect of which was dissipated by the sun in a few hours. All outdoor stock has suffered severely; gladioli and asters are almost a total failure, as are all outdoor flowers. Carnations that were planted out early came through in pretty good shape. Carnation planting in the houses is done and the overhauling of heating plants, boilers, etc., is well under way.

State Fair Flower Show.

The West Michigan State Fair was held here last week. We had ideal weather and a successful show. In the floral department, Henry Smith and the Crabb & Hunter Floral Co. were the principal exhibitors, dividing most of the premiums between them, as follows:

General collection of stove and greenhouse plants, not less than thirty varieties, Crabb & Hunter Floral Co., first; Henry Smith, second. Twenty-five palms, Henry Smith, first; Crabb & Hunter Floral Co., second.

Collection of ferns, Crabb & Hunter Floral Co., first; Henry Smith, second.

Best floral design, Crabb & Hunter Floral Co., first; Henry Smith, second.

Fancy basket of flowers, Crabb & Hunter Floral Co., first; Henry Smith, second.

Display of roses, Henry Smith, first; Crabb & Hunter Floral Co., second.

Display of carnations, Henry Smith, first; Crabb & Hunter Floral Co., second.

Display of asters, Henry Smith, first; Crabb & Hunter Floral Co., second.

Display of cannas, Crabb & Hunter Floral Co., first; Henry Smith, second.

Display of gladioli, Crabb & Hunter Floral Co., first; Henry Smith, second.

Display of dahlias, Crabb & Hunter Floral Co., first; Henry Smith, second.

The foregoing were the premiums that brought forth the hardest competition. Aside from these, Crabb & Hunter Floral Co. won nine firsts and six seconds, and Henry Smith won six firsts and nine seconds.

The Crabb & Hunter floral piece was a broken column, with white carnations for a groundwork; the broken top was of red roses and broadly twined around the column were red roses and valley. Henry Smith had a 3-foot wreath of red roses on a 6-foot stand; the base of the stand was filled with Easter lilies only; it was a fine, imposing piece.

In addition to awards for plants and cut flowers, Mr. Smith won thirty-five firsts and twelve seconds on fruits, his total winnings being fifty firsts and twenty-four seconds.

Various Notes.

Henry Smith, Alfred Hannah, Crabb & Hunter Floral Co. and Eli Cross are installing the Simonds vacuum heating system. It is highly recommended by all who have installed it and is claimed to be a coal saver. Anyway, most, if not all, of the local florists are going to use it. G. F. C.

Clinton, Mass.—Edward Breed acted as judge at the Lancaster flower show.

The Market.

Business in Detroit has been brisk the last week, calling for large quantities of stock of every description. Most of the work was, of course, for funerals. This is Made-in-Detroit week here, and many of the retailers have made special window displays calling for extra stock. The quality of stock is improving as the cool season advances. Many fine asters are available. Another flower which has been especially fine this month is snapdragon; large quantities of these in cream and old rose color are being used in sprays. Centaureas have also been plentiful and of fine quality.

Various Notes.

Murray Paterson returned from Montreal Monday, September 8, where he had gone to meet his wife and child, who recently returned from Scotland.

E. A. Feters has an especially attractive window in pink and blue during Made-in-Detroit week. Henry Forster, Mr. Feters' able assistant, fairly outdid himself in this window decoration.

Another extremely attractive window was that arranged by Harry Breitmeyer in the store of John Breitmeyer's Sons. A beautiful woodland scene was quite naturally carried out, and a number of pretty birds of different species playing around among the flowers held crowds of people.

A delivery automobile belonging to Murray Paterson was badly damaged by colliding with a street car September 8 and the driver seriously injured.

The L. Bomb Floral Co. decorated one of the large show windows of Kline's store, the principal feature of which was a large steamer of chenille and prepared flowers arranged in such a way as to appear to be rolling in a heavy sea. This effect was still further carried out by a fan blowing air under a covering of silk.

Schroeter's drew large crowds to their window with a prettily arranged garden scene, with an old Dutch windmill in the background, the wings of which were revolving. In the foreground was a fountain with goldfish among the rocks and ferns. This revolving windmill again demonstrated the value of some moving object as an attraction in a show window. H. S.

Helena, Mont.—The State Nursery Co. displayed some rare varieties of ferns at the fourth annual flower show here.

At last an inexpensive greenhouse

Made of Sunlight Double Glass Sash

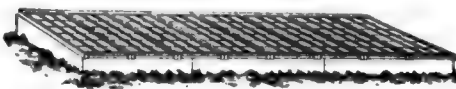

This greenhouse is 11 x 12 feet, glazed top and sides, with the famous Sunlight Double Glass Sash. 8 Standard Sash (3x6 ft.) form the roof and 8 "Pony" Sash (34 1/2 x 38 1/2 in.) form the sides.

The double glass principle

The Double Glass principle with the 3/8" air space between the two layers of glass make it seldom necessary to heat this greenhouse even in the coldest weather.

It is shipped ready-made in sections.

The sash are easily removable to use in season on hot-beds and cold-frames. Thus the sash do double duty—first on a greenhouse work room in which seed are sprouted and the tiny plants set out in flats, and then, when needed, on the hot-beds or cold-frames outside.

Roses, asters, gladioli and all garden flowers are plentiful. Trade is improving each week and the weather is cooler now. There are still no carnations. Boston ferns are quite plentiful. Fall openings are beginning to add their volume of business to the fall trade.

An Italian Garden.

The Italian garden of Walter H. Wesson is one of the most beautiful and artistic pieces of landscape architecture in Springfield. It is situated on the top of a hill surrounded by a stone wall and overlooking the Connecticut valley, a beautiful view of which is obtained from the pergola. Fountains, canopied seats and statuary imported from Italy add to its attraction. Circular beds of marguerites, lemon verbenas and sweet alyssum surround the fountains. Henry Dicarlo, the Italian gardener, keeps this garden in typical Italian style.

The terraced gardens on the hillside directly below the Italian garden have been a place of beauty all summer, with the pink and crimson ramblers, the rose garden, rare shrubbery and old-fashioned garden flowers. The lawn itself is unusually green, in spite of the drought, which has made the other places dry and brown; Mr. Dicarlo has achieved this result by special care and watering all summer.

Various Notes.

The store of L. D. Robinson has been remodeled and the front dropped to a level with the street, so that now one can enter the store without stepping up to reach the door.

A surprise party was given Walter Nelson at his home on Wellington street on the evening of September 4, in honor of his twenty-first birthday. The employees of the store presented to him a pair of gold cuff links. About thirty were present and all had a most enjoyable time.

Miss May French and her mother visited Huntington, Mass., on Labor day.

William Schlatter has returned from Indian Neck, Conn., where he has been spending his vacation.

P. S. Caldwell, who started a florists' store in connection with his father's undertaking business last spring, has given it up for lack of patronage.

H. F. Midgley, of Worcester, was in town last week, visiting the trade, and looked over the greenhouses of Mark Aitken, in Agawam.

Mark Aitken has a new electric sign, which improves his new store greatly. His new refrigerator is being constructed by the United Refrigerator & Ice Machine Co. E. C. A.

NOTE THE RINGS WHICH APPEAR AT ONE FOOT INTERVALS TO FACILITATE QUICK AND ACCURATE MEASURING

RINGMETER—The Garden Hose for FLORISTS' Use BECAUSE:

It is made in continuous lengths of 500 feet furnished on reels—no need of thinking of wasteful short ends.

Rings of rubber appear every foot and being spaced exactly one foot apart makes it self-measuring. Just count one ring for every foot as you unwind the reel. Quick and accurate. Does away with mistakes.

The utmost care enters into the construction; only the best of materials and workmanship are used, in conjunction with the latest improved machinery.

Prices are right. RINGMETER is the Garden Hose to show you economy. Strong, durable and quality that spells long service.

Made in three sizes: 3/4-inch, 1-inch and 1 1/2-inch.

There is nothing in Goodrich Advertising That isn't in Goodrich Goods

Ordinary garden hose won't serve for florists' use very long or very well

A man with a little piece of green-sward may get along with an ordinary grade of garden hose—not so with the florist. His is a case of needing a good tool with which to do good work—a need filled by these brands of

Goodrich Hose

Our Akron brand is a three-ply live rubber hose, flexible and strong. Supplied in lengths up to 500 feet.

Our Florists' brand is a four-ply hose of wrapped duck construction and has extra heavy cover.

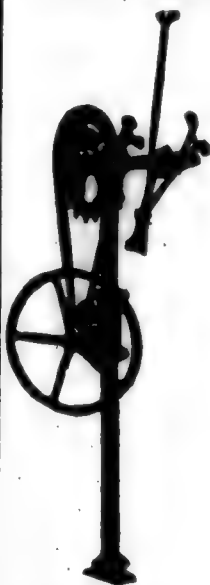

Glad to send you a sample of either or both with full particulars

"AND DEPONENT SAITH FURTHER, AS FOLLOWS:"

Out of a great mass of testimonials in support of the excellent character of Cypress for greenhouse construction, we have singled these few for your consideration:

Arthur Cowee, Gladiolus Specialist, proprietor of "Meadowvale Farm," Berlin, N. Y., writes: "My houses are now ten years old and I have not yet been obliged to spend one dollar in repairing any woodwork, with the exception of some of the posts. My only regret has been that I have not used CYPRESS for the benches, which I think would have been cheaper for me in the end than using hemlock, which, of course, with us is very much cheaper per thousand."

That's the point, CYPRESS literally CHEAPER in the end. Mr. Cowee names the proper system,—FIGURE THE COST BY THE YEAR.

John C. Moninger Co., Greenhouse Builders, Chicago, say: "We first began using CYPRESS exclusively for greenhouse construction in 1885, using it previous to that time in conjunction with pine. The greenhouses built with clear CYPRESS, free of sap, 21 YEARS AGO, are being used today by their owners and the wood is found perfectly preserved and free of any decay or rot." Ask this prominent concern about the "cheaper" substitutes, and why they won't use them nor attempt to dump inferior values onto their customers.

The Dingee & Conard Co., Rose Growers, West Grove, Pa., say: "We have used CYPRESS lumber for greenhouse building for many years, and we find that there is no lumber we can secure so satisfactory for that purpose." Nothing in that about a "cheaper substitute," is there?

Boblink & Atkins, Importers, Nurserymen and Florists, Rutherford, N. J., are not backward in coming forward: "We would say that CYPRESS lasts with us from two to three years longer than any other wood for table purposes, and ITS LIFE SEEMS TO BE ENDLESS WHEN USED IN ORDINARY GREENHOUSE CONSTRUCTION. We use CYPRESS solely in our plant tub department."

Wagner Park Conservatories, Sidney, Ohio, rise to remark: "We use NOTHING BUT CYPRESS in the construction of our greenhouses, as we find it the most economical, on account of it outlasting other kinds of wood." No comfort there for the "substitute" lumbars.

Bassett & Washburn, Growers and Wholesale Dealers in Cut Flowers, Chicago, testify: "We formerly used hemlock and pine, but found that 2-inch stock lasted only about four years, while so far we have had no 'Pecky' CYPRESS rot out in 10 or 12 years. We use clear CYPRESS for all our roof work, ventilators, etc., and it is very satisfactory. We think it is the only kind of lumber for the purpose." Not bad, is it?

"PECKY" CYPRESS FOR THE BENCHES—NOTHING BUT!"

Draw freely on our Cypress Pocket Library—they are free. Vol. 3, "The Only Greenhouse Wood;" Vol. 22, "Cypress for Silos and Tanks," and Vol. 28, "Cypress for All Trellises and Arbors." The Roses of New Castle for years have been known all over the United States as the finest produced TARTING FROM THE TIME WE BUILT THE FIRST LITTLE GREENHOUSE, they attracted attention of the trade by their superior quality, until the words "Heller's Roses" and "New Castle Roses" became famous. The soil here seems to be different from other soils--a heavy clay loam that produces strong growth and roses of unusual lasting quality.

32 825

Until this year, most of our roses have been sold through wholesale houses on commission. This year we sell practically all of our product direct to the dealer. Our new customers express themselves as highly pleased, even during such hot weather that it was difficult to make roses keep under very best conditions. But we ship as far as Dakota on the north and New Orleans on the south regularly. Surely, this is proof of good stock.

BESIDES, we make prices by the month--low prices, too. You can figure ahead and know what to expect.

THE RETAIL

FLORIST.....

CROTON FOLIAGE AND FLOWERS.

Crotons as pot plants recently have had a wonderful increase in appreciation, but the foliage also has not been backward in coming forward, as the saying goes, for the retailers are using it in considerable quantity wherever the price will permit. Croton foliage is not in the same class as galax leaves or prepared magnolias as a filling for wreaths; it never will be used on the three-dollar designs. But where color is wanted and cost is not an objection, there is nothing finer than croton foliage.

The accompanying illustration was prepared from a photograph of a design made by H. E. Lozier, Lozier the Florist, at Des Moines, Ia. The flowers used with the croton foliage are Mrs. Aaron Ward roses and lily of the valley.

THE LATEST PARIS FAD.

A fad lately adopted in Paris is to carry fresh flowers in the hand—a pretty habit always. To carry one long-stemmed flower in much the same way as the parasol is carried lends a touch of novelty that is artistic and something different from the ordinary custom of wearing flowers. The American girl is likely to adapt this fashion to her own tastes, carrying the flower that best matches her gown.

THE COMMONEST SWINDLE.

Florists are not, as a rule, what are called "easy marks," and it is surprising how frequently they fall for the bogus check swindle. Here is the story as told by a police reporter for a Chicago daily paper:

"I am going to put this on the grave of my dear wife," a man about 45 years old said to Mrs. Anna L. Silverman, owner of a florist's shop at 3401 West Madison street, as she handed him a large floral piece valued at $15 late yesterday. He gave her a check for $22 drawn in favor of George Cater in payment for the flowers and after receiving $7 in change he departed. Mrs. Silverman later found the check, which was one on the Railway Exchange Bank, to be worthless. She asked the police to search for the man."

Dozens of times it has been reported, from all sections of the country. There are many variations. Usually the swindler does not venture to take the flowers away with him; it is safer to ask to have them delivered at a house where there is to be a funeral. Sometimes the swindler is sufficiently painstaking in his attention to details to have consulted the death notices in the local paper and orders flowers sent to a funeral for which the florist has other work.

But there are two points that always are similar; never any variation: In the first place, the customer is a stranger; and, in the second place, a check is presented that calls for cash change.

When a stranger presents a check for more than the amount of the purchase and asks cash change it always is time to sit up and take notice—frequently it is time to call the police.

PRIVILEGE.

Philip Breitmeyer, of Detroit, says that one of the most important things for a florist to do is to please his customers—to be ready and able to serve them on any occasion. Mr. Breitmeyer told the Florists' Telegraph Delivery, at its Minneapolis meeting, that the privilege of serving customers in the way that members of the association do is of even greater value to him than the mere matter of profit to be derived from the exchange of orders. And yet the profit is worth while. At the same meeting Albert Pochelon, also of Detroit, reported on the volume of exchange business handled at his store in the first seven months this year.

This is the record:

Direction.	Number.	Value.
Outgoing	185	$ 952.35
Incoming	73	836.50
Total	258	$1,288.85

On the outgoing orders he received twenty per cent, or $190.47, while on the incoming orders the profit was whatever circumstances permitted him to make on a run of orders averaging a little less than $5 each.

At the same meeting E. Wienhoeber, of Chicago, said he wanted to endorse what Mr. Breitmeyer had said about the value of the facilities to satisfy customers by delivering flowers at a distance. He said that many of the orders call for extra effort, but that the effect of being able to accomplish what the customer wants is of inestimable value.

A NEW HAMPSHIRE CUP WINNER.

Nashua, N. H., opened its great white way September 3. Prizes were awarded for the four best decorated motor cars. The first position was easily taken by W. W. Powers, the well known local florist, whose prize was a silver cup or $50 in gold.

The entire car was first covered with white cloth. The arches were made of 3/8-inch gas pipe, fitted and bent into the desired shape and puffed with white cloth. At each puff pink asters and hydrangeas were tied. From the front arches were hung twenty-four white doves, fastened together with narrow pink ribbons. All arches were then wound with Asparagus plumosus. The body of the car was arranged with 1,000 Hydrangea paniculata, 1,500 pink asters, 500 Gladiolus America and 500 Gladiolus Klondyke.

For the wheels, pieces of cardboard were cut to fit the inside of the rims and covered with white cloth; fastened to this were hydrangeas, with pink asters for the center; the whole was then fastened to the spokes of the wheels. Wide bows of pink ribbon were fastened to the back, top and sides of the arches. The center of the car was built up with a high seat, on which Mr. Powers' little 3-year-old daughter, Phyllis, rode and held the pink ribbons, each of which was fastened to a white dove. The whole effect was pleasing in the extreme, and the crowds along the line of march gave the winning car enthusiastic rounds of applause. W. N. Craig.

bloomer. No cutting back such as you suggest will make them bloom any better. On the other hand, Mme. Abel Chatenay is a hybrid tea and all the members of this type of rose are real perpetual bloomers.

Your plants are extremely old and must have had good care to live so long. You would do well, however, to plant a new bed and use a much greater proportion of hybrid teas. You could use nothing better than cow manure and bone meal to mix in the soil. Be sure to trench deeply for best results. C. W.

TRANSPLANTED ROSES DYING.

Will you please tell me what is wrong with the rose plants that I am sending you under separate cover? Before transplanting them, I rested them for almost three weeks and cared for them just as I have done for a good many years. This is the first time in my experience that anything like this has happened. A few weeks after they were planted they made a good top growth and seemed to be doing nicely, when all at once they commenced to die off. When starting them up, I was exceedingly careful to see that they did not get too wet or too dry at the roots, also spraying them freely and keeping the house as cool and moist as I could. I have searched the soil carefully for grubs, but none were to be found. I have some Richmond roses planted in the same benches and they are growing nicely. The varieties I am sending are the Killarneys, both pink and white. They are planted in a heavy black compost, which contains only one good wheelbarrow load of manure to one wagon load of soil. L. S. H.

In transplanting old rose plants it is especially necessary that the soil be well packed around the roots, thoroughly saturated with water and kept in that condition until the plants have made new roots. When old plants are started up, they make new growth on top before they start to make roots. At that time, if they are allowed to get at all dry at the roots, the plants are sure to suffer and in a good many cases the stems will turn black and the young foliage will become yellow and

WINTERING KILLARNEY ROSES.

I have a surplus of Killarney roses and should like to winter them in an unheated shed which has a glass roof. Will it be safe to put them there, in this Pennsylvania climate? C. M. S.

The Killarneys would winter satisfactorily in an unheated house, but they would be better if protected by a good mulch of hay or straw during severe weather. C. W.

MILDEW ON ROSES.

Will you please tell me what to do for mildew on roses? C. M. S.

You do not state whether the roses are outdoors or under glass. It is difficult to keep outdoor ones perfectly clean after this season of the year, when we get heavy night dews and clear, hot days. You can use flowers of sulphur, applied through a powder bellows, or you can try Fungine, at the rate of one gallon to fifty gallons of water. Both of these are good remedies, either outdoors or under glass. C. W.

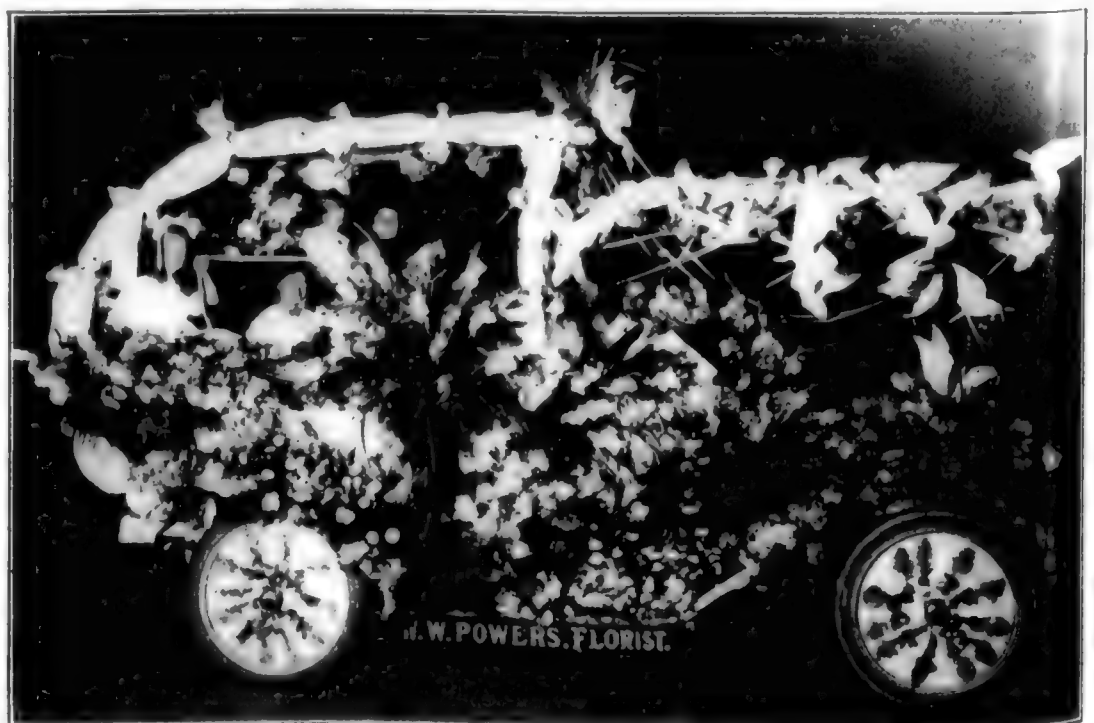

MILDEW ON HARDY ROSES.

Please let me know what I should do to get rid of mildew on outdoor roses. The roses in question are between 20 and 22 years old. They were heavily manured with humus last winter. They gave us a good quantity of blooms in the beginning of July; since that date they have made branches about five feet high, with no indication of buds. I have tried everything to keep this trouble in check, but, owing to frequent storms and sudden changes of temperature, it seems of little use. The varieties most troublesome are Frau Karl Druschki, Baroness Rothschild and Mme. A. Chatenay. Would you advise me to do away with these old roses and get a new stock? Is the humus partly the cause, or is the trouble due to the age of the plants, together with the amount of new, sturdy growth? Would it harm the roses to cut the 5-foot branches back to a length of two and one-half feet? Would it be better to prepare the ground in future with bone meal and cow manure instead of humus? C. I.

Neither the age of the roses nor the humus would make them more prone to attacks of mildew. This affection of hardy roses is with us more or less each summer and fall, usually making its appearance in August, when hot days are often followed by cold nights and heavy dews. Sulphur in dry powder form, blown through a powder bellows, is a good remedy, using it on the first appearance of the trouble. Sulphocide is a soluble sulphur spray of value. Another good sulphur composition is Fungine, applied at the rate of one part Fungine to fifty gallons of water.

It is not at all unusual for such varieties as Frau Karl Druschki to grow five feet or more in height. This and the majority of hybrid perpetuals bloom but sparingly after early July, the most notable exception being Mrs. John Laing, which is a fairly constant will die. As this has been a dry summer in nearly all parts of the country, the plants have needed more than the ordinary amount of water to keep them in good growing condition and the chances of their getting dry at the roots have been greater than usual.

When Killarney starts up, it breaks from nearly every eye, making a lot of young growth, which takes a lot of sap and water to keep it growing. Richmond, on the other hand, usually starts only from the top eye on each stem, and consequently does not suffer so soon from lack of water and may pull through in fair shape where Killarney is sure to go back. AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

President Wallace R. Pierson called the executive committee of the American Rose Society together in New York city, going particularly into the work to be done regarding the establishing of a rose garden at Washington, D. C. The committee in charge of this work was appointed at the annual meeting and is as follows: Robert Pyle, Patrick O'Mara and W. F. Gude. Mr. Gude had followed up the matter, being in touch with the men in charge of this particular work of the Department of Agriculture. The plan as outlined is: A garden of some two acres located at Arlington Heights, Va. Mr. Mulford, of the Department of Agriculture, is the man in charge. The permanent rose garden committee appointed at the August meeting of the society in Minneapolis is composed of Alex. Cummings, Jr., Hartford, Conn.; Theodore Wirth, Minneapolis; Robert Pyle, West Grove, Pa. This committee has been requested to prepare plans for a rose garden based upon the broadest lines and to inquire into the conditions of the famous rose gardens of Europe, as well as those already established in this country, and to report back to the executive committee.

Prof. Liberty H. Bailey, of Cornell University, took up with the American Rose Society the desirability of having at Ithaca a test garden, which could particularly try out the varieties most fitted for the latitude of the eastern and northern section of the country. New Jersey, through Prof. Blake, of New Brunswick, has a like project in view.

The prize winners at the Hartford test garden in June were as follows: E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind.; John Cooke, Baltimore, Md.; Peter Henderson & Co., New York; Lowe & Sawyer, Uxbridge, England; A. N. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn.; Shatemuc Nurseries, Barrytown, N. Y.; Conard & Jones Co., West Grove, Pa.; Hoopes Bros. & Thomas, West Chester, Pa. They received the silver medals and certificates of merit awarded by the American Rose Society.

The secretary has been gathering from American rosarians a list of roses originated in America. The committee directed that this work be continued, and the result as far as obtained be published in the annual bulletin as an official list. These bulletins have been called for far and near until there are only a few copies on hand to keep for permanent record. The next edition will have to be increased.

The committee adjourned to meet the second Monday in October.

NEW YORK FEDERATION MEETS.

About forty members were present at an enthusiastic meeting of the New York Federation of Floral Clubs at the New York state fair at Syracuse, September 9. The main business was, of course, to plan for a further campaign to secure the appropriation for a greenhouse for experimental work in floriculture at Cornell University. The bill providing $60,000 for this work which was passed by the last legislature was vetoed by Governor Sulzer. A strong campaign will be carried on, this time for an appropriation of $75,000. Representatives of the New York State Vegetable Growers' Association and of the New York State Fruit Growers' Association met with the federation and will coöperate with it in securing the appropriation.

The discussion also included suggestions for the bettering of the flower exhibits at the fair next year and the extension of the federation's work by organizing and uniting in the organization more florists' clubs in cities of the state. At present the federation comprises the New York Florists' Club, the Buffalo Florists' Club, the Rochester Florists' Association, the Nassau County Horticultural Society, the Tuxedo Horticultural Society, the Tarrytown Horticultural Society, the New York and New Jersey Association of Plant Growers, the Dutchess County Horticultural Society, the Albany Florists' Club, the Syracuse Rose Society and the Utica Florists' Club. Those taking part in the discussions were F. R. Pierson, W. F. Kasting, Arthur Cowee, Charles H. Vick, Dr. E. A. Bates, Prof. Patch, of Cornell University, George B. Hart, F. C. Thomann and others.

The officers of last year were re-elected by acclamation to serve another year; they are: President, Wm. F. Kasting, Buffalo; first vice-president, Earl A. Bates, Syracuse; second vice-president, Chas. B. Weathered, New York; third vice-president, E. R. Fry, Rochester; secretary, John Young, New York, and treasurer, W. A. Adams, Buffalo. The treasurer, Mr. Adams, in his report showed that the financial affairs of the federation were in a strong condition.

After the meeting President Kasting entertained the officers at a dinner at the Onondaga hotel. The same committees were reappointed for the coming year. The legislative committee consists of F. R. Pierson, John Young, W. T. Logan, S. A. Anderson and C. B. Weathered; the state fair committee of Geo. E. Thorp, Wing R. Smith, Arthur Cowee, F. H. Traendly and F. A. Danker.

LEAF-SPOT ON PANSIES.

I am sending some leaves of pansy affected with white leaf-spot; I have about 200,000. Is this disease liable to do much injury? What is the best remedy? C. A. P.

This spot is not at all uncommon in August and the first half of September. I do not think it is anything likely to spread seriously, or which you need worry much over. Should it prove quite bad in spots, a spraying of Bordeaux mixture might be advisable, but if only on isolated plants, do not trouble about it. The spot appears when we have cold nights and heavy dews, followed by clear, hot days, and is similar to that affecting double violets. C. W.

WINTERING HIBISCUS.

What is the proper treatment for hibiscus over winter in this Pennsylvania climate? The varieties are Crimson Eye, Moscheutos roseus, Golden Bowl, H. grandiflorus Sunset and Manihot. R. B.

All the varieties named should prove perfectly hardy in your latitude, with a mulch of leaves or some other material over them after the ground freezes up. If, however, you must lift them, do so any time before frost has tightened up the ground. Cut the tops back close to the ground and pack the roots in moist sand or earth in a cellar or cold-frame. They can be packed quite closely. Plant out again as soon as the ground is open. C. W.

LILY BULBS AFTER FORCING.

Can you inform us whether the bulbs of Easter lilies are of any use after forcing? These are taken from cold storage every month and we thought it might pay to plant them outdoors for blooming. Will they bloom? H. & C.

Cold storage lily bulbs are of no value whatever after forcing. Bulbs not subjected to cold storage, and the flower stalks of which have not been cut back too hard, can be planted six inches deep outdoors. Any left over from Easter will give a small second crop in June and July, but are not worth much fussing over. C. W.

DISEASES OF THE VIOLET.

[Extracts from a paper by Dr. Donald Reddick, of Ithaca, N. Y., read before the Massachusetts Horticultural Society. Continued from The Review of September 11.]

Symptoms of Root Rot.

Plants attacked by the thielavia disease in its various stages are readily detected. A great many growers, however, do not realize that the various symptoms which I shall now present to you are symptoms of one and the same disease. Indeed, one often has considerable difficulty in convincing growers that this is true. The most striking symptom of the disease, as it occurs on the matured plant, is a yellow appearance and the somewhat dwarfed and crinkled condition of the foliage. The foliage is not so abundant and the yel-

Violet plant grown from a cutting infected with root rot. The plant was placed in phosphated soil June 16 and persisted there until November 5, 1912, the date of making the photograph. The plant was lifted from the soil carefully, in order to preserve all the roots. The stem is broken slightly at the point of the original lesion. The foliage was a sickly yellow.

low cast is particularly noticeable in contrast with the deep green of healthy plants. On making a more careful examination, the underground stem will often be found to be badly diseased. It may be cracked and rough; or, if in particularly damp soil, often appears water-soaked and black in spots. Definite brown or black lesions occur on the roots, usually girdling them, and stand out sharply in contrast with the normal white color. The roots may be girdled at many points. The disease also occurs on the runners and leaf petioles, where characteristic lesions are produced. When young the lesion is a small water-soaked spot, but as it increases in size the center becomes whitish and the margin black. Sometimes the runners are entirely girdled, but the lesion has a tendency to extend more in a longitudinal direction than radially.

Handling Infected Cuttings.

It has been found that the persons making violet cuttings rarely know that the lesions on the stems bear relation to the violet disease; therefore cuttings which have only small lesions on them are invariably placed in the soil along with healthy ones. More than that, they fall into the same pail of water with healthy cuttings and thus abundant opportunity is afforded for distributing endoconidia to many plants. That this distribution does occur not infrequently was plainly apparent when some observations were made at the time of taking the plants from the sand. In a number of cases the writer counted the young plants actually thrown out on account of this trouble and found frequently as high as forty per cent of the plants grown from cuttings infected.

For the most part, infected plants are easily detected as they come from the sand. The lesion which was small at the time the cutting went into the sand increases in size and the stem becomes black. Sometimes only a black point is evident. There are indications that the black-pointed plants are ones which become infected from diseased cuttings. Not infrequently many of the new roots also are infected. These are discarded, but even the most careful grower will not succeed in sorting out all of the infected plants. A certain number invariably get into the soil. Some of them die after a period of time, but the slightly infected ones may live through the year. The cultivation that is done during the summer naturally drags occasional diseased roots to the surface, and later the runners, when they spread over the ground, become infected. Furthermore, the old roots of the previous year are never entirely removed in changing the soil, so that as they slowly disintegrate quantities of chlamydospores from the previous year are set free. The propagation of the fungus from one year to another is therefore usually in one or the other of these ways and is doubly assured.

Sterilizing the Sand.

With the foregoing points in mind, the method of control may now be approached from a scientific standpoint. It seems evident that only perfectly healthy cuttings should be used in propagating violets. This may seem a simple proposition, but it always must be remembered that some of the cuttings which are apparently free from disease may have the fungus in them in the incubation stage. The sand used for rooting the cuttings should, of course, be free from rotten roots of previous years. Most growers make a regular practice of bringing in new sand, but the old sand will prove perfectly satisfactory for this purpose providing it is sterilized. Commercial formaldehyde is effective when diluted at the rate of one pint to twelve and one-half gallons of water. This solution should then be sprinkled over the cutting beds at the rate of one gallon per square foot of surface. The treated bed should be covered for twelve hours or more with burlap or oil cloth. Cuttings should not be placed in the sand until the formaldehyde has evaporated. Evaporation may be facilitated by frequent stirring.

Great care should be exercised in culling out any affected plants, discarding those showing lesions on the stem, black point or black bands on the roots.

Other Means of Disinfection.

The possibility of spreading infection at the time of making the cuttings and when sorting out diseased plants is great. There should be some method of protecting healthy cuttings or plants by dipping them in a fungicide. The difficulties experienced by the writer in making such treatments, however, lay in the fact that violets, particularly the cuttings, are extremely sensitive to chemicals. Bordeaux mixture and formaldehyde at various strengths were tried, but the number of plants killed was too great to warrant practical application of the method. Further tests are contemplated.

A thorough disinfection of all soil in the houses should then be effected. The grower attempts to do this in a practical way by changing his soil from year to year. This is a laborious and often a costly process, but yet practically necessary on account of disease. Many growers would like to use their soil at least two years if it were not for the occurrence of this disease. Soil is disinfected easily with steam, but most violet houses are heated with hot water, so that steam sterilization is impracticable. With this in mind the writer has undertaken to disinfect the soil in violet houses by means of the formaldehyde treatment. Just how satisfactory this treatment will be remains yet to be seen. Theoretically it should prove satisfactory, but quite often theory does not work out in practice.

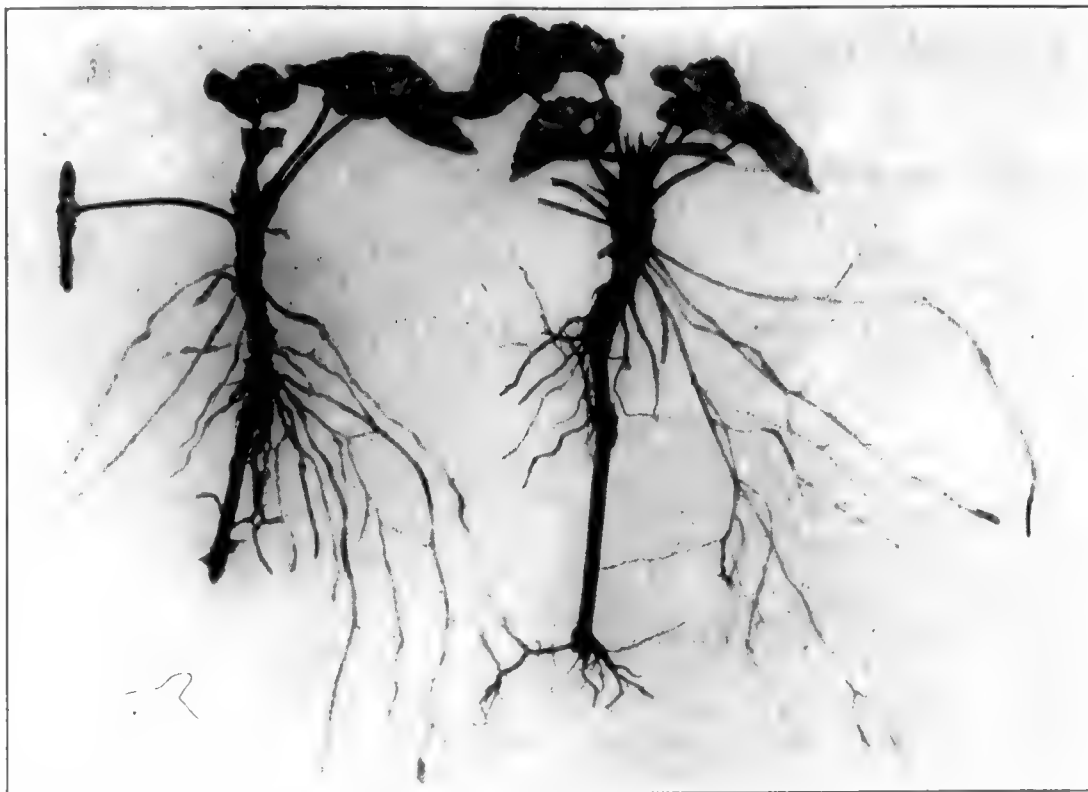

Acid and Alkaline Fertilizers.

Fortunately, not many violet growers have begun the use of lime. An alkaline soil is shown definitely by Briggs to favor the development of thielavia, and its extensive use in the violet house would doubtless tend to increase the amount of disease. Some growers use wood ashes as a fertilizer to a certain extent and for that reason a test plat treated with wood ashes was included in the following experiment:

An experiment was designed to test the effect of acid and alkaline fertilizers on the amount of disease developing in affected plants. The experiment is imperfect and incomplete in certain respects, but a number of interesting points developed during the progress of the experiment which are worthy of record. The work is to be repeated another year, taking advantage of the experience of the present season.

Soil in part of a greenhouse bench was mixed thoroughly and sterilized by means of formaldehyde. The area was divided into eight equal parts, each separated from its neighbor by a wooden partition. Two plats were treated with air-slaked lime, .09 pounds per square foot, or two tons per acre; two others received acid phosphate in the same quantity; the next two received wood ashes in the same amount; while two others received well-rotted steamed manure, .45 pounds per square foot, or ten tons per acre.

Two diseased violet plants, grown from cuttings infected with the thielavia disease, or root rot. The photograph was made November 12, 1912. Note the dwarfed foliage, the repeated efforts of the plants to live by the development of new roots from above the point of disease and the numerous infections on the new roots.

BUSINESS EMBARRASMENTS.

Louisville, Ky.—Nanz & Neuner, now in bankruptcy, have made an offer for a composition settlement of forty per cent. The liabilities are estimated at $16,000 and the assets at the nominal figure of $10,000. A definite amount for the latter cannot be given on account of the character of the property. The firm's offer will be referred to the creditors by R. C. Kinkead, referee in bankruptcy.

Augusta, Ga.—A hearing has been called in the district court here to show cause why the ten per cent composition offered by the Alexander Seed Co., which has been accepted by a majority of the creditors, should not be confirmed.

Bloomington, Ill.—John Y. Chisholm has been appointed receiver for the Phoenix Nursery Co. Full details will be found in the Nursery Department of this issue.

Glen View, Ill.—A petition in bankruptcy was filed September 13 against the American Horticultural Co., in the United States District court at Chicago, asking that a receiver be appointed to take charge of the affairs of the company for the benefit of its creditors. The creditors filing the petition were William Melzer, Rugan Bros., Des Plaines Lumber Co. and the Onarga Nursery. The total claims of these creditors were listed as $500. In their petition the creditors alleged that an act of bankruptcy had been committed by the payment of certain sums to creditors while insolvent: $100 to George Reinberg, $50 to J. W. Butter, $50 to A. L. Randall Co., and $80 to Aldis & Co. According to the petition, the American Horticultural Co. has twenty-one acres at Glen View planted with trees, shrubs and various kinds of nursery stock, and another twenty acres at Wheeling, W. Va. It is alleged that McHutchison & Co., of New York, recently secured an attachment against the Wheeling property to the extent of $3,700. The officers of the American Horticultural Co. are listed in the petition as follows: President, Louis Cole; vice-president, H. T. Meinerman; secretary and treasurer, Charles Cole. Edwin C. Day was appointed as receiver by the court.

FREESIAS.

The earliest batch of freesias will now be several inches high and, in order to get them in flower as early as possible, Christmas and its fancy prices being the objective of nearly all growers, they should now be moved into a light, sunny house where a winter minimum of 52 to 55 degrees is maintained. It is often possible to use shelves for the culture of these plants, giving them saucers, where the plants are in pans, to prevent drying out later in the season.

The second batch should also now be well above ground, and another planting should be made. There are no more popular and useful bulbs than freesias for the average retailing florist, and no mistake can be made in planting them in quantity.

CALLAS.

Tubers of callas, which were dried off, repotted and stood outdoors, are now making rapid growth. While they seem to luxuriate outdoors, they will flower quite a little earlier if placed under glass now. Any greenhouse with good light will do for some time ahead, but later in the season they should have a night temperature of 55 to 60 degrees. The Godfrey is the calla par excellence for the florist who retails his output. It grows less vigorously than the ordinary C. Æthiopica, but produces several times as many flowers, nearly as large and much purer in color. Quite a few growers labor under the delusion that the Godfrey is simply the old Little Gem rechristened. As a matter of fact there is no resemblance at all between the two, as everyone can attest who has grown the two varieties.

Kankakee, Ill.—Gus Raasch has built an addition, 22x100 feet, to his greenhouses. It is to be used for pot plants.

PREPARATIONS FOR PLANTING.

The Flats, Pots or Pans.

The time for planting Dutch bulbs has again arrived, and for some weeks the specialists in them will be kept busily employed getting them into flats, or boxes, as many prefer to call them. A great many are also grown in pots and pans for retail trade, and these take a great deal more time and require a little more fussing over than the bulbs in flats. As a general rule, 6-inch, 7-inch and 8-inch pans are most popular for bulbs, and in pots 5-inch and 6-inch have the preference. Larger sizes are rather cumbersome, although all right for window effects or exhibition purposes. In the way of flats those 24 x 12 x 4 are suitable for the majority of bulbs, although some prefer them an inch deeper. For the more robust narcissi, such as Victoria and Emperor, and for Spanish iris, the 5-inch depth is preferable. Other bulbs will do just as well in an inch less soil. Of course, larger flats are often used, but the size suggested is easy to handle.

The Compost.

Practically all the Dutch bulbs like a light but fairly rich soil. If this has been prepared a few weeks in advance, or even earlier, so much the better. Do not use any fresh manure in the soil. Old hotbed or mushroom manure is first-class; so is well rotted cow manure. Pass whatever kind you use through a screen and break up all the large lumps so that they will pass through a 3/4-inch screen. Leaf soil, while used by some, is not necessary unless the soil is stiff and retentive. A good dash of sharp sand should be used in all composts, no matter whether they are heavy or light. It is not safe to use bone in any form, or any of the chemical fertilizers in bulb compost. When new pots or pans are used, be sure to soak them well in tubs of water first.

Where to Place the Bulbs.

There are wide differences of opinion as to where to place bulbs after they are in flats or pans. Some prefer to stand them outdoors for a time, later moving them into pits or cellars. One disadvantage of this plan is that it makes a lot of additional work moving the flats a second time, and, furthermore, drenching rains soak the soil so that considerable harm is often done, especially if the drainage is at all deficient. Some varieties, such as Gladiolus nanus, Iris Hispanica and sweet-scented jonquils, need no covering of coal ashes or any other material, as they start to make top growth soon after being placed in the soil, but about all the other bulbs forced start better if given a coating of fine coal ashes or sand. This, however, should not be applied for a month after planting, and meantime the bulbs should have received several waterings, for one of the most common causes of failure in bulb culture is an insufficient water supply in the early stages of growth. Yet every year we run across growers who, after potting or boxing bulbs, soak them with water, place them in a frame or cellar, cover them with some mulch, give no more water until they want to house the bulbs for forcing, and then belabor the dealer for selling poor bulbs, though their cultural treatment was entirely at fault.

Outdoor or Indoor Storage?

As between bulbs stored outdoors and indoors, there can be no doubt as to which is the more up-to-date and practical method. Bulbs buried outdoors are difficult to get at when the weather is severe, and we have known cases where, in spite of thick straw coverings, the pans were frozen and many burst. The general idea seems to be that it is possible to hold bulbs later if buried outdoors. This is sheer nonsense. A good, cool cellar will hold them decidedly later, and then the bulbs can be examined at any time, watered if necessary, and brought in whenever needed. Some growers keep their bulbs in dark cellars and do not cover the flats at all, but I always seem to have the best start on bulbs that were covered.

Tulips.

Tulips are probably more sold than any other bulb in pans, but their sale in a cut state is not at all equal to that of narcissi. An inexpensive and useful half dozen varieties for pan culture are: Keizerskroon, Yellow Prince, La Reine, Rose Grisdelin, Belle Alliance and Cottage Maid. If varieties of better quality are wanted, and if your customers will be willing to pay for better sorts, try Joost Van Vondel, white; Pink Beauty, Flamingo, Vermilion Brilliant and Queen of the Netherlands. For cutting, La Reine is still the great standby. White Hawk can be forced into flower earlier and comes pure white, while all the early La Reines are pink. Yellow Prince is the best early yellow. Thomas Moore is a popular, easily forced, sweet-scented, orange variety. Other sorts good for cutting are Pink Beauty, Keizerskroon, Ophir d'Or, White Pottebakker, Flamingo and Couleur Cardinal.

In double tulips Murillo remains easily the most popular and should be grown in quantity by every country florist. Couronne d'Or, or Golden Crown, with its rich golden yellow flowers, shaded orange, is another favorite. Safrano, or Brimstone Beauty, a sulphury yellow developing into a rosy apricot, has taken well in the market and is worthy of a trial. For a scarlet, Imperator rubrorum is unexcelled, and La Candeur is a good white, but neither is adapted for early forcing. Murillo and Couronne d'Or are both splendid sorts for pans.

Some of the specialists find that it pays them well to grow some of the late species of tulips, which come in season when the earlies have passed and before outdoor ones are in bloom. These carry long stems and are fine for cutting. A few inexpensive ones worthy of trial are: White Swan, Bouton d'Or, Picotee, Golden Crown, Gesneriana major and Parisian White. The increasingly popular Darwins come somewhat higher. If a few are wanted, try White Queen, Clara Butt, Mme. Krelage and Gretchen.

DEPTH TO PLANT BULBS.

Every florist has experienced the difficulty of getting his customers to plant their bulbs deep enough; indeed, not every professional grower is free from the charge of impairing the success of his own plantings by too shallow burial of the bulbs. In this connection, the Garden Magazine, which is doing a great deal to help amateur gardeners get more satisfactory results, has this month an excellent little illustration, reproduced herewith, that tells the story of how deep to plant and puts it much more graphically than could be done in words. Many a florist will cut it out and post up in the store.

Conshohocken, Pa.—Willis H. Baldwin, the youngest florist in this vicinity, reports a good business since his start in February of this year. Funeral work has been especially plentiful.

TOMATOES ON THE SIDE.

When the outdoor crops are bad on account of unfavorable weather, the florist with some space to spare in his greenhouses has an opportunity to gather in extra money on a side-line. Tomatoes are good for this purpose, for those grown under glass are always sure of a ready sale. The amount that can be gained in this way may be surmised from the fine appearance of the fruit in the photograph of the house of A. Linke & Son, Alpena, Mich., which is here reproduced. This greenhouse is primarily a carnation house and these plants can be seen in the center bench. The tomatoes have been grown on the side, both figuratively and literally speaking. At the right is Arthur Linke, the latter half of the firm name. Behind the sign, at the left, is Reinhold Behnke, who for the last five years has been in the employ of this firm.

LETTUCE IN TENNESSEE.

Please tell me what is the best lettuce for early winter under glass in Tennessee. Mention the best varieties of head lettuce and of leaf lettuce.

M. S.

As to the best variety of lettuce to grow for early winter in Tennessee, there is little else grown near the large cities than Grand Rapids. This variety has been grown so long that it sells more readily than any other. It grows rapidly and is less subject to rot than most others. It is well to be sure to get the seed from a reliable source and to get a strain that has been grown especially for forcing. Of course, the plants should be transplanted. Green fly is the principal pest to contend with.

Head lettuce is little grown in Tennessee under glass. The Nashville growers who grow head lettuce at all use Big Boston largely, though some May King and Simpson are used. May King is the earliest of the lot and Simpson is the easiest to handle, while Big Boston commands the best prices.

F. B.

ONIONS FOR FALL PLANTING.

I want to sow some onion seed this fall to leave in the ground all winter and have the bulbs to bunch in the early spring. Please tell me what is the best variety to sow, when to plant, and whether it is necessary to cover or not. I should prefer a white onion.

E. L. B.

There is no onion, properly so called, that will safely withstand the winter if grown from seed. There is a variety of onion called the White Welsh onion that can be seeded in the fall, and that will withstand the winter, but it does not make a proper bulb; it forms a scullion only. Then there is the variety known as the Winter Top onion, but this variety is propagated from bulbs, or sets. This variety makes a bunch of scullions that are sold in the early spring as green onions. The seed of the Welsh onion and the bulbs of the Winter Top onion are planted from August 15 until September 20 with good success. Occasionally truckers have success with the regular White Globe onion planted in the fall and the plants covered during the winter, but it is not a sure process, as in most cases the plants are killed during the winter. When successfully done, however, it pays well for the experiment.

J. M. C.

DROP-LEAF OF LETTUCE.

Will you please tell me what to do for drop-leaf of lettuce?

C. M. S.

For the drop-leaf, or wilt, which is common among lettuces outdoors during hot weather, I do not know of any remedy. It is worse on plants which are not freely cultivated, and is much less prevalent where the soil is kept constantly stirred. It seems to be inseparable from the hot, humid climatic conditions existing during July and the first-half of August.

C. W.

CUCUMBER WILT.

I have a house of cucumbers which are affected with wilt. A half dozen or more plants wilt and die every day. This house was planted after a crop of early tomatoes, and the plants have just begun bearing. What can I do?

J. M. B.

I am afraid there is no method of treatment that can do much to check the wilt, except the radical method of pulling up all plants as soon as they show any signs of it. This may mean the partial or almost entire loss of your crop. The wilt is not at all uncommon in early fall, before fire heat is used. I would advise using fire heat, to maintain a more buoyant and warm atmosphere. Shutting the houses tightly at night when the outside temperature is low, producing a damp, clammy feeling in the houses, followed by clear, hot days, will start the trouble.

Wilted plants will often be found affected by root gall. When the soil has been thoroughly frozen or properly sterilized, the plants are usually immune from this wilt. If you do not sterilize your soil, by all means do so another season, not only for cucumbers, but also for lettuce. The increased returns will far more than repay you for any expense incurred.

C. W.

PREPARING LETTUCE BEDS.

I am getting ready for lettuce planting and should like to get some information as to the beds. What depth should the manure be—as deep as five or six inches? What depth should the earth be over the manure? Shall I use horse or cow manure, and should it be fresh?

W. A.

Unless you are planning to grow lettuces in frames, with a bed of warm manure below them, I would not advise using the manure in any other way than mixed with the soil. Lettuces like a soil twelve to fourteen inches deep, and it should be well manured. I have found that horse manure about half decayed proves fully as satisfactory as that which is thoroughly rotted. The manure must be well incorporated with the soil and a fresh top-dressing of it should be applied for each new planting.

All the large lettuce growers now sterilize their soil. This kills all insects, larvæ, weed seeds, etc., and plants grown in such soil rarely take the disease commonly known as leaf-burn or leaf-scald. Cow manure is not considered as good as horse manure by the lettuce specialists, although for many vegetable crops it is preferred.

C. W.

DISEASED TOMATOES.

We are sending you under separate cover two tomato plants; one is the Comet and the other is the Best of All Forcing. The earth is a light carnation soil. I have sixty-eight plants in solid beds, many of which are set in bud. I also have quite a few in 8-inch pots. They all appear to have the same disease, but those in the solid beds appear to be the worst affected. The ground is not wet and soggy, but is nice and moist. It seems now that we shall lose our whole crop. We took the soil up for a foot or more around these plants as they died, but we have been unable to find any worms or insects. If you can enlighten us on the subject we shall appreciate it.

C. F. C.

The samples were so dried up after their long journey that we could tell nothing of the cause of the plants dying. It is something unusual for tomatoes under glass to become affected in this way. Are you quite sure you did not give the plants an overdose of commercial fertilizer in the soil? It would seem that only something of this character in the soil would affect them so seriously. Your soil looks all right and, with well rotted manure, should produce first-class tomatoes. Your warm, dry Kansas atmosphere should not cause any disease, as tomatoes succeed best in a dry atmosphere.

C. W.

DIANTHUS FROM THE FIELD.

Will dianthus plants, lifted from the field and potted, bloom until Christmas, or how long will they bloom? We have fine, stocky plants in the field, but have had no experience with them.

R. B.

Dianthus, such as Heddewigi, plumarius and latifolius, will not pay to pot up. Such varieties as Emperor Napoleon are sometimes handled successfully, but I would not advise you to trouble much with any but carnations, which are, of course, a variety of dianthus.

C. W.

SCALE ON LILACS.

Enclosed you will find a lilac twig, which you can see is covered with some kind of scale. It spreads rapidly and also travels onto fruit trees. It has killed several of my pear trees this season.

W. C. K.

The scale on the twig you enclosed seems to be no other than the common San Jose scale, which has killed millions of trees in the last few years. There are a number of remedies for this pest on the market now, and you should have no great trouble in getting rid of it if you will take the matter in hand before it gets too much of a start. The lime-sulphur-salt solutions are effective.

A. F. J. B.

REMOVE THE CANNA SEEDS.

Will you kindly give me some advice regarding cannas? Is it advisable that the flowers be kept cut from field-grown cannas to benefit the roots for the coming season, or does the flowering of the cannas benefit the roots?

M. H. R.

It will do the roots of field-grown cannas no harm if their flowers are allowed to develop, though I doubt much whether the mere production of flowers would in any way benefit the roots. Be careful, however, to remove all seeds, as these soon sap the vitality of plants.

Peoria, Ill.—When completed the conservatories at Glen Oak park will be among the largest and finest in the state outside of Chicago. The range is heated by Kroeschell boilers, the original houses by a Kroeschell No. 13, installed in 1907, and the recent addition by a No. 10.

CLEVELAND THE BRIGHT SPOT.

Cleveland will be in the spotlight in a trade way in the months to come and the result of the election of officers held September 8 by the Cleveland Florists' Club is a matter of general interest. Those chosen to office are the men who will have charge of the club's participation in the big flower show to be given in November in coöperation with the Ohio Horticultural Society and of the club's part in the annual meeting and exhibition of the American Carnation Society the last week in January, 1914.

The new roster of officers is as follows:

President—Charles E. Russell.

First vice-president—T. J. Kirchner.

Second vice-president—A. L. Brown.

Secretary—Frank A. Friedley.

Treasurer—George W. Smith.

At the meeting at which the new officers were chosen, the retiring president, Adam Graham, was given a unanimous vote of thanks in appreciation of the thoroughness that has marked his administration of the club's affairs during the last two years.

The club and its officers find plenty of work in prospect. Not only is the autumn show close at hand, followed by the January carnation meeting, but many in the trade in Cleveland are looking forward to entertaining the Society of American Florists at an early date and wish the club to at once begin preparations for securing the convention.

Leavenworth, Kan.—The Sunnyside Floral Co. has completed three greenhouses, making a total area of 27,000 square feet of glass. A 150-foot cold-frame is another recent addition.

BOSTON.

The Market.

Flowers continue much too abundant for the moderate calls for them, and it is unlikely that there will be any appreciable improvement unless heavy rain or frost, or a combination of both, curtail the outdoor offerings of asters, gladioli, etc. Asters still swamp practically all other flowers. Some good, long-stemmed flowers sell as high as $2 per hundred, but many do not reach one-fourth that figure. Gladioli were surely never so fine, so abundant or so difficult to dispose of. When splendid America, Mrs. King and Mrs. Frank Pendleton are hard to move at $2 per hundred, the condition of the market can be gauged. Dahlias are seen in considerable numbers. Only some of the best cactus and peony-flowered sorts are wanted.

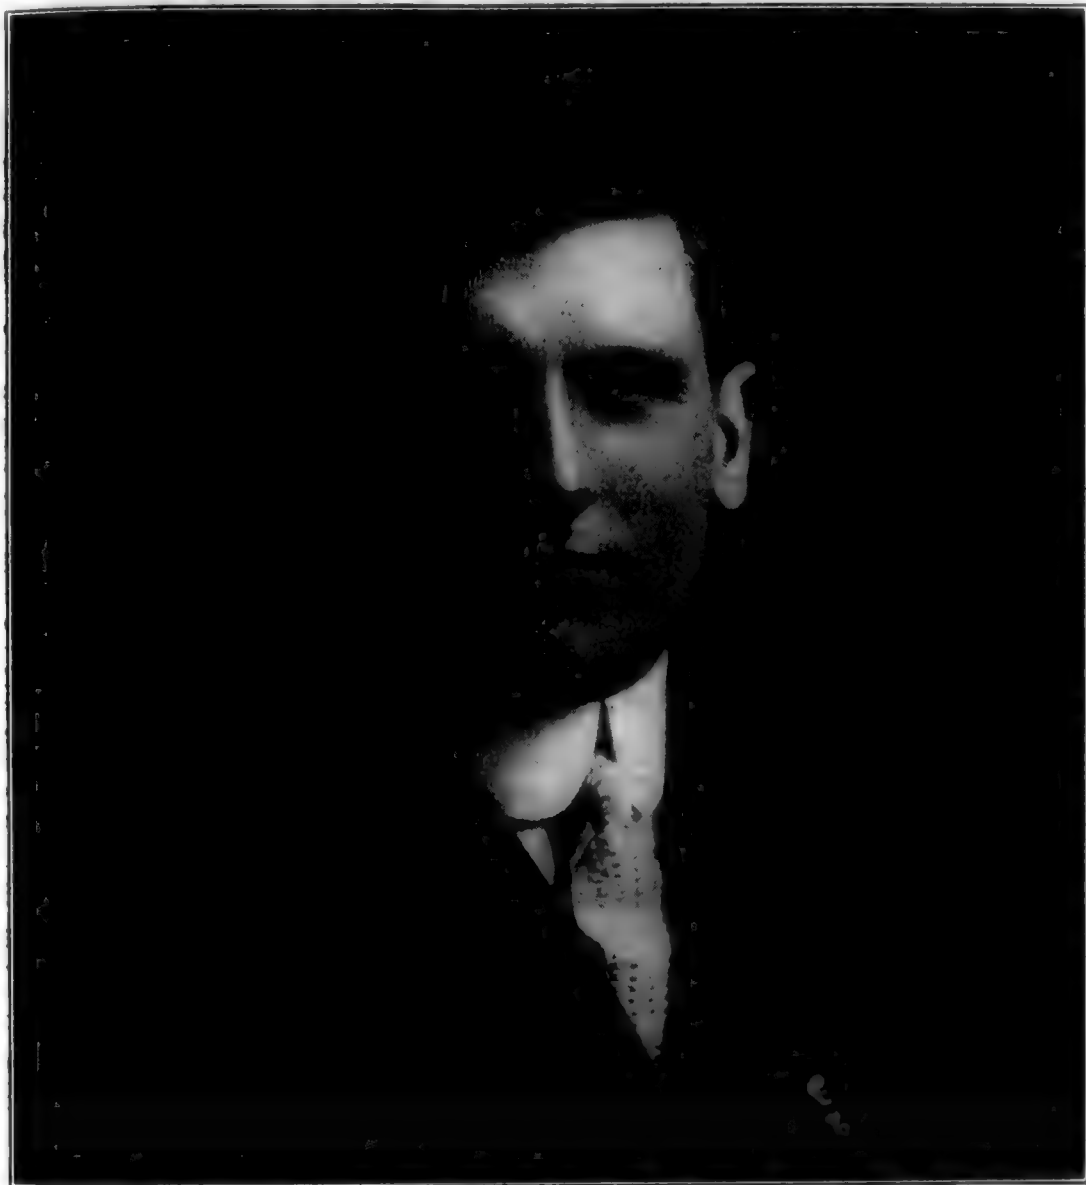

Roses are decidedly soft and not easy to sell, even at low prices. The cooler weather has caused a considerable improvement in the quality. Some more growers are now sending new crop carnations, but they do not bring much, there being too many good asters. Chrysanthemum Golden Glow is overabundant. Smith's Advance sells rather better, but mums in September are rather premature. Lilium longiflorum has been scarce and naturally in good demand. Valley is commencing to come in from one or two more growers. It is not yet in oversupply. Cosmos is abundant. Good cattleyas continue scarce, as are gardenias. Demand for asparagus and adiantum is a little better.

Dahlia Exhibition.

The annual fruit and dahlia exhibition of the Massachusetts Horticultural Frank A. Friedley, Secretary Cleveland Florists' Club.

Charles E. Russell, President Cleveland Florists' Club.

Society was held September 12 to 14, and proved successful. The dahlias were of unusually good quality, although early frosts had severely damaged the flowers of some large growers. For twenty-four blooms distinct show or fancy, W. D. Hathaway was first and E. F. Dwyer & Sons second. E. W. Ela led for twelve varieties show, A. E. Johnson being second and W. H. Symonds third.

For twenty-four varieties cactus competition was strong. Sisson & Thurston were first, A. E. Johnson second and E. W. Ela third.

For twenty-four decorative W. D. Hathaway was first. Some of his best varieties were: Souv. de Gustave Doazon, Perle d'Or, Mrs. Winters, Mme. Mary Collett, Santa Cruz, Jeanne Charmet, LeGrand Manitou, Beloit and Mrs. Lillie P. Hathaway. J. K. Alexander was second. For twelve decorative E. W. Ela was first with fine flowers. For twelve cactus Miss Fanny Foster, Newport, R. I., took the lead with a superb lot. A. E. Johnson was second and E. W. Ela third.

There were some fine entries for peony-flowered varieties. In the twenty-four class W. D. Hathaway was first, J. K. Alexander second. For twelve varieties Sisson & Thurston were first, E. F. Dwyer & Sons second. For twenty-four varieties pompons J. K. Alexander was again invincible. W. D. Hathaway was second. For twelve varieties E. F. Dwyer & Sons were first. For twelve varieties singles, Sisson & Thurston were first and E. W. Ela second. For largest and best collection, named, of all classes, Geo. H. Walker was first, Miss Lillian M. Towle second. Thomas W. Head, Bergenfield, N. J., had a large display of dahlias. The Fottler, Fiske, Rawson Co. filled several large tables with several hundred varieties of dahlias and gladioli, including many fine novelties. Geo. B. Gill had a dahlia display. A large vase of a dark red variety, Mrs. E. M. Gill, was noteworthy. B. Hammond Tracy had an extensive gladiolus display arranged, as usual, most artistically. There were extensive displays of herbaceous plants from Old Town Nurseries, Eastern Nurseries and Mount Desert Nurseries. R. & J. Farquhar & Co. had phlox, buddleias and palms. F. J. Rea had a collection of phlox.

Mrs. J. L. Gardner, Wm. Thatcher, gardener, had splendid specimen plants of Alpinia Sanderæ and Phyllotænum Lindeni. Mrs. Frederick Ayer, Geo. Page, gardener, had large standard ivies, variegated pineapples and platyceriums. Mrs. E. M. Gill had a nice miscellaneous display, also Mrs. M. W. Chadbourne. William Whitman, M. Sullivan, gardener, had a large collection of perennial phlox and annuals. Peirce Bros. had an artistic display of the charming little rose, Mme. Cecile Brunner. The Eastern Nurseries showed several novelties in perennials from China. A clematis and potentilla received honorable mention.

The fruit display was good. Thomas E. Proctor, Jas. Marlborough, gardener, won premier position for grapes. He also showed a large basket of handsome Princess of Wales peaches. New Hampshire Agricultural College had a most interesting display of melons, including varieties from Sutton and Vilmorin and resultant hybrids raised at the college greenhouses, the result of nearly six years' labor. This exhibit secured a silver medal, the only one awarded at the exhibition. The Boston Mycological Club had a large mushroom display, and it was surprising to see the growing interest in these fungi.

WEEKLY PUBLISHED BY THE

BOSTON

The Market.

R. H. ...

For twelve varieties hybrid tea roses, three blooms of each, there was a fine display, showing the value of these roses for late blooming. A. W. Preston, J. L. Smith, gardener, was first with Dr. O'Donnel Brown, Etoile de France, Mme. Melanie Soupert, Kaiserin Augusta Victoria, Gustave Regio, La France, Gloire de Dijon, President Taft, J. P. Clark, G. C. Waud, Farbon Königin and Betty. T. N. Cook was second and third. Geo. Page had a fine vase of the old Marechal Niel.

Various Notes.

William J. Patterson, the popular young Wollaston florist, one of the executive committee of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club, and Miss Jean Westwood, daughter of T. H. Westwood, of Forest Hills cemetery, an ex-president of the club, were married September 12 at the home of the bride, Union Terrace, Jamaica Plain. The house was beautifully decorated for the occasion, and among the guests were a number of florists and salesmen at the Boston Flower Exchange. The presents were numerous and beautiful, attesting the popularity of the young couple. Mr. and Mrs. Patterson left on a short honeymoon trip, being given a good sendoff by their friends. On their return they will reside at Wollaston, Mass.

Albert Roper, of Tewksbury, has 5,000 plants of Alice Coombs, his sensational new pink carnation, coming along in fine shape. He has about 5,000 plants of a clear pink, of Enchantress shade, which Mr. Roper believes will put Pink Delight in the background. Another of Gloriosa type is also looming up well, and there are many others of great merit being tried out.

J. A. Budlong & Sons Co., Auburn, R. I., are this season growing 63,000 chrysanthemums, and will commence cutting about October 1.

The Boston Flower Exchange sold 140 stalls at the annual auction September 6. There are some sixty remaining stalls for late comers.

Visitors last week included H. A. Barnard, representing Stuart, Low & Co., London, England; T. W. Head, Bergenfield, N. J.; John Young, New York; C. H. Hovey, Pasadena, Cal.

Henry Penn has been elected a director in the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association of America.

Frost on the evening of September 9 severely damaged the dahlias of a number of large local growers, including J. K. Alexander, of East Bridgewater, and G. W. Page, of East Billerica.

A. S. Parker, of Stoneham, has unusually fine asters in quantity, which realize $2 per hundred when many flowers go begging at one-fourth this price.

F. J. Dolansky is cutting fine Golden Glow mums, and a fine lot of Cattleya Trianae.

J. D. Twombly, of Winchester, and David Dunean, of Arlington, are doing a lively business in nephrolepis these days at the Boston Coöperative Market.

A. G. Pembroke, brother of and salesman for A. A. Pembroke, of North Beverly, is due back from an English trip September 18.

Edward Bingham, of Dedham, is marketing an extra fine lot of Golden Glow mums this week.

The garden committee of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society visited the fruit orchards of A. A. Marshall, of Fitchburg, September 10, to inspect 110 acres of apples, containing 6,500 trees.

Lester H. Mann, of Randolph, has been quite sick for some days with malaria.

N. M. Silverman, on Winter street, finds business starting up nicely. He always keeps an attractive and well-stocked store.

M. F. Ruane, in addition to his Waltham store, now has a flower stand at the Brockton public market and reports business good at each.

Penn's, in one of their windows September 13, had a beautiful specimen of the flamingo plant, Anthurium Andræanum, carrying over thirty spathes. They also had a fine display of crotons, caladiums and other colored-leaved plants.

The Brooklands Gardens, of Woburn, are sending shipments of high-grade gladioli to the Boston Flower Exchange, including such high-quality sorts as Mrs. Frank Pendleton and Niagara.

H. L. Shedd, of South Lowell, and J. W. Foote, of Reading, are each sending in good new crop carnations to the Boston Flower Exchange.

George H. Noyes, of Needham, is back in the Boston Flower Exchange, and is handling good shipments of carnations and asters from S. J. Goddard, of Framingham.

Peirce Bros., of Waltham, among other roses are growing quite a number of Mme. Cecile Brunner, the dainty little variety so popular on the Pacific coast, and it should take well here.

W. N. Craig.

DETROIT, MICH.

The Market.

Business remains good, exceptionally brisk when we consider the season, it being still too early to expect a rush of business. Stock is fair. Roses are of excellent quality, fine color and foliage. Carnations are improving as the season advances. Asters, snapdragons, gladioli and lancifolium lilies are all in large supply and of satisfactory quality.

Various Notes.

Charles Hufford is no longer associated with the Hufford & Maebius Co., so far as their store at 249 Randolph street is concerned, Walter Maebius being sole proprietor.

W. B. Brown had an attractive window during Made-in-Detroit week, a pretty feature being an old-fashioned well made of flowers.

William Hielscher took active part in the Made-in-Detroit window displays, showing the public what can be made of wire.

Albert Havrane, of Walkerville, Ont., is a successful tomato grower and his crop coming along for early winter is said to be the finest ever seen in this vicinity.

E. A. Scribner, in his address to the Detroit Florists' Club at the last meeting, referred to the falling off in the attendance of the older members of the S. A. F. The following committees were appointed by President Danser, of the Detroit Florists' Club: Growers' publicity committee, Thos. Browne, Chas. Plumb and Ed. Beard; retailers' publicity committee, E. A. Fettes, M. Bloy, J. K. Stock and F. Holznagle; publicity committee, J. F. Sullivan, R. W. Unger and A. Pochelon; entertainment committee, R. Rahaley, W. Taepke, Theodore Michel and Thomas Browne. A vote of thanks was extended to Robert Flowerday and the employees of the Belle Isle greenhouses for the generous manner in which the members of our club and their ladies were entertained during our recent outing at Belle Isle. H. S.

GREENWICH, CONN.

The monthly meeting of the Westchester and Fairfield Horticultural Society was held in Wordus hall September 12, President Robert Williamson in the chair. The chief topic of the evening was the fall show, which will be held in the Armory at Stamford, November 7 and 8. The final schedule is now in the printer's hands and will be on the table at the next meeting.

An interesting and instructive address on the hickory bark beetle was given by Mr. De Viver, of Bronxville, N. Y., showing specimens of the beetle and the havoc it is doing to the hickory, also instructing the members how to combat this new pest, which is doing so much damage in the New England states.

The prize offered by A. R. Kennedy for the best collection of hardy flowers was won by A. Whitelaw, P. W. Popp being second. Other exhibits were as follows:

P. W. Popp, certificate of merit for collection of named gladioli in sixty-five varieties.

Thos. Ryan, honorable mention for collection of hardy grapes.

O. A. Hunwick, honorable mention for pair of egg plant fruits.

O. P. Chapman, Jr., Westerly, R. I., staged a splendid collection of dahlias; although somewhat damaged in transit, the large blooms and wonderful colors proved the grower to be an expert in the culture of dahlias.

A special prize is offered at the next meeting for best collection of dahlias. O. A. H.

HARTFORD, CONN.

The Market.

With the return of cooler weather business is picking up. Plenty of roses are now to be had, of good quality. Some carnations are seen, but they are not yet cut in quantity. Frost was reported last week.

Various Notes.

The Bon Ton Flower Shop was awarded the silver cup for the best wreath at the Connecticut fair. This store has had some attractive window displays during the summer, the establishment being all that the name implies.

At the greenhouses of John Coombs everything is in fine shape for another season's business.

The Whiting greenhouses, at West Hartford, are all filled with fine stock. The roses, particularly, are looking well. One house of Taft and Kaiserin still is producing well and the flowers are borne on remarkably long stems. Manager Peterson says he changes one-third of the roses each year, with the exception of the summer varieties, which are carried over much longer. Two houses have been rebuilt this summer.

A. N. Pierson has returned from his trip abroad.

A. N. Pierson, Inc., has installed two new boilers, each of 250 horse-power. One new house 40x186 is just being completed, with a cellar beneath for the storage of stock. T. R. Beers was at the New York state fair in charge of the company's display of plants.

One of the saddest funerals ever held in Cromwell was that of Alvin Anderson, who was accidentally shot by his brother, Emil, while duck hunting September 4. Both young men were employed in the chrysanthemum department of A. N. Pierson, Inc., and were held in highest esteem by their employers and fellow workmen. R. C. S.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

With cooler weather, returning voyagers, schools and theaters in full blast, summer resorts closed, retail stores all redecorated and refurnished, the market begins to feel the inevitable thrill of renewed activity. Prices are steadying.

There are large supplies of roses, and they are getting better every day. The best ones, Beauties, Shawyer, Russell, Milady, Double Killarney, Sunburst and all the others, go quickly. It is hard work to get rid of the short stems, but they go at some price. There are a few good carnations at last; the end of the week will see a lot of them. There still are plenty of gladioli as well as asters, and the coming week is dahlia week, but only the best of these are wanted. Lots of them go to the discard. Orchids hold well, but the supply has begun to increase. Good values have prevailed for several weeks, owing to their scarcity. Cypripediums and oncidiums are fine. Lilies have been firm, and valley also. Hydrangeas are abundant and widely used in the retail windows. Mums are increasing.

Various Notes.

The death of Mayor Gaynor and his public funeral September 22, after lying in state for two days in City hall; will be the occasion of a showing of flowers such as this city has seldom if ever seen.

The plant auctions began September 16. The MacNiff Horticultural Co. has largely increased its facilities in this department and importations are arriving daily. Mr. MacNiff reached home a week ago in splendid health after his European trip.

Burnett Bros. now are comfortably settled in their new store at 98 Chambers street, close to Broadway, where five floors and two basements give them every facility for handling a large business. The progress of this house during the last nine years has been rapid.

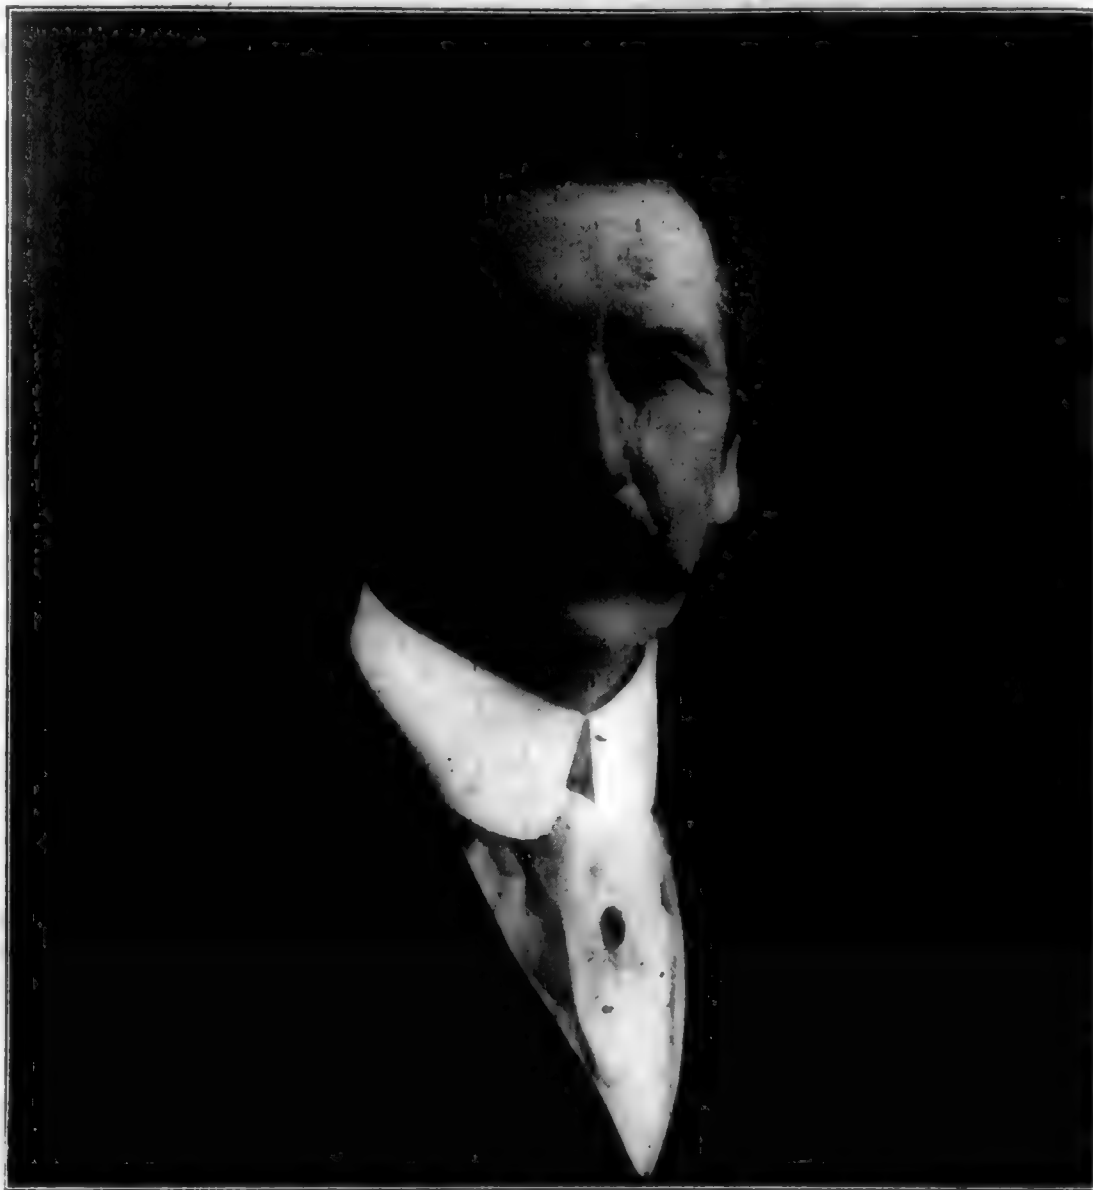

Wm. Elias, one of the old-time gardeners, superintendent of the Bliss estate at Bernardsville, N. J., died suddenly September 12. Funeral services and interment took place September 13 at Stapleton, L. I.

The Stumpp & Walter Co. had a fine display of gladioli in their windows at 50 Barclay street last week, including Peace, War, Dawn and Afterglow. In the new store the immense windows are in place and the commodious offices are complete. By the end of the week the transfer will be accomplished without a moment's interruption to business.

Weeber & Don have been repainting and refitting their store on Chambers street and report business extremely satisfactory.

Marshall Clarke, of David Clarke's Sons, is back from his vacation in the

"WHO'S WHO—AND WHY"

ADOLPH JAENICKE.

OF THE hundreds and hundreds of florists who have handled the bushy little Begonia Erfordii, how many have been aware of the fact that the originator of the plant is now a resident of St. Louis and that his name frequently appears in The Review's St. Louis news-letters? Now don't raise your hand unless you really did know all about it. His name is Adolph Jaenicke and he was recently elected vice-president of the St. Louis Florists' Club. Why shouldn't this club be of some consequence, with such men as officers? Mr. Jaenicke is a native of Germany. For a number of years he was superintendent of the greenhouse department of Haage & Schmidt, at Erfurt, Germany, and it was through that firm that he gave Begonia Erfordii to the trade. After coming to America, he was for some years at Floral Park, N. Y., where he had charge of John Lewis Childs' plant, landscape and exhibition departments. For two years he was head gardener at the Missouri Botanical Garden, St. Louis, and he is now teacher of horticulture at the Principia School and superintendent of the estate of C. H. Howard, at St. Louis.

Thousand Islands and Gilmour Clarke from his trip on the great lakes to Duluth, including his visit at Minneapolis during the S. A. F. convention.

Hamilton Scott, of Morristown, N. J., superintendent of the C. W. McAlpin estate, Glen Alpine, was in New York September 13.

Mr. and Mrs. Bock, of Boston, are spending their vacation in New York. Mr. Bock is with Thomas F. Galvin at the Hub and seems to prefer Boston to his old home town, much to the surprise of his New York friends. Galvin's New York branch opens this week, and is thoroughly up to date.

Miss Hollingshead, bookkeeper for Thomas Young, has returned from a vacation at Asbury Park, N. J.

Bert Chadwick, with Charles F.

Meyer, is preparing for an extensive business trip beginning early in October.

Alex. McConnell decorated the house and grounds last week for the wedding of the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Ward at the Cottage Gardens, Queen's, L. I.

George Sykes, manager of the western branch of the Lord & Burnham Co., was in New York last week and reports a big business year. The Lord & Burnham Co. has a contract running to $400,000 for the immense conservatory of J. K. DeLamar, of Glen Cove, L. I., the largest enterprise of its kind ever undertaken in this country. This building is 60x200, the top of the center dome being fifty-eight feet high. In the center is a swimming pool forty feet in diameter. There also will be a grapery and an orchid house. The masonry is completed.

George Peters & Sons, of Hempstead, L. I., have given the Lord & Burnham Co. a contract for three houses 50x150 and one house 62x200, to be devoted entirely to carnations, as is all their big plant, which now comprises six houses 25x200, one house 40x300, and one house 50x400.

The Coogan building has become exceedingly floricultural. On the ground floor are Charles Millang, Paul Meconi and the Robinson Co.; on the second floor, Moore, Hentz & Nash and the Pierson Co.; above these, Louis M. Noe and Louis A. Noe, Dailedouze Bros. and other departments of the New York Cut Flower Co., and on the third floor, Bonnot Bros., Philip Kessler, Frank Millang and all the growers of the Cut Flower Exchange. The feeling is that this season will break all records.

In the new home of the Growers' Cut Flower Co. the ice machine's wheels are turning, the big store is completely rebuilt and modernized, Manager Coan's new offices are commodious and handsomely furnished, and the board of directors has a cozy spot for the monthly conferences.

L. Branch and Miss Rose Rosenstein were married at Carlton hall, Sunday evening, September 14.

John Young is nearly settled in his new store, which will be convenient when completed. He is receiving all kinds of seasonable flowers, including John Donaldson's lilies.

A. J. Guttman is building a new office, giving him more room in the store. He is receiving some fine dahlias from Zuber.

Gunther Bros. received their first shipments of dahlias September 13. They say quality is better than last year at this season.

Sam. Seligman, with Wertheimer Bros., has just arrived in town after a most successful trip. He states that the west appears in a flourishing condition and he looks for a greatly increased quantity of wedding work throughout the autumn, as he states that everywhere he goes more marriage licenses are being taken out than in any previous season.

The big flower show of the American Institute opens September 23, at the Engineers' building, on Thirty-ninth street, and lasts three days. It will be the first time the organization has had room to spread itself.

J. K. Allen has redecorated his store and is ready for a big season, which he says is "as sure as taxes."

Wm. Kessler has completed the redecoration of his conservatory and is filling it rapidly. The cut flower department, under Mr. Bradshaw's management, is doing well and a successful season is anticipated.

J. Austin Shaw.

The J. M. Keller Co., of Whitestone, has been incorporated, with $75,000 capital, by M. O. Jordan, of Brooklyn; J. Appel, of Whitestone, and G. W. Gordon, of New York city.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

The last week has shown a slight improvement among the florists, while the character of the stock has improved quite perceptibly, besides increasing in quantity. The first chrysanthemums have made their debut, and were eagerly bought up at good prices. Asters continue good, while carnations are coming along. Funeral work was brisk.

Various Notes.

William Hay is having his range of houses at Oaklawn renovated by John N. Laurie.

Albert Holscher is cutting his first mums. He has a large and fine looking crop, and expects to cut between 60,000 and 75,000 blooms.

A light frost was reported in the low lands in the suburbs of this city September 10, the first of the season.

Joseph Koppelman has sold his retail business at 25 Washington street to his brother-in-law, Charles Smith, who will continue it under the name of Smith the Florist. William Cohn, who has been with Mr. Koppelman in his wholesale store, will be employed by Mr. Smith, while Samuel Resnick will go from the retail to the wholesale store with Mr. Koppelman.

John Burke, of Burke & Burns, has the sympathy of a large circle of friends in the death of his sister, Mrs. Clara Engvall, with whom he made his home.

A. W. Vose, of Woonsocket, is spending the month of September on Prudence island, in Narragansett bay.

S. J. Reuter & Son, Inc., have bought the Daniel Chester residence on Greenman avenue, Westerly, which is to be occupied by Edgar Bayley and family, who recently came from Philadelphia. Mr. Bayley recently accepted the position of rose foreman for S. J. Reuter & Son.

L. A. Jillson has been conducting a fine exhibition of dahlias at 86 Richmond street, where he has been booking numerous orders.

Eric Bonevier, proprietor of the Butcher Greenhouses, was taken to the Rhode Island hospital a few days ago with a severe attack of typhoid fever. During his confinement John Lindbloom, manager of the Hope Greenhouses for Miss Florence Willard, will take care of both places.

Asters, dahlias, vegetables, fruit, etc., will compose the next exhibition of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society, in the vestry of the Mathewson Street Methodist church, September 23 and 24.

Joseph Koppelman went to Worcester, Mass., September 10, to see his sister, Mrs. K. Max, on her way to her home in San Francisco. Mrs. Max accompanied her sister to and from Jerusalem, returning about ten days ago.

The stock company closed its season at Keith's last Saturday night and the members were the recipients of numerous large floral tributes. While these were well distributed among the downtown florists, T. J. Johnston & Co. and Johnston Bros. had a good share.

Large numbers of visitors were received by S. R. Astle at the Lakewood Dahlia Gardens, at Lakewood, last week.

Brass arches have been placed in front of each of the large show windows of T. O'Connor's new store, at the corner of Union and Fulton streets. These will be used to suspend plants from.

Aaron Cohen, with Joseph Koppelman, returned last week from a vacation trip to New York and Philadelphia.

William H. Tarbox, of West Greenwich Center, has several acres of fine dahlias and asters this fall. Of the former he has upwards of 400 new varieties from Europe, while of asters he has more than 10,000 plants. He was one of the judges at the New England Dahlia Show, in Horticultural hall, Boston, last week. He has been engaged to take charge of the dahlia and aster exhibition at the Danbury fair, at Danbury, Conn., the week of October 6, and has been commissioned to make a horse of flowers, four feet in length, ridden by a girl of flowers. After the Danbury fair he will go to Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

SAGINAW AND BAY CITY, MICH.

The Market.

Business was quite brisk last week, most of the stock going into funeral work. Chrysanthemums have made their appearance in Saginaw. Carnations are in fair supply, but still are rather short in stem. Roses are plentiful, especially in Saginaw, and of fine quality. Outdoor flowers are about over, with the exception of gladioli, which are in their glory.

Fair Week.

The Northeastern Michigan fair was held last week at Bay City and the last day the gate was 35,000. The management says the florists' department was the best on the grounds. The florists of Saginaw and Bay City each arranged their own display at their own expense, with a view toward the dissemination of floricultural information in the valley. There was some fine stock shown, in the way of single plants, collections of plants and cut flowers, which were a credit to all exhibitors, and still we are promised a better fair next year. Prof. Taft, of Lansing, was judge and everyone was pleased with the distribution of premiums. Albert G. Boehringer had charge of the exhibits. Following is the list of awards:

Collection of 100 plants—Boehringer Bros., first; John Irvine & Sons, second; J. B. Goetz Sons, third.

Collection of palms—Boehringer Bros., first; Wm. Roethke Floral Co., second; Grohmann the Florist, third.

Collection of coleus—Boehringer Bros., first; J. B. Goetz Sons, second; John Irvine & Sons, third.

Collection of ferns—Grohmann the Florist, first; J. B. Goetz Sons, second; Wm. Roethke Floral Co., third.

Specimen palm—Boehringer Bros., first; J. B. Goetz Sons, second; Chas. Frueh & Sons, third.

Floral basket—Grohmann the Florist, first; J. B. Goetz Sons, second; Marsh & Reuther, third.

Display of small tumbler baskets filled with cut flowers—Wm. Roethke Floral Co., first.

Bay City Notes.

Boehringer Bros. are about through planting and remodeling and fall business has opened up well with them. Chrysanthemums look promising.

John Irvine & Sons are getting in readiness for a big rooted cutting business this winter.

Martin Keit is housing his carnations, which look the best in years, and the new Mrs. Keit will probably turn the flowers into money this winter, which she is quite capable of doing, as she had been in Mr. Keit's employ a number of years prior to their marriage.

Marsh & Reuther are cutting some nice carnations and find ready sale for them.

Julius Schultz has remodeled his whole place and carnation planting is in full swing.

Daniel Shepherd has given his houses a coat of white paint—quite an improvement.

Saginaw Notes.

Charles Frueh & Sons have the first mums to show in their new store at 514 Genesee avenue, which were a big attraction on opening day.

J. B. Goetz Sons are installing an additional boiler to take care of the new glass.

Grohmann the Florist has his winter's supply of coal in. "I should worry," he says.

The Wm. Roethke Floral Co. has added another lot of cement benches, which are being planted with carnations.

Desner & Fisher have built a new salesroom at their greenhouses. The old structure was too small.

The Stevens Gladioli Co. is having great success in marketing gladiolus spikes in the south and west.

Zorn & Gaertner are leaders on asters. They ship from 4,000 to 5,000 daily to the southern markets.

J. E. Rölker, of New York, was a visitor last week. Gee.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

The Indiana State Fair.

The flower exhibition at the State Fair had a large number of entries this year, and as a whole the exhibition was good. W. J. Vesey, Jr., of Ft. Wayne, acted as judge. The awards were as follows:

General collection of plants—Pahud Floral Co., first; Reinken Floral Co., second; H. W. Rieman, third.

Collection of ten ferns—Pahud Floral Co., first; Reinken Floral Co., second; H. W. Rieman, third.

Twelve white chrysanthemums, cut—Reinken Floral Co., first; E. Rieman, second; Pahud Floral Co., third.

Collection of dahlias—Reinken Floral Co., first; Pahud Floral Co., second; E. Rieman, third.

Various Notes.

The regular meeting of the State Florists' Association was held at Smith & Young's last Thursday night, with a good attendance. A number of out-of-town members were present. The main business before the meeting was the amendments of the by-laws, which were in a committee's hands. After much discussion they were adopted. F. B. Alley was voted an honorary membership. After the meeting the members sat down to a Dutch lunch.

Claude Morrison, formerly with the Indianapolis Flower & Plant Co., has taken a position with the A. Wiegand's Sons Co.

Walter Bertermann has returned from a trip in the east.

Homer Wiegand has been on the sick list. H. L. W.

FORT WAYNE, IND.

The Market.

The middle of September marks the awakening of fall business. Engagement parties, weddings and social affairs in general are creating a demand for flowers. At every social function the floral decorations form an important feature, and the florist with ingenious ideas and ways of displaying his flowers to fit the occasion is much in demand. The fall stock is improving in quality. Roses are the leading flowers at present, while gladioli play a prominent part in the trade. Hydrangeas are used extensively, and some good snapdragons are on the market. Carnations are making their appearance, but as yet they are only from the young plants and have attained no substantial size. The first chrysanthemums of the season are in and are heartily welcomed as harbingers of autumn, cool days and brisk trade.

State Florists' Association.

W. J. Vesey, Jr., reports the attendance at the last meeting of the Indiana State Florists' Association, which was held in Indianapolis Thursday evening, September 11, as exceedingly good. In July the Northern Indiana Florists' Club and the State Florists' Association were affiliated, and the meeting September 11 was for the purpose of revising the constitution and by-laws of the association. In this affiliation of the different societies in the state, Indiana is one of the leading states to recognize the advantages to be gained by thus uniting the florists' clubs from different parts of the state and unifying their interests.

Various Notes.

W. J. Vesey, Jr., was the only judge from this part of the state on the flower committee at the Indiana State Fair, at Indianapolis.

Miss C. B. Flick, of the Flick Floral Co., returned from the convention via the Great Lakes, going through the Sault Ste. Marie.

Miss Marjory Bradley, landscape architect, a graduate of the Michigan Agricultural College, will remain in Fort Wayne this season, as this locality offers a good field for her work. Miss Bradley has now a large deal on hand which will probably engage most of her time this fall.

A pretty novelty, seen in the Bradley Flower Shop, was a flat of Colchicum autumnale, from Dutch bulbs. They are known as fall-blooming crocuses and are of a delicate lavender shade. The plants bear as many as eighteen blossoms each when fully developed.

David Vesey, who was recently graduated in the law school at the University of Michigan, has taken up law practice in the office of his father, W. J. Vesey. Miss Catherine Vesey has returned to Ohio Western College, at Oxford, O.

Mrs. L. E. Auger, of the Auger Flower Co., has as a guest her daughter, Mrs. Herbert Coverdale, of Indianapolis.

Miss Ruth R. Flick, of the C. B. Flick Floral Co., has returned from Walloon Lake, Mich., where she spent the summer. The Flick Floral Co. has a number of prominent weddings booked for September and October.

Visitors to the trade last week were W. E. F. Weber, from Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.; A. W. Herre, of the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago; A. F. Longren, of Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago, and Mr. Nelson, of the Burlington Willow Ware Shops, Burlington, Ia. B. R. F.

OBITUARY.

Constant Ponnet.

Constant Ponnet, who for twenty years was engaged in the florists' business in Alexandria, Va., died suddenly September 12 at his home, 2012 Duke street. Heart trouble was the cause of his death. Mr. Ponnet was a native of France, 66 years of age, and came to this country in his early youth. Last year he returned to his old home in France with a view to improving his health. He is survived by his wife and the following children: Herman and Paul Ponnet, of Alexandria; Mrs. E. J. Schroth, Washington; Mrs. Charles Kaufman, Richmond, Va.; Mrs. James Power, and the Misses Rose and Constant Ponnet, all of Alexandria. Mr. Ponnet was a member of Fitzgerald Council, No. 459, Knights of Columbus. He conducted a florists' establishment on Duke street, extended, in Alexandria, and a stand in the Center Market, Washington, D. C., where he was an old and familiar figure. The news of his sudden death seemed to cast a pall over the market, for Mr. Ponnet was quite a favorite there. C. L. L.

Bay City, Mich.—Of such merit was the gladiolus display of the Bay City-Saginaw Floricultural Society at the northeastern state fair here, that a Detroit man offered $100, besides expenses of shipping and packing, to have it sent to the fair at Detroit. The society is composed of florists of the two cities. Its officers are: President, John Irvine, Bay City; vice-president, Carl Roethke, Saginaw; secretary, Henry Goetz, Saginaw, and treasurer, Albert B. Boehringer, Bay City.

 The Review brings results.

STANDARDS now are so high that few novelties measure up to the requirements for the big sales of a decade ago.

THE way the croton has advanced in popular favor of late has been due, more than anything else, to a conspicuous success in its culture.

ALL of the old settlers tell us the middle west will have a long, cold winter and florists are advised to lay in a good supply of fuel.

NOT a few subscribers save themselves
 the bother of annual renewal by sending
 The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-
 two visits of the paper.

NINE times out of ten, when roses do not thrive, it is a case of too little water. "Soak 'em, Louie!" is a good slogan for a grower whose plants do not behave as he would have them.

ONE of life's little irritations for the supply man is to spend a goodly sum in issuing a catalogue and, a day or two after the book goes into the mails, have the manufacturer of some standard line prominently listed serve notice of an advance in price.

THE prospect is that the supply of boxwood this season will be about as usual. It will be remembered that last season's Christmas shortage was due to bad weather and trouble on the railroads, rather than to any curtailment of the supply; after Christmas there was plenty.

It is said that the supply houses are booking many and large orders for red ruscus for Christmas, and that they believe it will be even more generally used than last season. What this means may be realized when it is stated that several concerns are reported to have sold upwards of fifteen tons of ruscus last season.

"How much are my greenhouses worth?" It is a question that comes to The Review every few days. Usually there is a list of sizes and more or less of an inventory of contents, but no mention ever is made of the factors that really determine value. For inventory purposes, possibly as good a plan as any is to start with the cost of the completed greenhouses and deduct ten per cent each year, in the meantime charging repairs to expense. But the real worth of a greenhouse as a going business is determined by what can be made out of it, and that largely is a personal matter, determined by ability and hustle.

WHY BE CONTENT?

Why be content with the volume of business to be had in a limited local retail field when there are the unlimited possibilities of the wholesale trade?

How to get the wholesale orders?

That's the easiest part. Just work up stock of almost any widely sold plant and tell about it in the Classified columns of The Review.

This is how it works:

I am sold out of begonias; The Review certainly is a fine advertising medium; it brings results.—James B. Norton, Akron, O., September 15, 1913.

Send out plants that not only are good but which are just a little better than other good plants and in a few seasons come to be entirely independent of the home trade.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

Stock has shortened up considerably and, with cooler weather holding the crops in check, the situation is now at the point where the wholesaler can have a hand in fixing prices. The change in the weather had an immediate effect and, especially in Beauties, as the cuts dwindled a stiffening in prices was noted. While there are about enough roses to meet the demand, the quality has greatly improved. There are fewer good asters on the market than a week ago and what good ones arrive are receiving attention from the buyers. However, it still is impossible for the wholesalers to get rid of the large quantities of poor asters. Considerable quantities are arriving from New York growers.

Carnations of the better grades are not any too plentiful. While there is plenty of the medium grade stock, and considerably more of the inferior stock, there is little demand for anything but the best. Cooler weather seems to have cut down the size of the shipments and while asters still hold a certain percentage of the popularity, there are none too many really good carnations.

Beauties have shortened steadily for some days and on the heavy shipping days of September 12 and 13 it was not easy to supply the wants of both the out-of-town and local buyers, owing to the small number that arrived. That is, the number was small compared with the quantities that were offered a week previous. With the advance in price some of the local buyers turned to other varieties, but the out-of-town trade, unaware of the changed conditions, continued to order good-sized shipments.

Killarney has been in improved demand since the supply shortened. Reversing the recent rule, White Killarney has not moved so quickly as the pink

The Yellow Rose of Quality

If you want Good Novelty Roses order these

In addition to a large supply of the three special Roses named above, which we can furnish in lengths up to 24 inches for Milady and 36 inches for the others, we also can send special, long-stemmed Roses of the other varieties in the list. Our specialty is extra fancy stock. You who want the best, try Amling and see for yourself. We have the ordinary grades for all who specify select; if you want the best order our specials.

FANCY VALLEY

You can depend upon us at all times for valley. If you run short, a wire to Amling will bring the valley you need.

CARNATIONS

You can use Carnations freely again—our new crops are of a quality that will please your customers. Nice clean flowers in large quantity, stems rapidly lengthening; most of them long enough now to please your trade. All colors.

MUMS

You can take any order for Mums that gives us a little time. Daily arrivals, but not long unsold. Principally Golden Glow, yellow, but also can supply Smith's Advance, white.

BEAUTIES

The trade can count on us for Beauties of the best quality every day in the year. We aim never to be without Beauties in the ice-box awaiting the call of the Retailers.

FANCY ASTERS

In many places the aster season is about over; the crop has been practically a failure this year, but the growers of the stock we are offering have seldom had better success. (They have field irrigation.) We still can furnish fancy asters in all colors.

EASTER LILIES

We can supply fine Easter Lilies in large quantity every day in the year. A specially good crop now on.

roses. Bulgarie is in larger supply and sells well. Sunburst is more in evidence and the longer grades will stand as at least as good as any other roses in the market. Anything in yellows cleans up rapidly. Maryland is not so much in evidence as before, but moves along with the other pinks. Mrs. Russell, Milady, Radiance and the other novelties find a popular market.

Gladioli have become less important and the daily shipments show them to be on the decline, both in numbers and in quality. Valley is moving much better with the first few fall weddings and smilax is in demand for both weddings and other decorations. Mums have not arrived in the numbers that were expected. Those that possess quality are quickly disposed of at fairly good prices. Golden Glow is the principal offering. Cosmos has arrived. Not many dahlias are seen; this market does not take to them the way the eastern markets do. Zinnias are abundant, but slow sale. The call for orchids is increasing faster than the supply.

Various Notes.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. has effected a settlement with the estate of John Lenik, who was electrocuted June 5, while working with the soil mixing machine at Plant B of the Morton Grove establishment. The deceased left a widow with three children. August Poehlmann offered to settle with her on the terms of the Illinois Workingmen's Compensation act, which would entitle her to receive half her husband's pay for eight years, but she preferred a cash settlement and offered to take $2,000, which would be considerably less than the compensation act payments would aggregate. This is the first accident that ever has occurred at Morton Grove which made the company in any way liable.

F. F. Benthey joined the forces of Zech & Mann September 15, where the roses of the Benthey establishment at New Castle, Ind., now are sold.

Steve Steberl, who last spring bought out A. C. Rojahn, at River Forest, has six houses filled with chrysanthemums, 15,000 plants in fine shape. He is cutting some of the best Golden Glow that have thus far come into the market.

E. E. Pieser, of Kennicott Bros. Co., writes that he will return to Chicago September 28.

The daily papers have recorded the swindling of Mrs. Anna L. Silverman, who gave $7 cash change when a stranger presented a check for $22 to pay for a funeral design costing $15.

There is no such florist. The party referred to is Mrs. L. Sifferman, who now operates the store at 3401 West Madison street, opened by Hans Rowaldt and Edward Leslie under the name of the Kedzie Florists.

The E. C. Amling Co. says the trade likes Milady much better than Richmond.

Sidney C. Eastman, referee in bankruptcy, has issued the following notice: "To the Creditors of Geo. M. Garland Co., of Chicago, in the County of Cook, and in said district, a bankrupt: Take notice, that on April 21, A. D. 1913, George E. Whitney, the receiver herein, filed his final report, in which he asks for $780 in fees, and I have set the hearing of said report on the 25th day of September, A. D. 1913, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon, at my office, Room 907 Monadnock Block, Chicago, Ill., at which time and place you may appear if you see fit."

The Cook County Florists' Association will hold its monthly meeting at the Tavern tonight, September 18. F. D. Wallace is expected to talk on wind insurance and W. S. McGee on fertilizers. In addition there will be general discussion regarding the association's work and plans for the future.

The store of the E. Wienhoeber Co., on Elm street, is rapidly getting into shape for the autumn season. The old display counter has been torn out and a handsome big icebox installed, which gives the effect of greatly increasing the size of the store. Frank Pasternick, buyer, has turned painter during the slack hours and, with the assistance of the rest of the force, has repainted the display house and greenhouses. Debutante affairs are reported as starting this week, considerably earlier than usual.

The preliminary premium list has been issued for the twenty-second annual exhibition of the Horticultural Society of Chicago, to be held March 24 to 29, 1914. Those interested will receive copies by addressing R. J. Haight, secretary, 536 South Clark street.

The employees of the A. L. Randall Co., with their families and friends, numbering more than 150, enjoyed their annual outing September 14 at Reissig's grove, Riverside. There was dinner, dancing, races and music. The big feature of the day was the baseball game between the cut flower and the supply departments. Five innings were played. That the result was 3 to 1 in favor of the cut flower department employees is said to have been due to the pitching of Eric Johnson. Among the distinguished participants were H. Bauske, John Breakey and Al. Fischer.

patrons know as Stogie, finds time to manage half a dozen outside business ventures. For years he has had a concession at Riverview park, where flowers are given as prizes to the winners in a ball tossing game. Now that the park has closed for the season he has started his park employees in a retail flower store at 3345 West North avenue, operated under the name of the Best Floral Co. The opening was September 13.

Lubliner & Trinz have made a deal for a permanent location on Wabash avenue, but state that the lease has not been accepted as yet and that they therefore are not ready to make an announcement.

The filing of bankruptcy papers against the American Horticultural Co., of Glen View, is reported this week under Business Embarrassments.

Fred Strail, manager of the Williams Flower Shop, returned the early part of this week from Twin Lakes, Mich., where he spent a couple of weeks vacationing.

W. E. Lynch writes A. L. Vaughan, from Hatfield, Mass., that he has just finished marketing a grand crop of tobacco, as well as one of onions grown on the farm of his father-in-law. Farmer Lynch adds that he has lost nothing but some flesh and sends greetings to his old friends in the market.

Mrs. W. E. Horton, of Bassett & Washburn's office force, is again on duty after two weeks' vacation. A trip north via the new S. S. North American was one of the pleasures enjoyed during the fortnight.

George Reinberg, who has been laid up with rheumatism, is much improved, so that he can again get downtown.

John Mangel has been without the services of John Canger for the last week, the latter making a trip to New York city. Mr. Mangel adds that he would not be surprised if there should be a Mrs. Canger before the return trip is accomplished.

As an instance of how anxious some well-to-do people are to get greenhouses, the John C. Moninger Co. tells of a Lake Geneva, Wis., man who accepted an estimate by calling up on the telephone and ordering greenhouse and boiler shipped by express, a carload of material aggregating 35,000 pounds.

Wieter Bros. report having sold out the field-grown carnation plants quicker this season than in any previous year. It is of record that one season they sold field-grown stock up to the day they began offering rooted cuttings for immediate delivery.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Eastern Market.

There is a decided improvement in the cut flower market. Orders are coming in more freely from out of town, while local buyers display an interest not wholly dependent on mortuary orders. There is so much stock in the market that prices rule low, lower on small roses than during August. Asters of quality are in demand. The best now come from New York state. Poor asters are plentiful and an awful nuisance to everybody. Valley has been quite scarce at times. Easter lilies have advanced in price. Cattleya prices bid fair to decline under increased receipts of labiata. Carnations are not yet an important factor. Tuberoses, celosias and anthericums do not sell. Early chrysanthemums are not at their best. Beauties are fine and in moderate demand, while oncidiums are eagerly taken. Pink roses are in strong supply. The shorts go slowly. White roses and Mrs. Taft are in demand. A few good Richmond are coming into town.

The cool weather of the last week has been of great benefit to the dahlias. The stock has improved wonderfully and will continue to do so under favorable conditions. Shipping orders for dahlias are going out to distant points. The flowers are worthy the support they are receiving. The intelligent system of handling now practiced has opened a wide market for the dahlia.

A Remodeled Flower Store.

glory of the store is the showcase. It is forty feet long, covering the west wall. It is of marble, with mahogany doors and drawers. The case is divided into three electrically lighted compartments. It is cooled by a 2-ton ice machine placed in the basement and run by an electric motor. Each compartment can be cooled separately if desired. There are also coils of pipes for cooling the receiving room back of the conservatory. Next to the showcase are two marble telephone booths, with silver mounted fittings and mahogany mounted glass doors. The mahogany ribbon case with glass doors is next to the cashier's desk and the office on the opposite side. The counters, or tables, are of marble; so is the rug-covered floor. The whole effect of white and rich brown is magnificent. The large show window and the conservatory remain unchanged.

gests itself as worthy of attention in the large ranges of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., is Cocos Weddelliana. The place is of world-wide repute as a producer of specimen cocos, of quantity and of quality. Ordinarily cocos are relegated to a side bench or two, of thumb pots, and if the place be large, to a like amount in 3-inch grown for ferneries. At Riverton they occupy a range of greenhouses; that means that table after table is filled with cocos in all sizes, from the little fellow just spreading its first character leaves to the stately specimen typical of beauty and grace. For years the place has been proud of its cocos. They come green, avoiding the yellow pitfalls of summer and the imperfect tips resulting from root-check or from chill. Today there are one-third more cocos on the place than there were a year ago. This is not due to a dull market, for cocos are becoming more and more popular; it is due to increased production.

Kentias have never looked better at Riverton than they do today. The stock is large, complete in all sizes and covers both domestic and imported plants. It is with pride that they say at Dreer's that they can furnish either home-grown or foreign-grown kentias, and it is pretty difficult for anyone who is not an expert to tell one from the other, unless it be in extreme cases. Some idea of the size of the orders that are filled for kentias can be gathered from the fact that two orders were there picked out, each calling for so large a number of plants that it would have been scarcely believed a few years ago, and these plants were of the decorative sizes.

The quantity of Asplenium Nidus-Avis has been increased this season. There are two houses, one of larger and the other of smaller sizes; they present a fine appearance. Cyrtomium Rochfordianum is becoming a popular Christmas fern; its holly-like foliage makes it a favorite in 4-inch pots. Adiantum Farleyense is looking well under glass, while its foil, Adiantum Glory of Mordrecht, is in perfect condition in the frames where it has been growing since July. This seems to settle the question of treatment, for Farleyense would never thrive outdoors in summer. Farleyense is the more graceful, but the Glory fern combines grace with durability.

coming in abundantly; but the offerings are not eagerly sought after. The commission house is well stocked with asters, which seem to be the popular flowers. They are larger and better than had been expected, owing to the rains and the generally favorable weather of late. The cut of gladioli is not so large, and those that arrive are smaller, on shorter spikes and of poor color. The roses are in fine condition and there is less waste. There has been a heavy demand for yellow roses. Sunburst, Taft and Mrs. Aaron Ward are the favorites and sell quickly. American Beauties, too, are good and their color is rich and pleasing. The other varieties of roses have not moved so rapidly in the last few days. There are a few dahlias on the market. Easter lilies are scarce, but plenty of auratum are shipped in daily. Yellow chrysanthemums are scarce articles. The green goods supply is ample. A good supply of wild smilax has been shipped into town for use at the exposition which is being held this week.

Bates, H. J. Head, W. A. Elder, Schuyler Arnold and Cecil Lester.

The exhibit of the Lord & Burnham Co. at the New York state fair attracted a great deal of attention from the general public. The exhibit was laid out attractively, being a greenhouse and service building, 16x25, of the private type. The sides were terraced and the concrete portion was covered with old English ivy. The service building was covered with smilax and wistaria. At the front entrance a broad porch, with steps leading up from both sides, was prettily decorated with dracaenas, etc. A semicircular bed of canas, asters, etc., with a quantity of rock, was built in front of this porch. The side of the house was a mass of pink asters, while the back of the house was similar to the front entrance. The greenhouse benches were filled with potted ferns, kindly lent by E. W. Edwards & Sons, of Syracuse; James Vick's Sons, of this city, and J. W. Meneilly, of Syracuse. George Cramer ably decorated the building, giving it a of the city store of Poehlmann Bros. Co. T. E. Waters says he still will dye ruscus at Morton Grove, where there are facilities for handling larger quantities within a few days' time.

Wendland & Keimel are adding to their equipment, at Elmhurst, a storage shed capable of holding 1,000 tons of coal, and a new office building to be equipped with all the up-to-date appliances.

Harry C. Rowe says that he will remove shortly from 20 East Monroe street to a new location in the loop. Mr. Rowe states that one of the reasons for moving is that a laundry is operated in the basement. While not exposed to public view, the laundry is in many ways a detriment to his business.

The Adams-Robertson Co., on Rush street, will celebrate its second birthday anniversary October 1. Its store is said to be the only one in town without an icebox. The display stock is shown in vases in the open store, while the reserve keeps well in the cool basement without refrigeration.

W. H. Hilton is chairman of the committee of the Business Men's Association of Hyde Park, which will give a harvest home parade on the evening of October 8. Mr. Hilton used a full-page advertisement in the Hyde Park News September 13 to announce the opening of his new flower store at 1509 East Fifty-third street. His confectionery store will be continued at 1461 East Fifty-third street, but no flowers will be handled there.

Fred Lautenschlager reports that Frank Meier, of Niles Center, has ordered a No. 3½ Kroeschell boiler and a complete threaded tube piping system for his new range, and that Arthur T.

NEWPORT, R. I.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Livingston Beeckman gave their employees a dance and supper at Land's End the other night, the floral arrangements being made by John B. Urquhart, head gardener.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Newport Horticultural Society, held September 9, President Andrew S. Meikle announced that the out-of-town judges for the show next week would be Robert Johnston, David McIntosh and James Garthly, while the local judges will be Colin Robertson, Frederick Carter and William Gray. Several special prizes have been received for the fall show.

C. Warburton, of Fall River, Mass., figured in a collision in this city a few days ago, when his big touring car, in turning into Gibbs avenue, struck a small runabout and threw out the occupants. Fortunately, no one was seriously injured.

The Southwestern Market.

The condition of the local market remained practically the same the early part of last week, but the cooler weather in the latter part of the week stimulated things to such an extent that the demand became much better and prices stiffened on the fancy grades. The rains and cool nights also put some tone in the quality of the stock that came in. Consignments have been quite large and the wholesalers say they had no trouble in disposing of the first grade stock. The bulk of the stock, however, was second and third grade. Several large openings and funerals cleaned up the five wholesale markets pretty well September 13 to 15. The bulk of the roses that came in were Killarneys. Some extra fine Sunbursts and Richmonds were noted last week. There were also a number of long, fancy Beauties. Carnations, too, are coming in better, with excellent flowers and longer stems. Asters, gladioli and tuberose stalks continue plentiful. The above, with lilies and valley, comprise the daily supply at present. All kinds of greens had a large call last week.

Club Meeting.

One of the most interesting meetings of the Florists' Club was held September 11, in Odd Fellows' hall. The attendance numbered thirty-five at the opening of the meeting, President Fred H. Weber and all officers being present. The features of the meeting were the installation of the new officers and a paper by Adolph Jaenicke. The committee that had the flower show fund in charge made a report as to why it withdrew its support, which was accepted by the club. Those who had subscribed withdrew their names and the committee was discharged with thanks. Adolph Jaenicke was appointed to represent the club at the St. Louis Pageant committee meetings. nest Strehle, John Moritz, Max Pelletier, John Nyflot and D. Bova reported favorably and the applicants were elected to membership.

The publicity committee, through R. J. Windler, made a lengthy report regarding publicity for the fall and winter season. This brought out a big discussion and it was decided by vote to increase this committee of three to twenty-five, the chair naming those who had just been released from further service on the flower show committee. This committee is to raise a fund of $2,000 to be used for publicity.

The installation of officers followed. The chair called on the trustees for this work, with ex-President John Cannon as the installing officer, who introduced Wallace J. Pilcher as president; Adolph Jaenicke, vice-president; J. J. Beneke, secretary; W. C. Smith, treasurer, and Frank Windler, trustee. Ex-President Weber, in turning the gavel over to the new president, thanked the members for their support during the last year and hoped the same would be extended to his successor.

The secretary reported that the club now has a membership of 115 and the

The opening of the Famous Barr department store, September 15, made a busy day for the local florists, keeping many of them working late into Sunday night to be ready for early Monday morning delivery. The wholesalers, too, cleaned up a lot of surplus stock.

The Mullanphy Floral Co. will open a downtown branch, early in October, at the southwest corner of Seventh and Locust streets. The new Famous Barr department store is just across the way, which makes the location a most excellent one.

John Young, son of W. C. Young, of the C. Young & Sons Co., surprised his friends last week when he and Miss Hazel Lanigan were quietly married.
The young couple received many congratulations.

Otto Bruenig, of H. G. Berning's, spent a few days in Chicago last week looking over the wholesale market.

The members of the Retail Florists'
Association were the guests of Theo.
Miller, September 15, when they held a meeting at his store, 5886 Delmar boulevard. The attendance was quite large.

Last week put an end to the early closing of the wholesale houses. Starting September 15, they will keep open until six o'clock, including Saturdays.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

If one were to believe all he reads in the San Francisco dailies about the "violet trust" he would be apt to form some highly erroneous opinions as to florists and the florists' business.

Oakland, Cal.—A 10-pound boy arrived at the home of F. R. Groves September 2.

Los Angeles, Cal.—H. R. Richards is the proud father of a daughter, born September 9.

Santa Monica, Cal.—Chas. S. Warren, the secretary of the California Geranium Co., in addition to his work with the company, is correspondent for two Los Angeles newspapers.

Freewater, Ore.—The judges at the third annual aster and dahlia show were J. Waite, of Walla Walla, Wash., George Milton, of Milton, Ore., and W. B. Brooke, of Freewater.

Seattle, Wash.—L. O. Beery, proprietor of the Evergreen Nursery, with sales yard at First avenue and Stewart street, arrived in New York this week on the S. S. Kroonland, en route home from his annual trip to Holland and Belgium. He purchased about five carloads of bulbs and nursery stock while abroad. He says last season was the best yet and that he expects a steady growth in business.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

A scarcity of flowers of the better kind has materialized during the last week, but there is still an abundance of the cheaper grades. Chrysanthemums are now plentiful; Golden Glow and October Frost are especially good. Never, perhaps, has the value of zinnias been so plainly shown as during the recent hot weather, when they kept their color and freshness better than any other flowers. They are especially well adapted for window decoration. Valley has been extremely scarce. Lilium rubrum has been difficult to obtain at times; at other times it has been plentiful. Orchids are decidedly scarce, especially phalaenopsis. There have been several large wedding decorations that used up quantities of stock, and altogether there is a good tone to business for the time of year.

Arboricultural Convention.

The Arboricultural Association of Southern California held its seventh convention in the Board of Trade rooms at Pasadena, September 5 and 6. The attendance on both days was good, but especially on the first day, when the rooms were crowded. On Saturday, the second day, some of the delegates had to leave for home. Several excellent papers were read, and the discussions provoked by their reading were of great interest. Ernest Beaunton, president of the association, proved himself, as usual, an excellent chairman, holding the meetings well in hand, and his papers and remarks in the discussions were listened to with great interest.

In the afternoon of the second day the visitors were taken in automobiles through the principal streets of Pasadena and from there to the Huntington estate, a trip much enjoyed by all. Professor J. W. Cregg, of the University of Southern California, gave the association a most pressing invitation to visit Berkeley in 1919 and his hearty method of invitation evoked much applause. The place chosen for the spring meeting in 1919 is Alhambra, a rising and beautiful little town in the San Gabriel valley.

Various Notes.

A. Zirkman, representing the M. Rice Co., has been calling on the trade here.

John Morley, park superintendent at San Diego, was here last week. Mr. Morley read a paper on "Trees Suitable for Southern California Parks" at the Pasadena meeting of the Arboricultural Association, and his remarks were received with every sign of approval.

Considerable improvements have been carried out at the Roserie Flower Shop, on Third street, making the store appear much larger and much lighter.

The ice-box has been placed near the window and is visible from the street. Business keeps up splendidly and Messrs. Miller and Raymond are both back from their vacations.

The Freeman-Lewis Co. says that the season has been a remarkably good one and Mr. Lewis is among the last to take his vacation. He is looking out for the slowest boat that goes to San Francisco and other northern points and says an old "wind jammer" will suit him finely for a long, restful trip. Mr. Freeman has returned from Grand Canyon.

The entrance to the Los Angeles Flower Market has been considerably

A. E. Buhot, manager for the C. C. Navlet Co., San Jose, has been making a trip to southern points, in company with Mrs. Buhot. When last seen they were headed for the ball game, both Mr. and Mrs. Buhot being enthusiastic ball fans.

Frank Lichtenberg continues well satisfied with his new location on Sixth street and says transient trade keeps up well.

T. F. M. Williamson keeps up a fine show at Washington and Figueroa streets and says business is coming his way.

Wallace Boyd is still absent from his place at the O. C. Saakes store, owing to the injury to his ankle in the "Angel's Flight" accident.

Tom Wright returned September 8 from his convention trip.

H. Turner, of Dieterich & Turner, took a number of his staff to the Corona road races on admission day and all report a fine time.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

The Market.

Trade generally shows a slight improvement, which is becoming more noticeable daily. Everyone in this locality is hoping that the worst is now over and that we may have the usual fall business without any further delay. The present summer's quiet is probably the longest on record, and the retailers have made but little money the last three months. With the growers things have been slightly better, but the prices for almost everything have been low, with only a moderate demand. Even at the present writing it is hardly worth while giving quotations. The daily demand seems to regulate everything and but little difference is made between fancy and ordinary stock. Asters continue to hold sway, although they are not quite so plentiful as they have been. The best quality sells at from $1 to $1.50 per bunch of ten dozen flowers. Mums are not yet at their best, although they are daily becoming more in evidence. Japanese and other lilies are cheaper than they were one month ago, but they will not last much longer.

Valley is only in fair supply and moves well. Violets are poor, owing to the dry weather. Amaryllis is scarcer. Dahlias are good and sell at the same prices that they have been at for the last month. Gladioli are almost gone. Roses, except the whites and pinks, are in good demand, with only a fair supply being brought into town. Carnations are good and cheap. Orchids are still almost entirely off crop. Other lines of stock remain as they have been for the last few weeks.

Various Notes.

The big celebration for the Native Sons in Oakland during last week used up large quantities of the cheaper grades of flowers and most of the excess of green decorative material.

Frank Shibley, of the Shibley-Mann Co., has been taking a rest in the country for the last two weeks.

Dr. Adolph Engler, of Berlin, and

MONTANA FLORISTS TO MEET.

According to the announcement of Secretary E. P. Calmettes, the Montana Florists' Association will hold a meeting about September 25 at Helena. This will be during the week of the fair at Helena, when many florists of the state will stage exhibits. The professional displays this year promise to exceed those of previous years, as better opportunities are offered for placing exhibits and the premiums have been increased, the total awards amounting to $300. The keenest competition is expected for the best display of decorative plants, cut and potted, and ferns and palms, to cover at least 150 square feet, for which prizes of $50, $30 and $20 are offered. The exhibits are to be in place Wednesday morning, September 24.

MUST TOE THE MARK.

The United States government is holding the manufacturers of insecticides to a strict accountability under the law and it is dangerous for one of them to let any laxity creep into his processes; any little lot that fails to make good the description on the label is likely to get the manufacturer into court. The result no doubt has been a decided improvement in the quality of insecticides in general. No manufacturer who hoped to build a large or permanent business would knowingly misbrand his product, even without the restraint of law, but with it lax methods can no longer be tolerated; they lead to trouble.

The government publishes in most bald language the result of each prosecution instituted under the law. Not often do these concern the maker of an insecticide used in the greenhouse trade, but occasionally the maker of a florists' insecticide gets caught in the predicament shown in the following clipping from a government document issued September 10.

"The United States Department of Agriculture has just issued notices of judgment obtained under the insecticide act. * * * The third case was against the Kentucky Tobacco Product Co., Louisville, Ky., for the alleged shipment and delivery for shipment of a quantity of an insecticide designated Nico-Fume Liquid from the state of Kentucky to the state of California. The product was labeled 'Nico-Fume Liquid. A Nicotine Solution Consisting of Free Nicotine Blended With Water. Active Ingredients, Nicotine 40 per cent, Inert Ingredients, 60 per cent. 1/4 Pint 50 cents. Original Package guaranteed to weigh not less than 4 1/4 oz. net, and to contain not less than 743 grains of Nicotine.'

"Analysis of this product showed that it contained a much less percentage of nicotine than forty per cent. Adulteration of the article was charged in that it fell below the professed standard of percentage of nicotine under which it was sold, because it contained less than forty per cent of nicotine as stated. Misbranding was charged in that the label was false and misleading for the same reason, and because the label did not name and state plainly and correctly the percentage amounts of each and every inert ingredient, nor, in lieu thereof, the label did not state plainly the correct percentage amount of the ingredient (nicotine) having insecticidal properties and the correct total percentage of inert ingredients present. The defendant entered a plea of guilty to the information, and the court imposed a fine of $25 and costs."

PROPAGATION OF MOONVINES.

We should like to know what is the right temperature for sand used in rooting moonvines. Wherein does the treatment of moonvine cuttings differ from that of carnation cuttings? Should there be a whole leaf above the sand, or can half of the leaf or more be cut off? Will the tender tips root? We want to root several thousand this fall and expect to sell them through The Review. Will carnations root as easily after they have one or two light frosts as before? A. G.

The moonflower, Ipomoea Bona-nox, also called I. grandiflora, is best propagated from short pieces of well matured wood. Soft growths are not suitable. A brisk bottom heat of 80 to 85 degrees should be maintained, if possible. It is better to cut away half or more of the leaves. Moonvines can also be increased from layers, root divisions or seed. It is necessary to cut a part of the covering from each seed, to insure a good germination.

Carnation cuttings from outdoor plants should not be affected by one or two light frosts. Cuttings from under glass, however, will root more satisfactorily, as a rule. C. W. A.

I WOULD gladly continue my ad, but orders from it are coming so fast I fear I shall have to return some money, and you know that is bad business.—John G. Witt, Chicago, Ill.

It Pays

To Pacific Coast Florists:

What stock have you for sale to the trade? Is it moving as it should? No?

Then tell the trade about it by using the Pacific Coast Pages of The Review.

Pacific Coast advertisers almost invariably report good results. Like this:

Say! That ad's a humdinger for getting the business.—Everett Floral Co., Everett, Wash.

I sold all the Mum cuttings advertised, and you will not hear from me again until I can get some more stock ready. Shall root 100,000 Carnation cuttings for next season, as I know The Review will sell them for me.—Frank Wilhelm, Los Angeles, Cal.

Please cut out of our advertisement in The Review the cyclamen seedlings. We sold all our surplus cyclamen seedlings as a direct result of our advertisement in your paper.—Spokane Greenhouses (Inc.), Spokane, Wash.

We want to say that our last advertisement in The Review brought us orders from both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts. We had, strangely enough, on following days, orders from Salem, Ore., and from Salem, Mass.—State Floral Co., North Yakima, Wash.

We are well pleased with the results obtained by advertising in the Pacific Coast Department of The Review. We sold out clean and refused many orders. The Review surely gives results.—Van Slyke & Seamons, Tacoma, Wash.

A Good Big Slicing Door

When your fire crusts over and you want to slice it, you want a slicing door opening big enough to slice it the way you want to slice it. The Burnham has just that kind of a slicing door opening.

ESTERDAY morning there was frost on our Irvington factory roof.

It's a way that old Jack Frost has of warning us what he is going to do later on.

When you come to think of it, it's rather decent of him to sort of nudge some of us in the ribs that way and let us know that there's absolutely no time for fooling around any longer about heating matters.

Fortunately we have a goodly stock of boilers that have all been once tested ready for the final set-up test—and quick shipment.

You know what we said a week or so ago about not being able to "hammer a nail with a sponge no matter how hard you soak it?"

You also remember the moral was: If you want to economically heat your greenhouse, buy a boiler made especially for greenhouse heating.

Drive your nails with a hammer. And by the same token, heat your greenhouse with a greenhouse boiler—not a residence boiler that just plain common sense makes plain, can't be economical for a greenhouse.

A Clean-out Door for Each Flue

Which means you can clean any Burnham flue at any time with any fire. Which also means you will clean them oftener. Which in turn means more heat from less coal.

Chimney Scoots Prevented

The flames in a Burnham don't rush from front to rear of boiler, as shown by this chalk mark, leaving front sections heated less than rear ones. The Burnham flames go up the sides between each section, each section being equally heated.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, C. C. Massie, Minneapolis; Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

FRENCH bulbs have cleaned up with celerity; no quantities are left on hand now that advance orders have been filled.

THE seed stores that handle bulbs in a wholesale way are exceedingly busy at present. Retail sales of bulbs have hardly begun as yet.

A FIRE which destroyed a good sized part of the town included in its ravages the Gype wholesale seed store, at Archbold, O., which contained at the time several thousand dollars' worth of clover seed.

C. E. KENDEL, secretary of the American Seed Trade Association, last week mailed to members the handsomely printed volume containing the report of the Cleveland convention and other association matter.

THE drought in the corn belt was broken last week and the rains, which were fairly general in the states between the Mississippi and the mountains, were followed by a drop to seasonable temperatures. Conditions and, especially, prospects were thereby much improved.

THE idea of a world's seed conference at San Francisco during the Panama-Pacific Exposition, holding it under the auspices of the American Seed Trade Association, is attracting considerable attention in Europe. The indications are that there will be a fair attendance.

UNLESS frequent reference is made to it, the disclaimer gets shoved gradually into the background. President Page, in his address at the last seed trade convention, warned against this and anyone who notes seedsmen's stationery will recognize that he was right in urging that the non-warranty be kept more in evidence.

THE catalogue seed houses are fairly well satisfied with the present postal arrangements; in nearly every case in which a record has been compiled, the postage under the flat rate is less on the day's business than it would have been had the zone rates applied and the discontinuance of the use of special stamps for parcels is looked upon as giving the seed trade about all that it can ask so long as the present zone system is used for other merchandise.

BULBS IN HOLLAND.

"Bulb shipments are now in full swing," wrote a correspondent in Holland at the end of August, "and the growers have cleared all the salable stocks at extremely satisfactory prices, owing to the short crop. The crop of first size hyacinths especially is short, and the brisk demand for these has already caused a sharp rise in the market. Blue hyacinths of all kinds are away up and some sorts have nearly doubled in price.

"Of tulips, both the early singles and doubles have gone up, and the yellow varieties especially are now getting scarce. Of many sorts even the third size bulbs have been cleared, and many of the tulips that were sold last year at prices that did not cover the cost of production have now already reached a fair level.

"Narcissi of all kinds have sold well, and such sorts as Golden Spur and Double Von Sion are being sold at high prices for extra quality bulbs. Crocuses are clearing off, notwithstanding that prices are quite up to last year's standard and that the crop has been a good one.

"Within a few days the bulk of bulbs will have left this country, and not many are likely to be left here for possible additional orders."

GOVERNMENT GIVES WARNING.

In its weekly bulletin to crop correspondents the U. S. Department of Agriculture gives warning in the matter of an adulterant for white and alsike clover seed which the department says is being imported. The notice is as follows:

"There is being offered to the seed trade in the United States from European sources a mixture of seeds under the names of Trifolium angulatum and Trifolium parviflorum, which is similar in color and general appearance to a mixture of alsike and white clover seed.

"The seeds are slightly smaller than those of alsike or white clover, but can be easily distinguished under a magnifying glass by their rough surface as contrasted with the smooth surface of alsike and white clover seed.

"This mixture has no recognized commercial value in this country and will doubtless either be sold as white and alsike clover seed or used as an adulterant of these seeds.

"Some of this seed has been imported at a price approximately one-half that of alsike and one-fourth that of white clover seed and an attempt has been made to sell it as a mixture of white and alsike clover.

"All purchasers of mixtures of white and alsike clover seed should examine them carefully to see that they are free from this seed."

DUTCH BULBS.

Last week showed a decline in the arrivals of Dutch bulbs. The steamer which arrived in New York September 7 brought but one large consignment. The boat reaching New York the following day brought a large quantity,

LILY BULBS

Horseshoe Brand lily bulbs are produced and distributed on a broad principle that is very easy to understand.

The efficiency of every bulb depends upon its power to produce flowers under varying and often trying conditions.

The moment a lily bulb loses its strength it becomes useless. This means not alone the loss of a bulb, but the loss in expense of production and the cost of replacement.

The risk attached to lily bulbs originates from nature and is beyond the control of man, so the best you can do is to minimize it by securing bulbs which will give the best average in flowering results.

A lily bulb of doubtful origin, cheap in price and unknown in quality, is not only a bad investment in itself, but it cripples results of far more value than the cost of several bulbs.

Horseshoe Brand Giganteum have proved their average reliability ever since they have been marketed. Nothing is left undone that man can do to improve them.

An excellent way to get an idea of their value as compared with other brands is to witness the deep satisfaction of those who use them here and abroad -- and especially of the largest growers, who pay strict attention to results.

Eighty-five per cent of the large growers use Horseshoe Brand lily bulbs, and most large growers use them entirely. There's a reason.

PROGRESS AND PROSPECT.

[A business summary by L. B. McCausland, of Wichita, Kan., prefacing a committee report presented at the recent seed trade convention.]

It is only natural that firms who occupy what are termed commanding positions in the seed business, and who have secured these positions by hard work, should safeguard themselves and use the information obtained from their many years of experience to further their own business. Perhaps within a few more years they will be sufficiently secure against competition, and will then be glad to give freely of the result of their experience, so that the entire seed trade may be benefited to some extent.

Business conditions have been changing rapidly during the past five years, and it is safe to say the changes of the next five years will show more advancement toward better feeling and fuller cooperation between those firms engaged in the same line of work.

S. & W. Co.'s Sunbeams. A splendid novelty in Christmas-flowering Sweet Peas. Flowers are very open and of a clear primrose-yellow. Everyone should try some of this variety this season30	.85	1.50	2.50
Snowbird. Black-seeded early white, Mrs. Dolansky. Early-flowering pure pink, or Prima Donna.....	.20	.50	.75	1.50

Our SWEET PEAS are all grown by a specialist, and for quality cannot be better at any price.

MIGNONETTE

S. & W. Co.'s Triumph. This Mignonette is one of the choicest varieties for winter forcing. In type similar to Allen's Defiance, except that spikes are more compact and the individual florets are much larger in size. Seed of this grand variety is grown in our greenhouses and is saved from the best spikes. Plants grow from 2 to 3 feet high, producing flower-spikes up to 20 inches long.

Pkt. (about 1000 seeds), 50c; $\frac{1}{4}$ oz., 75c; oz., \$1.00.

divulge the information we have compiled."

The new condition is not restricted to any particular city or community, but a firm engaged in business in Chicago may safely ask a firm in the same business located in Wichita or Fort Worth for information, and the Chicago firm may place absolute dependence in the replies received.

It is not the purpose of your committee to start something that will bring on an argument which will consume time and accomplish nothing. Believe us, if you will, when we suggest to you the idea of full coöperation between firms that sell seeds in a given territory this action will accomplish much for every firm concerned and will open the way for many economies in doing business.

Coöperation will show plenty of opportunity for the selling of seeds at fair prices, prices which will show a living profit at the end of the year. Then, too, if one firm piles up a surplus of some kind of seed, by reason of the style changing in that locality, some other firm that has demand for that kind of seed will gladly help the other fellow out.

It seems to your committee that the seed business is developing as rapidly as any other line of business effort, and inquiry of other lines brings out the fact that they are trying to strengthen their position by coöperation between the different firms engaged in that line of work.

The men engaged in the seed business measure well in capacity, character, courage, ability and common sense with

The Market.

Business is down to almost nothing; only an occasional funeral relieves the monotony. Good roses are still scarce. There are some good carnations, but no demand. Asters are plentiful and can be bought at the buyer's own price.

Various Notes.

Miss M. Jennings has returned from Florida and has taken her old position as bookkeeper for the Denver Wholesale Florists' Co.

Geo. H. Cooper is serving his country this week by doing jury duty.

W. H. Grimes made a flying trip to Loveland to take in a wild west show.

Wm. E. Keith died September 8 of tuberculosis. Mr. Keith was employed by the Park Floral Co. as a grower for several years.

John Buckman has traded the Washington Park Greenhouses to Geo. Brenkert for Mr. Brenkert's farm. Mr. Brenkert says he is no farmer.

Denver is to have a 5, 10 and 15-cent store that is putting in a flower department. We will look with pleasure to see some of their 15-cent funeral designs.

Mrs. E. S. Kennedy, wife of E. S. Kennedy, of the Alpha Floral Co., was operated on for a tumor. Mrs. Kennedy has the best wishes of the trade for a speedy recovery.

Robert Karlstrom, with the W. A. Manda Co., South Orange, N. J., called on the local trade last week. L.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

A NURSERY has been established at Nona, Tex., by the Griffing Bros. Co., which operates nurseries at Jacksonville and Macclenny, Fla.

ARKANSAS has passed a law providing for inspection of nurseries and incoming stock from foreign companies. Provision is also made in the law against misrepresentation of stock in any way.

A PETITION in bankruptcy was filed September 13 against the American Horticultural Co., Glen View, Ill. Details will be found under Business Embarrassments on another page of this issue.

ON his way home from the convention at Mont Eagle, Tenn., E. I. Tinga, of the Holland Nurseries, at Castle Hayne, N. C., visited nurseries in Tennessee, Alabama and western North Carolina.

J. R. DUNCAN, president of the Duncan-Hesseltine Fruit & Nursery Co., at Peru, Neb., has been elected secretary of the state board of horticulture of Nebraska. His company's nurseries cover about 135 acres of land.

THE Graham Nursery Co., which has a plant of about 100 acres at Mechanicsville, Ia., does a retail business principally, delivering directly through its own agents. It has a large stock this fall not only of fruit trees but also of evergreens and shrubs.

H. R. MOSNOT, formerly of Belle Plaine, Ia., has cleared twenty of his eighty acres of land near Tampa, Fla., and set out 50,000 trees. In a short time 60,000 more will be set out. In those planted are included a number of novelties from California, which are doing well. The nursery is called the Lake Hamilton Nursery.

FIRE caused by a spark from a passing locomotive destroyed the plant of the Spaulding Nursery & Orchard Co., at Springfield, Ill., September 9. The entire building and the tools and supplies in it were completely destroyed, making a loss of over $1,500, partly covered by insurance. There was no stock in the building at the time.

A BRANCH of the Rochester Nursery Co., of Rochester, N. Y., has been established in Litchfield, Ill. About eight acres have been leased for six years, with the privilege of buying at the end of that time. Le Roy Sims and his brother, of Hillsboro and East St. Louis, respectively, whose father has been a salesman for the Rochester firm, have charge of the plant, which will not only handle the products of the main establishment but grow plants and trees as well. September 15 was the date of the opening of business.

MISSISSIPPI ANNUAL MEETING.

Nurserymen Discuss the Laws.

The legal situation was the leading topic of interest at the third annual meeting of the Mississippi Nurserymen's Association, which was held at Agricultural College, Miss., August 27 and 28. The address of President J. R.

Woodman was chiefly an account of his efforts to obtain an appropriation from the state legislature for nursery and orchard inspection. The meeting on the morning of the second day was entirely devoted to the discussion of the laws of the other states on the subject and of the needs of Mississippi along this line. A number of members thought that $40,000 was not at all too much to be asked of the legislature for this work, but the chance of getting this amount is but slight. Every member was urged to take the matter up directly with his representative and senator, and S. W. Crowell was unanimously requested to be a committee of one to take the matter personally before Governor Brewer. After much discussion a resolution was passed unanimously, asking the legislature to appropriate the sum of $5,000 for the next biennial period.

Fee for Outside Nurserymen.

At the same time a motion by Theodore Bechtel was unanimously passed, providing "that the entomologist be requested to promulgate a regulation requiring outside nurseries to pay a fee of $5 to sell or ship nursery stock into the state of Mississippi." The fact that certain nurseries are publishing the statement that they are recommended by the Mississippi Agricultural and Mechanical College was brought up and a resolution passed to the effect that the nurserymen's association disapproved of such a method of discrimination.

In the business session of the meeting the committee that was appointed last year at Gulfport to draft a constitution made its report. After a discussion the constitution presented was passed with a few slight changes.

Officers Elected.

In the election of officers the following were chosen to serve for the coming year:

President—Theodore Bechtel, Ocean Springs.

Vice-president—S. W. Crowell, Rose-acres.

Secretary-treasurer—R. W. Harned, Agricultural College; reelected.

Member of the executive committee—J. E. Lewis, Eupora.

The retiring president, J. R. Woodham, is ex-officio a member of the executive committee.

The Program.

The discussion of the action to be taken in regard to the laws, legislative appropriations, inspection and the like occupied the greater part of the time of the meeting. Besides the president's address, which was largely on the above subjects also, an interesting and instructive paper on "The Propagation of Nursery Stock" was read by James Brodie, of Biloxi. Two other papers were presented, also of great interest, one on "Pecans," a subject of much discussion among southern Bloomington Firm in Court.

In response to a petition filed by the McLean County Bank September 10, John Y. Chisholm was appointed to act as receiver for the Phoenix Nursery Co., Bloomington, Ill. He is now in charge of the company's affairs, both at the store in Bloomington and at the plant at Normal, and is administering the business in hopes of paying a dividend on the claims at an early date. The liabilities of the company are from $60,000 to $65,000, of which $35,000 is held by the McLean County, First National and People's banks of Bloomington and the remainder divided among a large number of small creditors. The assets of the firm are not easily fixed. There are sixty-five acres of land, valued at from $650 to $800 per acre. The value of the property aside from the real estate is estimated at $35,000 by some, although the company's figure is a great deal higher. W. E. Rossney, president of the concern, estimates the total assets at $175,000.

Banks' Accounts Secured.

A few months ago, it is said, a bond issue was made to cover the amount of indebtedness to the three local banks, and they are in this way secured. The receiver, however, believes there will be sufficient assets to satisfy both secured and unsecured creditors. Two suits against the firm were noted in last week's issue of The Review, those of Henry Theze and Joseph Mahassek for $1,035.90 and of F. Rynveld for $436.57. In addition to these a suit was filed by Mary B. Schuster for $1,200 alleged due her on ten shares of capital stock. Several levies have also been executed by the sheriff for small claims.

History of the Company.

The history of the Phoenix Nursery Co. dates back to 1852, when Franklin K. Phoenix, from Wisconsin, purchased the nursery of Robert Fell. In 1858 the nursery covered eighty acres; ten years later it had grown to 600 acres, but in the hard times of 1877 the firm failed. John S. Tuttle and Alonzo Follett purchased the Phoenix Nursery in 1877 and sold out to the Bloomington Nursery Co., a stock company, six years later. Two years afterward Sidney Tuttle and W. E. Rossney bought the nursery. In 1887 the Phoenix Nursery Co. was incorporated, with W. E. Rossney, president; Sidney Tuttle, vice-president, and George J. Foster, secretary. Gradually Mr. Rossney has acquired the stock of the other two and now is owner of the larger part of the company's stock.

CALIFORNIANS PLAN MEETING.

Plans are being made for the entertainment of the members of the California Association of Nurserymen, which holds its third annual meeting at Fresno, October 16 to 18. One of the features of the meeting is to be an exhibit of nursery stock of all kinds from all over the state. That staged last year at the convention at Oakland was a conspicuous success. A ladies' night has also been suggested, when topics of interest to them as well as to the men will be taken up.

The arrangements which are now being made by the officers of the organization provide for addresses on questions of vital interest to the nurserymen from all sections of the state. Among those who are expected to appear before the convention are Luther Burbank, Prof. E. J. Wickson and Dr. Thos. H. Hunt, of the University of California, and A. J. Cook, state horticultural commissioner. The president of the association is Frank H. Wilson, of Fresno, and the secretary-treasurer H. W. Kruckeberg, of Los Angeles.

The Best That The Future Has To Offer

IT IS our custom to handle only varieties we believe to be worthy of a place in the best commercial establishments. The new Roses we have offered in past seasons have made a reputation for themselves and the character of stock we have sent out has made an enviable reputation for our firm. ¶ We offer Killarney Brilliant in the belief that it is the coming standard of perfection. We have arranged with the originators for eyes for grafting purposes. We can supply any quantity you may require.

Killarney Brilliant

A sport from Killarney, grown in the open ground in England. Killarney was introduced in 1898, and since then there have been so many sports that Killarney has developed into a type rather than a variety. Messrs. Alexander Dickson & Sons, the original introducers, are to be congratulated, sixteen years after the advent of Killarney, in giving us now this distinct novelty which is undoubtedly the best of all varieties of this type.

Killarney Brilliant has the same habit of growth and the same freedom of bloom as its parent, while the flower is twice as large, having 25 to 40 full-sized petals. It will be as useful for Summer blooming as for Winter forcing. The color is a very brilliant pink and varies like Killarney; in bright weather it is almost crimson, and in dull weather, when Killarney is so pale, it is as bright as Killarney at its best. The sale of Killarney Brilliant a year before its introduction has been larger than that of any other Rose ever sent out in this country.

Grafted Plants, 75c each; $7.50 per dozen; $35.00 per 100; $300.00 per 1000.

New Carnation Gloria

(H. W. Field and A. N. Pierson, Inc.)

In offering this new Carnation to the trade, we offer what we believe to be a paying commercial variety; strong in growth, making a quantity of flowering shoots rather than wonderful length of individual stems. In color, the brightest pink we have ever seen in a carnation, and a color that will sell, which, combined with good calyx, fair-sized bloom and great production, makes this an attractive proposition to a man who knows Carnations.

Rooted Cuttings for December, $12.00 per 100, $100.00 per 1000.

Enchantress Supreme

As the best of the Enchantress family it needs no description. An improvement in color, in form of flower on a race of Carnations that have stood the test of time. We have a large stock.

Rooted Cuttings for December and later, $6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000.

GLEN COVE, N. Y.

The monthly meeting of the Nassau County Horticultural Society was held at Pembroke hall, September 10, with a large attendance. President Brown occupied the chair. H. Powell was elected to active membership and two applications were received. A letter was read from the Pino-Lyptol Chemical Co., New York, offering a special prize for the fall show.

Fruit and vegetables were the chief exhibits of the evening and the decisions of the judges were as follows: First prize to G. Ashworth for best melon; first to H. Boettcher for six apples; first to F. Petroccia for corn; honorable mention to H. Jones for melons; thanks of society to J. Robinson for apples.

The schedules for the dahlia show, which is to be held October 8, were distributed among those present. The prizes are good and a successful exhibition is expected. J. M.

Sherman, Tex.—The cooler weather has been of much benefit to the stock in the greenhouses of the Texas Nursery Co., where A. F. Koehle is florist. The poinsettias and chrysanthemums look especially well and prospects for winter business are excellent.

Fort Wayne, Ind.—Miss R. A. Doswell, who has been successfully conducting a retail store the last season, and G. W. Doswell & Son, who have been operating the greenhouses independently, have combined, and both places will be run under the firm name of the Doswell Floral Co., of which G. W. Doswell is president and Miss Doswell secretary-treasurer.

Palms, Ferns and Decorative Plants

SEPTEMBER SOWING

BY SOWING seed of Silver Pink Snapdragon during September, you can have a continuous supply of blossoms from Easter until July. Pause a moment and figure what this means. There is no other plant that can be depended upon to do half so much business nor yield half so much profit. See recent ads to find what our patrons say. A big grower who had one pkt. of seed last year has just reordered seven pkts. This is the kind of evidence that counts.

Silver Pink is easy to grow, and our free directions give the necessary rules. Our prices are low and, whether you use seeds or plants, you can have a bed at very small cost. Price of seed, over 500 to the pkt., $1.00; 3 pkts., $2.50; 7 pkts., $5.00—by return mail.

PLANTS

We have the finest plants that we have grown—about 25,000 of them, ready for shipment in October. They will be ready for the bench or potting on without further topping. Order early, even if you are not ready to bench. By getting them when ready, you will save on the price and express. If your bench is not ready, you can hold them in 3-inch pots. Figure your needs and let your order come. The price is only $4.00 per 100, $35.00 per 1000, by express.

Cash, please.

CLEVELAND, O.

The Market.

With cooler weather last week, the market is toning up. A few early white and yellow mums have appeared in the Euclid avenue windows and are quickly picked up. Asters are plentiful, the better grades bringing good prices. Dahlias are beginning to be noticeable. Roses are improving in quality, Sunburst, Killarney and Maryland being extra fine for this season of the year. There are, however, plenty of cheap roses. Carnations, while short of stem, are good in size and color. Lilies, valley and green goods are equal to the demand.

Various Notes.

The florists' industry in Cleveland was represented September 17 in the industrial parade which marked the end of the Perry Centennial celebration. Two large floats, one showing the growing end of the business and the other the finished product or artistic use of flowers, were entered by the local florists. A fund of $350 was subscribed for this purpose.

The Cleveland Florists' Exchange has added to the store force to handle the coming fall trade.

The Cleveland Cut Flower Co. is the first to show early mums. October Frost and Monrovia are the varieties.

F. A. F.

Erie, Pa.—Miles R. Miller has opened a store at 924 Peach street, opposite the new Lawrence hotel and in the heart of the theater district. Mr. Miller's seventeen years' experience in the trade should guarantee success in such a location.

Jacksonville, Ill.—But one rain in the last ninety days is the record here. Outside stock is almost smaller than it was when planted. Joseph Heintz & Sons are hauling 5,000 gallons of water at a cost of $16 a day, and as a result the stock in their houses is looking fine.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.

The professional exhibits at the state fair here last week were of a high class. Charles H. Vick, of Rochester, who is superintendent of the flower exhibits, was greatly pleased with the displays staged. In designs the florists of Rochester and Syracuse were the leaders. The entries for a standing cross, four feet high, were extremely good; Jacob Thomann & Sons, of Rochester, took first place, and E. W. Edwards & Son and Chester Harris, both of Syracuse, captured second and third places, respectively. E. H. Wilson, of Rochester, entered an unusually fine cross, which was unfortunately above the required height. For the best vase of fifty flowers, Chester Harris won first prize; no second prize was awarded.

The best collections of stove and greenhouse plants, effectively arranged to cover 150 square feet of space, were staged by Syracuse florists, E. W. Edwards & Son taking first prize and Hugh Meneilly second. The prizes for the four best pandanus were given to the same two exhibitors in a reverse order, Hugh Meneilly taking first and E. W. Edwards & Son second. Good designs were shown for a wreath of flowers on an easel; in this class Jacob Thomann & Sons were first, and Chester Harris and E. W. Edwards & Son second and third respectively. F. R. Pierson, of Tarrytown, showed the best exhibit of twelve distinct ferns; Hugh Meneilly and Howard Meneilly took second and third places in this class. F. R. Pierson also took first place for six distinct ferns, and E. W. Edwards & Son won second and third prizes.

The Julius Roehrs Co. sent a carload of tropical and other exotic plants, dwarf evergreen and bay trees, which formed a splendid display, but were not in competition. A number of other good displays for exhibition only were sent by Lord & Burnham Co., H. A. Dreer, James Vick's Sons, Arthur Cowee, W. F. Kasting, E. A. Stillman and A. N. Pierson, Inc.

New Bedford, Mass.—William Livezey has sold the establishment which he conducted on McCabe street for the last eight years. He left September 10 with his brother James for San Diego, Cal.

Beaver Dam, Wis.—Boomer Bros. have completed their new range of three houses, each 25 x 80 feet, and are moving in their stock. They finished benching their mums Saturday, and are now at work with the carnations. Business has been good here this summer.

PANSIES.

PANSY PARK PERFECTION is the most thoroughbred strain of giant show and fancy pansies, the flowers of largest size and most perfect form. I have made growing of pansy seeds and plants a specialty for 40 years, and it is the result of many years of breeding and selection. It also contains every variety introduced by foreign growers up to date. One of many reports: "The pansy plants all look like good, healthy, stocky plants, and we feel will come up to all expectations." Henry J. Hass & Son, Newport, R. I. An immense stock of fine field-grown plants from seed sown thinly, broadcast, so that each plant has plenty of room to grow stocky and strong, with extra good roots. Over 75 varieties mixed, the reds, bronzes and best fancy sorts in large proportion, 1000, $3.00; 500, $1.75; 5000, $14.00; 10,000, $27.00. Delivery, by express in good condition guaranteed. "PEONIES FOR PLEASURE."

This book of "Peonies for Pleasure" gives information on peony history, soil and plants to use, how and when to plant, fertilizers and how to apply, and describes the most extensive planting of really valuable peonies ever gathered together under the sun; describes old and new as well as the plebeian and aristocrat of the peony family. If you want information on the plant that stands next to the rose in beauty, that is practically known to the amateur as simply a red, white and pink peony, then send for "Peonies for Pleasure."

We also issue a special wholesale price list of peonies for fall sales, 1913. Send for both of these booklets.

Parkersburg, W. Va.—Charles P. Dudley will open a flower store in the Union Trust building, Seventh and Market streets, about October 15.

Williamsport, Pa.—September 20 is the date set for the opening of the store of Kester & Hardin in the Y. M. C. A. building. They will have all their flowers shipped from Philadelphia until the size of their business warrants building greenhouses here.

The Travis Rocker Grate Method

Of handling cinders and ashes under a coal fire appeals to every fireman. There is advancement in rocker grate construction and the ordinary roller type is no longer good enough. Our methods are undisputed. Use a cheaper grade of fuel. Use less of it by an evenly regulated draft. Ordinary slack can be used successfully where other grates fail. Air admitted through each opening, properly regulated, causes a poor grade of coal to burn up close. It does not accumulate, because there is less bulk, and it becomes brittle and rattles through the grates. If you do not believe this can be done, just visit a plant where the Travis Rocker Grates are in use. Absolutely the only grate that will handle Pocahontas coal successfully. For prices and full information, give size of your furnace.

SMOKELESS COAL AT CHICAGO.

"Last week smokeless coal showed decided signs of easing up," says the Black Diamond in its September 12 review of the Chicago market. "Within the last week, the big buyers have bought heavily at $1.40 a ton. Actual sales, within the last week, at that price have covered about 18,000 tons of coal. The price was paid delivery during October and November. The big buyers evidently do not expect any drop in smokeless prices. At the same time, there has been a general increase in inquiries, especially for spot coal, while the movement on contract has been uninterrupted. It is true that an indiscreet shipment by one large company resulted in overstocking the market, but the influence was not serious. Some reports are that smokeless coal is going at $1.30 to $1.35, but the coal is off grade."

A PARTITION IS NECESSARY.

We wish to heat a small greenhouse, 20 x 50 feet, running north and south. We expect to use a Wilks hot water boiler. Please instruct us how to pipe the house so as to have a temperature of 60 degrees in the north half and 45 to 50 degrees in the south half, without a partition. The house has three feet of glass in the sides and one end is glass. The temperature in this part of Mississippi does not often drop as low as 20 degrees above zero. The benches are two and one-half feet high. Should the top of the boiler be on a level the north end of the house would be driven to the south end of the house and the temperatures would be nearly equalized. With the wind from the south, there would be the same sort of trouble. In case a glass partition is not desired, a muslin curtain, which could be drawn up to the roof during the day, would be helpful.

To secure the temperatures mentioned, run a 2½-inch main under the ridge and bring back four 2-inch returns to the center of the house; there increase the number to eight returns. This number of returns would be needed to secure the temperatures named when the outside temperature is as low as 20 degrees above zero. When the outside temperature is 30 degrees above zero, it would be possible to maintain the temperatures if two of the returns at one end of the house and one at the other end were left out, and then, by firing a little harder when the temperature drops to 20 degrees, there would be little difficulty in keeping the houses as warm as would be necessary.

If possible, the top of the boiler should be as low as, or lower than, the level of the floor. By running the flow pipe with a slight fall, the expansion tank could be connected with the highest point in the system and no air valves would be required. All of the returns may be under the side benches or they may be evenly distributed under the four benches.

RIGHT DISTRIBUTION OF PIPES.

We are putting up a greenhouse, 18x83, and should like to know what amount of piping will be needed in it and whether all the pipes can be placed in the middle of the house, where they would be most out of the way. We shall use 1-inch pipe. The side walls of the house are seven feet high and contain six feet of glass above one foot of concrete. The height of the ridge is eleven feet. Please state particularly whether it would be advisable to attach all the pipes to the middle posts. We want a temperature of 45 to 50 degrees at night. The lowest outside temperature we have in this part of New York state is about 15 degrees below zero.

J. J. S.

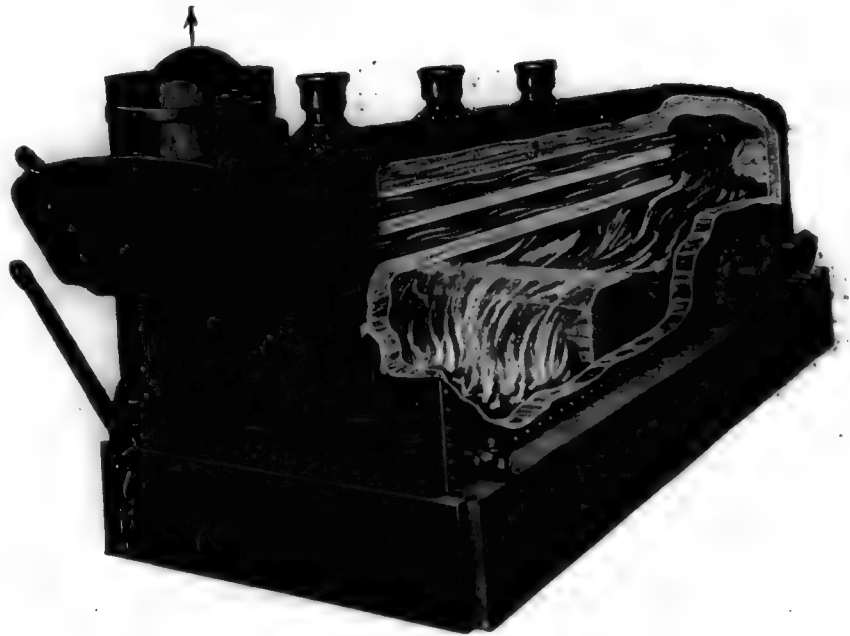

To heat a house 18x83 feet, with six feet of glass in each of the walls, to 50 degrees with steam heat, one 2-inch flow pipe, which could be fastened to the posts two feet below the ridge, and ten 1-inch returns will be needed. While four of the returns may be placed upon the middle posts, it will be advisable, especially considering the amount of glass in the walls, to have at least three of the returns on each wall. Especially if the end of the house is exposed, the returns on the walls should start under the end of the flow pipe, run each way along the end of the house and then on the side walls to the boiler end of the house.

HEAT FOR SWEET PEA HOUSE.

We have in the course of construction a sweet pea house, 31x100, in which we plan to plant five rows of peas at an average of six feet apart. The peas are to be planted in trenches dug in the soil, twenty-four inches deep. This depth of soil is to be increased by an additional twelve inches contained in 12-inch side boards. We are at a loss as to the best way in which to place our heating pipes. We have a steam heating system. Is it more advisable to run our pipes overhead or to run our coils along the 12-inch side boards in the walks? It is our plan to use some of the space for growing violets and each pea trench will have a 36-inch violet

Three 2-inch flow pipes can be run overhead, under the ridge and purlins, and one of these can be used to supply returns placed along the 12-inch boards. The other flow pipes should supply coils upon the walls. Without knowing how much glass there is in the side walls, it is not possible to tell how many returns will be required.

One of the most successful growers uses houses running east and west. The main walks run lengthwise of the houses, with the beds level with the surface and six or eight feet wide. The rows of plants run across the beds and are either three or six feet apart. The greater distance gives practically the same returns, with more opportunity for a catch crop.

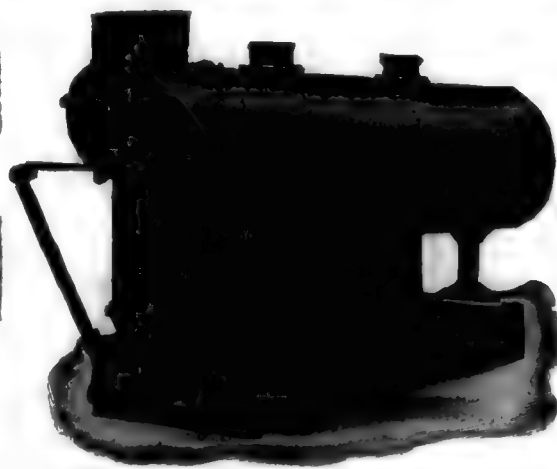

The seeds are sown in pots and transplanted to the beds when ready to run. This gives a much more even stand, as the percentage of vegetation is much greater than when the seed is sown in the beds, which is quite an object with high-priced seed. Two or three months after the first batch of seed is sown another sowing is made, and when the rows are six feet apart these can be set out in the beds, halfway between, and will come on to give a succession when the first sowing is ready to come out.

THREE OHIO HOUSES.

We are putting in a hot water system of heating and have been reading all the questions and answers on the subject in The Review, but none of them seems to fit our case. So we are enclosing a diagram of our houses and should like to know what size of pipe to use. Is there danger of having the pipe too large? Please state, also, how many flows and returns, or coils of pipe, should be used in each house. R. M.

The average grower believes that experience has shown that for houses more than fifty feet in length it is advisable to use 2-inch pipe for the returns in a hot water system, and either 2½-inch or 3-inch for the flow pipes. The use

The Merits of Wrought Iron and Cast Iron Boilers

WROUGHT IRON BOILERS are, beyond all doubt, the boilers to buy for certain purposes. The point to be given serious consideration is—what are those certain purposes? Many a grower has loaded himself up with a big wrought boiler when one or more cast iron boilers would have been—not only more economical—but much more satisfactory to operate. When you read the glowing endorsements written by users of either wrought or cast iron boilers, both claim that their boiler is the only boiler and they give good reasons. Both are pretty apt to knock the other kind. Such statements seem contradictory. But in most cases they are not, because each is written concerning the boiler best adapted for the writer's particular purpose. We have cast iron Greenhouse Boilers to sell. But we won't sell them to a man if his conditions and requirements exceed the point where they are adaptable. Just because we do business this way, it has earned for us the statement that "you can depend on depending on Hitchings." The undeniable advantages of our cast iron boilers are:—they are easier to install than wrought iron; require no expensive masonry work; can be enlarged by adding sections; heat quicker; last longer. Proof of the great endurance of cast iron was shown in recent excavations for the Subways in New York City, when miles of cast iron pipe were exposed to view which have been in contact with water inside and out—for more than thirty years. The cast iron pipe is still in good condition, proving beyond any and all argument the superior rust-resisting character of cast iron. This is the kind of iron our boilers are made of. Write us concerning your heating problem and we will advise you frankly.

of smaller pipes is objectionable, owing to the increase in the friction, while most of those who have greenhouses to heat think that with larger pipes the amount of water to be heated is much greater than the increased radiation afforded.

The temperatures required are not stated either in the letter or upon the accompanying sketch. The size of one of the houses is given as 22 x 60; another house is 17 x 60, and the third house, which is built across the ends of the others and between them and the boiler, is 22 x 48. The walls are four feet high, except in the third house described, where the height to the plate is seven and one-half feet.

To heat the house 22 x 60 to 60 degrees, two 2½-inch flow pipes and twelve 2-inch returns will be needed. For 50 degrees only eight returns will be required. For the house 17 x 60, use two flows and nine returns for 60 degrees and six returns for 50 degrees. To serve as main flow pipes for the foregoing two houses, a 3-inch pipe may be run to each house from the boiler and the return water from each house can be carried in a pipe of the same size. These pipes will pass through the house 22 x 48 and will furnish considerable radiation. In addition, one 2½-inch flow and eight returns should be used in this house for 60 degrees, and six returns for 50 degrees.

The Market.

Our long dry spell was broken by several rains last week, but the damage has been done. Gladioli and asters have both suffered from the dry weather, the local asters all being knocked out and the gladioli in most cases being small. There are not many dahlias grown in this district. We had one or two frosts the last of the week, but not a great deal of damage was done, except to the most tender stock. The thermometer has been as low as 38 degrees every morning for a week.

The change in the weather shortened up the indoor stock, and roses have become quite scarce, except Maryland and Richmond. Lilies are less plentiful and have been in good demand. Carnations are still scarce, but few coming into this market except Enchantress, and the stems of these are short. Valley has been plentiful, and a few white and yellow chrysanthemums have made their appearance. There are plenty of fine Beauties. Retail trade is showing some improvement, but not a great deal can be expected until good stock becomes more plentiful and attractive, although some good orders are being booked for later in the fall.

CINCINNATI.

The Gateway to the South.

The close of last week was extremely slow. After Thursday the bottom seemed to drop out of things, and as a result the close found a glut in almost everything. The glut consisted mostly of asters of a low quality and the smaller and shorter sizes of gladioli. It was utterly impossible to move either. The good grades sold nicely. The opening of this week showed an active demand. A good many choice blooms were used when the new county commissioners were installed in office Monday. The various openings this week should use a good many flowers.

The American Beauty offerings are being snapped up as fast as they come in and more could easily be used. There is a good demand this week for all sizes. Other roses are in good supply. The demand for them is picking up, as the days are growing cooler and the blooms arrive in better shape. Carnations are now a regular item, but are not as yet a large factor in the week's market. The dahlia supply is large, and the blooms are of a high average of quality. A limited quantity of cosmos that finds a fair market is coming in. Lilies are in fair supply. The offerings of valley are limited and sell readily.

Various Notes.

Mr. Gillett expects large shipments from these plants later in the year.

WASHINGTON.

The Market.

A drop in the temperature of from 100 degrees to about 54 degrees caused a shortening up of the rose supply. Due to the cold, many of the growers have been forced to start steam in the houses. This is unprecedented in this section, for ordinarily the growers would not have started their fires for several weeks. The call for American Beauty roses last week was slightly heavier than it has been. Carnations are coming in better shape, the blooms being larger and the stems longer. The production and call for yellow and white chrysanthemums both have increased to quite an extent. A majority of the stores are now holding their annual fern and palm sales and all report good business. The sales at the Gude and the Kramer stores are perhaps larger this year than ever and the stock is exceptionally good.

Various Notes.

The local florists have picked out September 30 as the day on which they will visit the annual show at White Marsh, Md., held by R. Vincent, Jr., & Sons Co. The bowling club is going and will doubtless have an opportunity of trying its skill against the Baltimore team on the return from White Marsh. It is expected that a larger number of Washingtonians will this year make the trip than ever before.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer C. Mayberry have returned from a vacation spent at Piney Point, Md.

Among the visitors in town last week were Will Rehder, of Wilmington, N. C.; Robert Shoch, with M. Rice Co., Philadelphia; Mr. Flood, of Hammondton, N. Y.; Charles McCarthy, with Carbone, of Boston; and J. Prentice Brown, who formerly visited this territory for Kohn, Adler & Co., Philadelphia.

Mrs. Beatrice Moss has just returned from a vacation covering several weeks, spent at Ridge, Md.

The death of C. Ponnet, of Alexandria, Va., is reported in the obituary column this week. C. L. L.

Williamsport, Pa.—The Williamsport Floral Co., which recently purchased the business of D. E. Gorman, has been incorporated with a capital of $25,000. The incorporators are Thomas G. Ward and B. F. Gane, of this city, and J. H. Reed, of Columbus.

Minneapolis, Minn.—In the competition for decorated tables at the state fair, the Minneapolis Floral Co. took first place; Holm & Olson, of St. Paul, second; the Riverside Greenhouses, St. Paul, third, and Yerxa Bros., of Minneapolis, fourth. D. W. C. Ruff, of St. Paul, captured all gladiolus prizes, exhibiting one of the finest displays ever seen here.

NOTE THE RINGS WHICH APPEAR AT ONE FOOT INTERVALS TO FACILITATE QUICK AND ACCURATE MEASURING

RINGMETER—The Garden Hose for FLORISTS' Use

BECAUSE:

It is made in continuous lengths of 500 feet furnished on reels—no need of thinking of wasteful short ends.

Rings of rubber appear every foot and being spaced exactly one foot apart makes it self-measuring. Just count one ring for every foot as you unwind the reel. Quick and accurate. Does away with mistakes.

The utmost care enters into the construction; only the best of materials and workmanship are used, in conjunction with the latest improved machinery.

Prices are right. RINGMETER is the Garden Hose to show you economy. Strong, durable and quality that spells long service.

Made in three sizes: 2 1/2-inch, 3-inch and 3 1/2-inch.

ROSES—Good Fall Cut

You need have no misgivings about the quality of our Roses. The most reliable supply on this market—all the popular varieties, including a most generous cut of the following:

Beauties—Killarneys—Richmonds—White Killarneys—Sunburst—Mrs. Shawyer—Aaron Ward—Marylands

The cold weather has added greatly to the shipping qualities, and the buds are unusually large. Color could not be better, and in all lengths of stem.

CARNATIONS—MUMS

The Carnations have also improved and we have had many repeat orders, enlarged on account of the high quality of both flower and stem—they make friends everywhere. Then our Mums—white and yellow—are increasing in number each day. We have them in all grades, and our best ones move rapidly to the city buyers who are strong on getting fancy stock. Let us have your steady order.

Two Good Reasons Why

THIS IS A GOOD PLACE == TO BUY ROSES ==

WHY QUALITY We probably do not grow any better Roses than at many other places, but we claim to grow better Roses than most places.

But it is in the handling after they are grown that we can excel the others. Instead of passing through a wholesale house, they come from our greenhouses direct to you. Even though many growers sell direct to the dealer, most of them also have a wholesale house that all their product passes through.

The less handling the better for Roses—quality may be ever so good, but half lost by frequent handling, delay and other causes before it reaches the dealer's store.

After our expert growers cut their roses, they are given to girls that handle them with greatest care—assort them, place them in a fine cooling room, and after a few hours are ready to ship. Crisp, fresh stock that will keep for days. Roses of shipping grade of the very best. Roses that will come to your store time after time in perfect condition. Will you let us demonstrate it to you?

WHY PRICE If we ship to a commission house we have to pay them 15 per cent. We have to pay expressage and stand a percentage of loss in stock.

If we start a wholesale house we have to pay rent—to hire a manager and clerks, besides all the other expenses. We give this twenty or thirty or forty per cent to the dealer. Notice our price list—you will see a difference of that much, and our price list does not change every day or every week, but runs for a month. It allows you to figure ahead.

THE GROWERS' CUT FLOWER CO.

BEGINNING business in October, 1907, on the first floor of 39 West 28th Street, and moving three times since that date, each time into larger quarters on account of its increasing business, is now settled in its well located, large and fully equipped new store at 129 West 28th Street, by common consent the most fully furnished store in New York City for the conduct of a General Wholesale Cut Flower business.

All of the All Year, Short Season and Miscellaneous Blooms arriving in the Wholesale Cut Flower Market may now be found at this store daily in large numbers.

Naturally enough, flower growers like to consign their cut of blooms where the location is favorable and the facilities for handling, selling and, when necessary, for keeping flowers in good condition, are the very best. That is only good business judgment.

Critical buyers also prefer to purchase flowers where the conditions are such that the flowers are at their best when placed in their hands.

These ideal conditions for serving both flower growers and buyers are found in the new store of The Growers' Cut Flower Company.

For a full description of our new quarters and cold storage equipment, see article in columns of The Florists' Exchange, Sept. 20, under "Growers' Cut Flower Company's New Store."

Thanking all of our old shippers and buyers for their business with us, and extending a cordial invitation to all others to ship their flowers to us or buy from us, we remain, Yours truly,

THE GROWERS' CUT FLOWER CO.

THE RETAIL

FLORIST.....

THE STANDING WREATH.

The standing wreath of cattleyas and valley illustrated on this page was made by H. E. Lozier, Des Moines, Ia. The green was adiantum, in keeping with the choice quality of the flowers, and the ribbon was of cattleya color. The wreath illustrates the growing tendency to use ribbon lavishly, the ribbon to match the flowers.

ADVERTISING BY RETAILERS.

A Valuable Business Asset.

The value of advertising as a business asset is generally recognized by the great majority of business men today, but the average florist makes but little show of realizing this fact. This diffidence is in part due, no doubt, to the fact that most florists feel unequal to the task of writing effective ads.

Advertising is an art based on scientific principles, largely psychological, referring to the mental influence on the average mind. Certain results can always be obtained from advertising, but, as in other arts, the greatest results are possible only from a thorough knowledge of human nature, experience in preparing advertising copy, and good judgment in the hows and whens of advertising science.

The principle of advertising a florist's business is in no way different from that of any other business. It is fundamentally an appeal for business. It is salesmanship on paper instead of oral solicitation.

The Heading or Catch Line.

In soliciting business by advertising, as in soliciting orally, the whole secret lies in making the customer believe that the article is what he wants, and at the right price. There is, however, this difficulty in selling by the printed word: The general public "read as they run" and the advertisement must have a complete thought as a heading or catch line, or in most cases it will not be read. The attention may be attracted by an illustration or design, but the reading of the ad depends largely on the heading. It should serve to indicate the remainder of the appeal. "Make Haste" might serve to catch some eyes, but few would follow it further. "Beautiful Roses" would catch the eye and interest lovers of flowers enough to induce them to read further.

It should always be borne in mind that every retail advertisement should first attract, second interest, third convince and lastly make the reader act.

Flowers are a luxury and therefore cannot be exploited like a necessity. The beauty of the flowers, the pleasure they give, their appropriateness for weddings, funerals, birthdays, social events, for decorations, etc., are the selling points most forceful. Price is a secondary consideration in most cases.

Keeping One's Name in Print.

When it seems there is nothing to say about your stock, do not for a minute let your advertising drop.

The gentle public has a short memory and easily forgets, and someone else gets the trade of the man who lets his name get out of print.

At such times tell about your shop, your delivery service, your business methods, how carefully and promptly orders are filled and delivered.

The retail florist's advertisement should be seasonable. He should not only take advantage of the seasons to advertise bulbs, potted plants, Easter lilies, etc., but he should also take advantage of holidays, public events, anniversaries, etc. For instance, at Standing Wreath of Cattleyas and Valley.

Washington's birthday special advertising is appreciated. "Dwarf Cherry Trees in Full Bloom" was the heading used by one up-to-date florist. Again, at Valentine's day, another chance; "Floral Valentines" would be appreciated. The more generally observed holidays will need no suggestion, as the methods employed are well known.

Reminders by Telephone.

There is one point generally overlooked by florists—the telephone is an excellent means of securing new business and keeping in close touch with the old. One florist makes several hundred dollars yearly in this manner: Each Friday and a few days before each holiday he calls up a selected list of regular customers and prospectives; he tells them of the fine, fresh stock of whatever he may have; reminds them of the rush usual at such times, which often prevents prompt attention; tells them that now is the time to secure the pick of the stock, etc.

The orders he secures in this manner are all ready for delivery the first thing Saturday a. m., or the day before the holiday, so that when the regular Sunday or holiday rush begins he has his staff free to handle it.

Geo. P. Parker.

DISCOURAGE THE INSATIABLE.

At the meeting of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association held at the Coliseum, Chicago, in 1912, resolutions were adopted for the purpose of putting the members on record as squarely opposed to the greed of those, few in number, who are not satisfied with the twenty per cent commission allowed the florist who sends an order to another retailer to be filled. At the Minneapolis meeting the position of the association and its members was emphasized—the florist who so far forgets himself as to take advantage of his customer can expect short shrift if the association gets the evidence of his guilt.

Fortunately, there are few in the trade who can not be relied on to give their customers everything that is their due. There have been instances, however, in which it was alleged that a person engaged in selling flowers was not satisfied to pocket $1 as his legitimate share of an order for $5 worth of flowers to be delivered in some other town and that he therefore sent the order to deliver flowers to cost $3 net. He stultified himself and the name of florist is not his. To do such an act is to put oneself outside the pale.

TO KEEP BEFORE THEM.

The way to keep one's name before the trade, if a florist wants to handle the retail orders that other florists are sending into the town, is to be represented in The Review's department for retailers' cards.

Consult the index by towns on the last page of the department. Is your town represented? If it is, you can tell who is handling the bulk of the orders other florists send there. If it isn't represented, it leaves a fine chance for someone who wants to add to his business.

The minimum charge for a card is 35 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for a half-inch card. Larger spaces cost in proportion.

Every florist should advertise in his home town that he has facilities for delivering flowers anywhere at short notice. In the first place, the business has not been and can not be worked up from the receiving end; it's the sending of orders that should be pushed. And, in the second place, the sender of an order gets twenty per cent as his profit with extremely little effort. Make the customer pay the telegraph charges.

APPROPRIATE TO HIS CALLING.

Florists are continually met with the demand for freak funeral pieces, and, more often than not, the occupation of the deceased is the subject to be symbolized. To design something novel that will answer the demand is often a tax on the ingenuity of the florist. While no florist who has the true appreciation for the appropriate uses of flowers ever encourages the use of freak designs, still they often must be made when called for or the order will be lost. One of the latest pieces of this character is the design shown in the accompanying illustration, which was made by Louis B. Westholder, of Evanston, Wyo., for the funeral of a foreman of the Union Pacific tie camp. The picture scarcely does it justice, as the photograph was taken when the piece had stood for twenty-four hours in the open air, and, in addition, the colors, which made the original much more distinct, are not reproduced.

The design represented a block of wood standing on one end; the mass of white carnations representing the newly chopped part, leaving the lower part untouched, in which the ax is lodged. The handle of the ax is also of white carnations, but the head, which showed far more effectively in the original than it does in the illustration, was of dark pink carnations. The cluster across the center is composed of white carnations, against which the name of Palmer appeared in lavender sweet peas, which are indistinct in the reproduction, as the sweet peas wilted before the photograph was taken. The block of wood which served as a base was padded with smilax, and arches of heavy wire fastened to each side served as handles. The completed piece was four feet square and took 700 roses and carnations besides the sweet peas forming the name.

WILL SOME ELK ANSWER?

In a portion of the Elks' ritual they are required to use a "sprig of amaranth with clinging ivy." Would you please inform me what variety of amaranth is usually used for this, also what ivy?
H. A. Hyde.

BEGONIAS LOSING FOLIAGE.

I have about 100 tuberous-rooted begonias, both single and double, under glass and they are constantly damping off. They started to make good, strong growths, but the leaves damp off as fast as new ones begin to form. The watering has been attended to carefully, as I have been looking after them myself for the last three weeks, but, no matter how dry I keep them, both at the root and the foliage, they seem to act the same way. They are potted in a good, light loam, with decayed cow manure and sand, and are growing under partial shade in a temperature of 55 to 60 degrees. This is the first time I have had such trouble and I have tried every means to stop it, but so far I have been unsuccessful.

F. L.

Your tuberous begonias would have done better after the middle of August if given full sunshine. You would have had fewer decaying leaves than where the plants were kept in shade. It is not easy, however, to keep tuberous begonias in presentable condition after the middle of September, as the plants after that date have a natural tendency to cast their leaves and go to rest. A dry, airy, sunny house, kept about 50 degrees at night, suits them best in late summer.

RELATION OF GLASS TO LIGHT.

What Influences Greenhouse Lighting.

George E. Stone, whose research work at Amherst has made him widely known among those of the trade, has added to his service to them in a bulletin issued by the Massachusetts Agricultural Experiment Station, on "The Relation of Light to Greenhouse Culture." In this pamphlet he notes the various ways in which light affects the growth, strength and general condition of plants in greenhouses and treats of the different influences that bear upon greenhouse lighting, giving the results of numerous light-measuring experiments. The method used in these experiments was to expose tubes of uniform size and quality of glass, filled with chemical solutions sensitive to light. The solutions change color in proportion to the length of the exposure. By titration, i.e., measuring the quantity of a liquid required to produce a chemical change, such as precipitation, in the solution, the comparative amount of light is determined.

Different Qualities of Glass.

Among the most interesting points upon which he touched is that of the different kinds and qualities of glass. Although only a few types, those mainly used in greenhouses, were tested, the variation was found to be great.

"The experiments," states Mr. Stone in his pamphlet, "were made outdoors, and the exposed tubes were placed in boxes two and one-half inches from the glass which we wished to test. The records shown in the table are averages of four different experiments in which the exposures ranged from two to two and one-half hours. In all the tests 16x28 inch glass was used. No. 1 was double French, first quality; No. 2, double French, second quality, and No. 3, American, third quality. The fluted glass was one-eighth inch thick, with rather fine flutings and a general appearance of opaque glass. The No. 2 French, double thick, is used extensively in greenhouse construction in the east, and the No. 3 American in other sections of the country. The fluted glass is not used for greenhouses, although it is valuable for dispersing light.

Experiments Show Marked Variation.

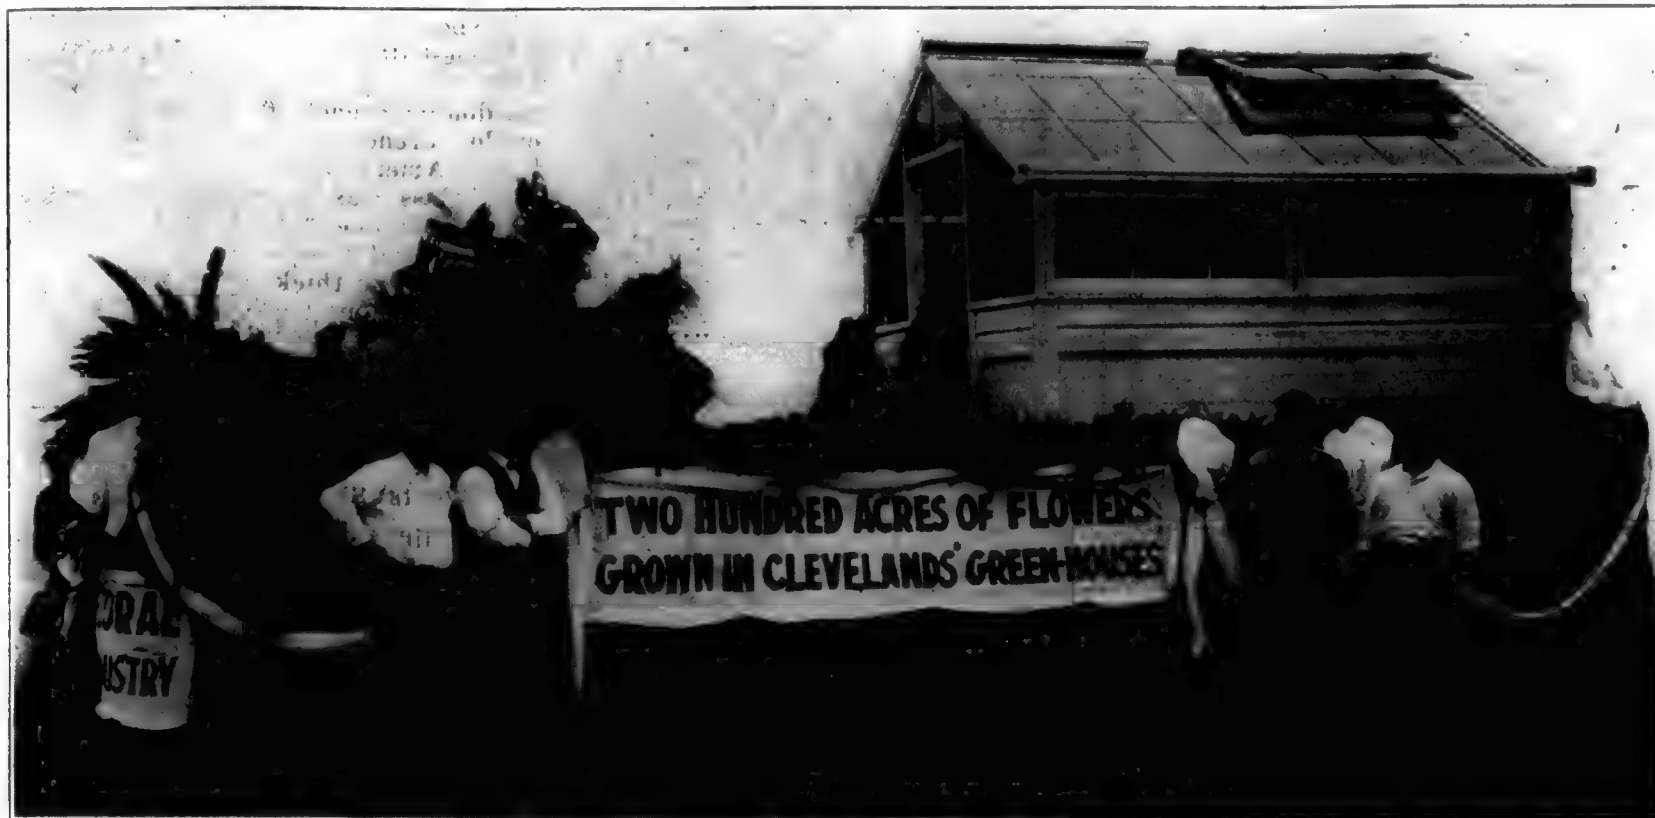

"The difference in the quality of the glass tested was sufficient to enable one, with no previous knowledge of how they were placed, to pick out each sample at a distance of six rods. The results of the tests given in the table show that the differences in the quality or light-transmitting properties of the glass are marked. The No. 2 gave seventeen per cent less light than No. 1, and No. 3, thirty-two per cent less than No. 1, while the fluted glass was practically as good as No. 3, although from its opaque appearance it could hardly be thought to compare with any of the others. The relatively high records given by this glass are explained by the fact that the flutings act as lenses, and it is evident that the rays of light in our experiments were concentrated upon the recording tubes, which were only about two and one-half inches from the glass, and the readings obtained from this glass are probably somewhat misleading."

The following table shows the results obtained from the different kinds and qualities of glass:

	Readings.	Percentage of decreased light value.
First quality glass.....	188	100
Second quality glass.....	155	82
Third quality glass.....	126	67
Fluted glass	125	66

Better Glass and Economy.

"The cost of the different qualities of glass at the time of purchase," continues Mr. Stone, "was as follows: No. 1, 42 cents; No. 2, 39 cents; No. 3, 33 cents; the fluted, 20 cents per light. Considering the results obtained from the different types of glass, No. 2 would seem a wiser purchase than No. 3. Large dealers say that they sell nine boxes of French glass to one of American in the east for greenhouse use. According to this schedule of prices, those who purchase No. 2 glass pay six cents more or fifteen per cent more than those who buy No. 3, but receive eighteen per cent more light. We believe that it would pay to use No. 1 quality in some special cases.

"Since most plants receive far below the optimum light in the winter months in our latitude, the choice of glass should have careful consideration. In the spring and summer this is less important, and in many cases it is even of advantage to shade the plants at this time. However, the amount of light is not dependent wholly on the quality of glass, as the size of the house and methods of construction are important features."

CLEVELAND BOOSTS BUSINESS.

September 3, Mayor Baker, of Cleveland, O., appointed H. P. Knoble chairman of a committee of florists to arrange for floral entries in the Perry Centennial parade, held September 17. A mass meeting of florists was called by the committee, and, after discussion, it was agreed that to enter into this industrial parade collectively and stage two large floats representing the floral industry would do more to advance the trade than to have florists enter individual floats.

A fund was collected. The list of those contributing and the amounts, as reported by George Bate, of the committee on collecting the funds, were as follows:

Float No. 1 was assigned to Herb. Bate, John Kirchner, Charles Kirchner and Frank A. Friedley. They secured a small model greenhouse from the John C. Moninger Co., Chicago, who kindly donated the use of the house. A five-ton White truck was hired for the day. Cedar boughs and wild smilax, fastened to wire netting, covered the entire truck, and staging built out from the sides and rear of the truck made a platform 12 x 26 feet, on which the house was erected and glazed; benches were built and filled with ferns and blooming plants. A few palms were used to screen the driver's seat, and a fern placed on each front corner completed the decorations. Two signs in front were marked, "Floral Industry." Banners on each side were marked, "Two hundred acres of flowers grown in Cleveland's greenhouses," and one large banner across the rear of the house read, "Cleveland greenhouses, end to end, would reach fifty miles."

The expenses involved in building this float were as follows:

Truck, one day.	18.00
Lumber	9.50
Express on greenhouse, knocked down.	10.50
Telegrams to secure the house.	.83
Wire netting	2.75

Glass	14.28
Glazier	2.50
Wild smilax	13.50
Cedar boughs	10.00
Cheesecloth	8.92
Signs painted	8.25
Labor, nails, wire, etc.	15.00

Total$114.03

Truck No. 2, which followed immediately after the greenhouse float, was designed and executed by Charles Russell, Charles Wagner, William Kurzen and F. C. Brown. While float No. 1 was meant to show the floral industry in the first stage, or growing end, float No. 2 showed the finished product, or floral art. A platform 10 x 20 covered the entire truck. On each corner a column eight feet in height was erected, surmounted by large balls of gladioli. Over 300 American Beauties were used in three large vases, placed in the center of the platform. Garlands of purple asters, draped over white cheesecloth that covered the base of the machine, added much to the setting. Three little girls, dressed in their best and bedecked with flowers, completed the float, and they added to the attractiveness by showering flowers upon the heads of the crowd as they passed. The entire floral entry was conceded to be by far the best industrial display of any business or profession, and there were over 250 floats, representing nearly 100 industries, in the parade.

The expenses of float No. 2 were:

Truck, one day.	18.00
Pillars and framework.	55.00
Cheesecloth, drivers' suits, etc.	25.59
Labor	5.00
Beauties, asters, gladioli and greens.	133.38

Total$236.97

Total receipts	$351.00
Expenditures float No. 1.	$114.03
Expenditures float No. 2.	236.97

Total expenditures$351.00

The entire florists' trade in Cleveland will probably receive more direct advertising from this display than from any other plan ever tried here.

APPROPRIATE TO HIS CALLING.

Florists are continually met with the demand for freak funeral pieces, and, more often than not, the occupation of the deceased is the subject to be symbolized. To design something novel that will answer the demand is often a tax on the ingenuity of the florist. While no florist who has the true appreciation for the appropriate uses of flowers ever encourages the use of freak designs, still they often must be made when called for or the order will be lost. One of the latest pieces of this character is the design shown in the accompanying illustration, which was made by Louis B. Westholder, of Evanston, Wyo., for the funeral of a foreman of the Union Pacific tie camp. The picture scarcely does it justice, as the photograph was taken when the piece had stood for twenty-four hours in the open air, and, in addition, the colors, which made the original much more distinct, are not reproduced.

The design represented a block of wood standing on one end, the mass of white carnations representing the newly chopped part, leaving the lower part untouched, in which the ax is lodged. The handle of the ax is also of white carnations, but the head, which showed far more effectively in the original than it does in the illustration, was of dark pink carnations. The cluster across the center is composed of white carnations, against which the name of Palmer appeared in lavender sweet peas, which are indistinct in the reproduction, as the sweet peas wilted before the photograph was taken. The block of wood which served as a base was padded with smilax, and arches of heavy wire fastened to each side served as handles. The completed piece was four feet square and took 700 roses and carnations besides the sweet peas forming the name.

WILL SOME ELK ANSWER?

In a portion of the Elks' ritual they are required to use a "sprig of amaranth with clinging ivy." Would you please inform me what variety of amaranth is usually used for this, also what ivy?

BEGONIAS LOSING FOLIAGE.

I have about 100 tuberous-rooted begonias, both single and double, under glass and they are constantly damping off. They started to make good, strong growths, but the leaves damp off as fast as new ones begin to form. The watering has been attended to carefully, as I have been looking after them myself for the last three weeks, but, no matter how dry I keep them, both at the root and the foliage, they seem to act the same way. They are potted in a good, light loam, with decayed cow manure and sand, and are growing under partial shade in a temperature of 55 to 60 degrees. This is the first time I have had such trouble and I have tried every means to stop it, but so far I have been unsuccessful.
F. L.

Your tuberous begonias would have done better after the middle of August if given full sunshine. You would have had fewer decaying leaves than where the plants were kept in shade. It is not easy, however, to keep tuberous begonias in presentable condition after the middle of September, as the plants after that date have a natural tendency to cast their leaves and go to rest. A dry, airy, sunny house, kept about 50 degrees at night, suits them best in late summer.

RELATION OF GLASS TO LIGHT.

What Influences Greenhouse Lighting.

George E. Stone, whose research work at Amherst has made him widely known among those of the trade, has added to his service to them in a bulletin issued by the Massachusetts Agricultural Experiment Station, on "The Relation of Light to Greenhouse Culture." In this pamphlet he notes the various ways in which light affects the growth, strength and general condition of plants in greenhouses and treats of the different influences that bear upon greenhouse lighting, giving the results of numerous light-measuring experiments. The method used in these experiments was to expose tubes of uniform size and quality of glass, filled with chemical solutions sensitive to light. The solutions change color in proportion to the length of the exposure. By titration, i.e., measuring the quantity of a liquid required to produce a chemical change, such as precipitation, in the solution, the comparative amount of light is determined.

Different Qualities of Glass.

Among the most interesting points upon which he touched is that of the different kinds and qualities of glass. Although only a few types, those mainly used in greenhouses, were tested, the variation was found to be great.

"The experiments," states Mr. Stone in his pamphlet, "were made outdoors, and the exposed tubes were placed in boxes two and one-half inches from the glass which we wished to test. The records shown in the table are averages of four different experiments in which

NAMES TO BE DROPPED.

We are sending The Review a list of names which we propose to drop from the carnation register, unless we succeed in securing data which we now lack.

Will you kindly publish this list, with the request that anyone who can supply the color, parentage, originator, disseminator and date of dissemination of any variety in the large section of the list, will kindly communicate the same to the office of the secretary at Indianapolis, Ind.?

We have been working on this register through a period of several years and have complete data on most of the varieties listed. As soon as it becomes apparent that the register is as complete as it is possible to make it, the American Carnation Society proposes to publish it in pamphlet form and distribute it among its members.

It is calculated that this register will be of great benefit to those who secure copies, as it will contain full data on practically every carnation introduced within the last forty years. It will stand as the highest authority on carnation nomenclature.

STEM-BORING LARVÆ.

Enclosed you will find a stem of a carnation plant which seems to have been diseased in some way. I am not familiar with stem-rot, but think, from what I have read of it, that this trouble is of another character. I will also enclose some small worms which I found on the stems. Can it be possible that these worms have been the cause? You will notice that the stem seems to be eaten, in somewhat the same way as fruit trees are eaten by borers. If you can suggest any remedy for this, I shall be thankful, as it has caused the loss of a great many of my plants in the field. W. C. K.

The specimen submitted was not affected by the common stem-rot, as you inferred, but was attacked by one of the stem-boring larvæ. You will find these extremely difficult to control. In fact, I can offer no remedy which has proved successful to my knowledge. About the only thing I could suggest would be to sterilize the soil. I would strongly urge you to do this, if you have not already benched your carnations. A. F. J. B.

DISEASES OF THE VIOLET.

The Root Rot Disease.

In the earlier parts of this discussion, by Dr. Donald Reddick, of Ithaca, N. Y., the character and extent of the root rot disease, thielavia, were described. At Cornell a number of experiments have been conducted to ascertain the conditions which lead to the disease and to find, if possible, means of holding it in control.

Results of an Experiment.

June 16, 1912, perfectly healthy plants grown from carefully selected cuttings were placed in four of the plats, while in the other four were placed plants each one of which had been grown from a cutting bearing a definite lesion. Cuttings with large lesions died in the sand and the diseased plants used in this experiment had grown from cuttings with small lesions. In general appearance these plants were about as good as those grown from healthy cuttings. The other half of the plants were furnished me by a grower. All of them had well-developed roots, every one of which was infected. These plants made an attempt to grow, pushing out new leaves from time to time. Nearly all died a lingering death, leaf by leaf curling up and withering. The few that survived never bore any flowers and do not figure in the yield. August 26 the following condition was noted: Of the healthy plants those grown in stable manure appeared the best, but those in the phosphate plat were a close second. Those in the lime and wood-ash plats were decidedly inferior.

Of the diseased plants those in the stable-manure plat were much the best. The plat in general appearance resembled much the healthy plants in the limed plat. Plants in the wood-ash plat were extremely poor, while those in the phosphate plat were little better. Those in the limed plat showed yellowish crimped leaves, but not so pronounced as in the phosphate or wood-ash plats.

Stable Manure Best.

During August and September dead plants were removed from time to time. October 27 the condition was as before. Of the healthy lot the manured plat was best. The phosphated plat was second, but not a close second, owing to the loss of many leaves from marginal leaf burning, apparently due to the acid phosphate. The wood-ash plat lagged behind, many of the plants having few runners even at this date.

Of the diseased lot the order was as formerly; in the manured plat four of the black-rooted plants were still alive, though they never bore any flowers. Some of the other plants had made an excellent growth. The runners were too numerous, too fine and wiry, and the foliage had a slightly yellowish color. The wood-ash plat was the poorest. At this date all of the plants were small, with little prospect of living long. A few plants in each of the other plats seemed vigorous, but the majority were either dead or sickly.

During the course of the experiment, of the healthy stock, six plants in the limed plat died, one of them with the thielavia disease; four plants in the phosphated plat died, all from other causes than thielavia; none died in the manured or wood-ash plats. Of the diseased lot, eight died in the limed plat, fifteen in the phosphated, five in the manured, and thirteen in the plat treated with wood ashes, all with the thielavia disease. Many others were nearly dead when the experiment was terminated, December 9, 1912.

Violets Tenacious of Life.

When the plants were removed many were in bad condition, as seen in the illustrations in last week's Review. The fact that so many diseased plants had persisted is explained by examining the two many-rooted plants shown in one of the pictures. The repeated development of new roots above the point of infection, with the development of roots from the runners, carried the plant along long after most other kinds of plants would have succumbed.

The average number of flowers per plant, counting only those plants alive

Geranium Stock Plants of Elmer Rawlings, Olean, N. Y.

October 27, for the various plats was as follows: Healthy stock, limed plat, 6.4; acid phosphate, 10; stable manure, 11; wood ashes, 5.4. Diseased stock, limed plat, 5.7; phosphate, 5; manured, 7.6; wood-ash, 3.

It can be seen that the stable manure gave best results. As this is a well-known fact, the experiment was faulty in that the chemicals were not applied in addition to manure.

It may be questioned whether acid phosphate could be expected to yield results when the plant is already diseased before it is placed in the soil. The protection of newly-developed roots, however, might have been expected. Unfortunately, the actual tests for alkalinity and acidity were not made.

TO WINTER GLOXINIA BULBS.

What is the best way to keep gloxinia bulbs at rest, in the pots, or shaken out and packed in perfectly dry sand? I should like to keep them dormant as long in the early spring as possible. I have about 400 of them.

H. H.

The best way to keep the gloxinia bulbs is to pack them in sand not too dust-dry, or in dry cocoanut fiber-refuse. The latter keeps begonias and gloxinias splendidly. Give the gloxinias a temperature, when at rest, of 48 to 50 degrees. Pack them away just as soon as all the foliage has died away.

PROPER SOIL FOR ASPARAGUS.

What kind of soil and temperature does Asparagus plumosus require? Will it stand much feeding with liquid manure? We have plants in solid beds 1, 3, 5 and 7 years old, but none of them does well, and we need them every day of the year.

J. T.

The most common cause for the failure of Asparagus plumosus is poor drainage, and in the present case it may be combined with alkali water. As a well prepared bed of asparagus will give profitable returns for ten years or more, great pains should be taken to provide ideal conditions. After excavating to the depth of about three feet, fill in with stones, coarse cinders, gravel, or other material, to the depth of from six to ten inches, in order to make sure that perfect drainage has been secured. Then fill up the bed with coarse manure, leaf-mold and rotten sods, finishing it off with six inches of rich compost, containing a considerable proportion of sand. The plants should have a temperature of 63 to 65 degrees. Just what should be done in the present instance will depend upon the condition of the plants and of the bed, but if the roots are in good condition the younger plants could probably be used for transplanting to a properly prepared bed. Liquid manure or top-dressing may be used on old beds.

A CITY BLOCK OF GERANIUMS.

Growing geraniums on residence lots in the midst of a great city is not a common practice, but it nevertheless is being done by the Edw. Doege Co., whose field of geranium plants at Montrose and Springfield avenues, Chicago, is shown in the illustration. In the area under cultivation there, 15,000 plants attract the attention of the passers-by. It has been in full bloom for some time and the novelty of such a sight has drawn large numbers of people, who can be seen, on Sundays and holidays especially, lined up along the sidewalk, taking in the scene. Despite the fact that there is no fence to keep out intruders, practically no trouble has been occasioned by the small boys, usually so troublesome to florists, and, so far as can be determined, no depredations have occurred.

The company has produced some fine plants on these city lots, and the geraniums grown here are one of the specialties of the concern. Some time ago the company leased the greenhouses of C. O. Erickson, at Glen Ellyn, Ill., where it will continue his retail business. To these greenhouses the geranium plants grown at the Chicago establishment will all be moved shortly. In the illustration the contrast in the two varieties shown, Beaute Poitevine and S. A. Nutt, is quite apparent.

A FIELD OF GERANIUMS.

The photograph here reproduced serves to illustrate, in a general way, the entire business of growing geraniums for the wholesale trade, as the business is conducted by Elmer Rawlings, of Olean, N. Y. In the foreground of the picture is Mr. Rawlings' field of geranium stock plants; in the background are eight greenhouses that are devoted mostly to the growing of geraniums in 2-inch pots. The field contained about 40,000 plants. The dark ones in front were S. A. Nutt; farther back were Poitevine, Viaud, Buchner, Grant, Ricard and a few others. The photograph was taken September 5, when the plants were in full bloom.

Mr. Rawlings states that twice during the season the plants in the field suffered from frost. The first frost occurred June 7; the second, September 9. As referring to the June frost, however, the word "suffered" might be misleading, for Mr. Rawlings states that the plants were benefited rather than harmed, by being induced to break more freely. As to the results of the second frost he cannot speak so cheerfully. "The cuttings," he says, "will not be used from this field; only the stock plants will be housed. We can keep the weeds out, but not the frost."

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

MULCHING CHRYSANTHEMUMS.

Is it advisable to mulch chrysanthemums in benches? Mine are planted in four and one-half to five inches of soil, with rotten stable manure in the bottom of the benches. I have a good supply of blacksmith shop manure which, though rotten, is still full of ammonia; would this be too strong? I applied this last year about this time, and mildew followed shortly afterwards. Could it have been caused by the application of the manure?

What is the proper night temperature for mums, when firing? Do drafts from the ventilators and open back doors hurt them during this and the next month? Is it better to keep the ventilators shut on the windward side on partly cloudy days, when the temperature is from 50 to 60 degrees outside? My houses run north and south, and west winds prevail. M.

The advisability of mulching mums depends a great deal on the condition of the plants. If the roots are running all over the top of the benches, apparently hungry, a mulch is all right. I note you have rotten manure at the bottom of your benches; too much manure is apt to retain water in the soil, making it more or less spongy. A better way in this case, perhaps, would be to use liquid manure made from fresh droppings. The blacksmith shop manure is strong because the hoof parings contain a large percentage of nitrogen, and if the manure is placed on top of the bench, this is in a large measure lost. A better way to use it is to put it at the bottom of the bench or to incorporate it in the soil when the sod heap is stacked up. The manure from a blacksmith shop is valuable on account of the hoof parings in it, but one must be careful to eliminate the iron as much as possible. I had a disastrous experience once in using this fertilizer, and I have always blamed it on the fact that there was too much iron in the manure to be good for the plants.

Mulching should not necessarily have anything to do with mildew, if ventilating and watering are properly attended to. If the plants were watered or sprayed in the afternoon instead of in the morning, it is entirely possible that moisture may be retained with a mulch on top and help to bring on mildew, though this does not necessarily follow. Mildew, as a rule, comes from improper ventilation more than from any other cause. As regards temperature, 45 degrees, with plenty of air, is high enough. The chief thing to look out for is, when the flowers are opening, to have a dry, buoyant atmosphere in the house, so that the moisture will not settle on the petals. This is easily accomplished by having a single line of steam pipes around the house and then leaving enough air on the ventilators, so that the atmosphere is always dry and moving.

Draughts from the ventilators or open back doors do not hurt mums; in fact, the more draught, or air, they have the better, unless the temperature is below 45 degrees. The last two questions seem to indicate a fear of air on your plants. Keep the ventilators open by all means when the temperature is above 50 degrees, as long as the wind is not strong enough to pull the ventilators off the roof. I imagine the mildew has come from improper and insufficient ventilation. The ideal mum house has two rows of ventilators on top and a row on each side about the height of the benches. This gives a current of air through every part of the house, and, as before stated, unless the temperature is below 45 degrees, all ventilators should be fully open. The man who is growing mums in a ridge and furrow house will never grow the same quality of mums as will the man who has detached houses with ventilators on all sides. Too many growers forget that the mum is almost a hardy plant, and needs plenty of air.

MUMS LOSING FOLIAGE.

What causes the foliage of Polly Rose and Glory of Pacific chrysanthemums to turn yellowish, like the enclosed sample, and finally wither and die? Some of the plants lose nearly all their leaves. The yellowish color begins to be more noticeable soon after the crown bud is taken. I have had more or less of this sort of trouble with these two varieties of chrysanthemums since I began growing them in solid beds. Other varieties, grown under the same conditions, are not affected. P. P. L.

The leaves sent are affected with one of the many forms of leaf disease. This trouble usually starts in September, when the weather becomes muggy and there is an excess of moisture in the atmosphere. About as good a remedy as anything is to be sure the plants are not excessively sprayed from now on and be sure the house and foliage are dry at nightfall. If the night is muggy or wet, air-slaked lime dusted over the beds will be found of great assistance in keeping the foliage in good condition.

As the wood ripens, the foliage at the bottom of the plants naturally turns yellow and drops off. This is an advantage, since it gives the sun a chance to get to the bench and dry it out, but if too much foliage is lost in this manner, means should be adopted to check it. An excellent preparation to use, which is also good for rust, is sulphide of potassium dissolved in water at the rate of one ounce to two gallons of water; or if P. P. L. will procure the preparation called Fungine, which is largely composed of the same product, sulphide of potassium, he will find it an excellent remedy. Chas. H. Totty.

A PHILADELPHIA DAHLIA SHOW.

There was a feature of more than usual interest in the beautiful dahlia show held in Philadelphia September 8 to 13. It was an exhibition given by one of the leading dahlia growers in one of the largest stores in the country. The Peacock Dahlia Farms, of Williamstown Junction, N. J., displayed over 40,000 dahlia blooms, comprising 460 varieties, in the court of honor in John Wanamaker's. It was a purely commercial exhibition, thoroughly carried out in every detail, and it proved highly educational to the public. The dahlias were artistically staged by J. J. Habermehl's Sons and correctly labeled by L. K. Peacock. Each visitor received a pretty souvenir card with space for noting the varieties desired. These varieties were copied by the clerk at his desk, on cards with the purchaser's name, address, whether pay or charge, and where the roots are to be delivered next spring. Considerably over $1,000 worth of dahlia roots were sold during the week. The flowers were changed frequently, so that the show was always fresh and attractive. The star feature was the new peony-flowered dahlia, John Wanamaker, which Mr. Peacock considers his best production. The plant is said to be a strong grower. It makes heavy shoots from the base. The flowers are of immense size and of striking form. The color is lavender or violet, with many shades blended. This dahlia has been purchased by John Wanamaker and is named after him. It is said to be valued at $10,000. Phil.

NO MORE OBCONICA POISONING.

This is the time that so many of us are bothered with obconica poisoning. I have an extremely simple remedy, however, which will cure most cases, and, if used before handling obconica plants, it will ward off the trouble in all cases. Before handling obconica plants moisten both hands and arms with water and then rub Arm & Hammer Soda (saleratus) on the skin wherever the plants may touch you. If this precaution is taken, anyone handling these plants will not be bothered with either obconica itch or poisoning.

PERENNIALS SOWN INDOORS.

My early summer sowing of perennials has not given me good results. Would I gain by sowing now in the greenhouse such kinds as delphiniums, foxgloves, Shasta daisies, campanulas, gaillardias, etc., or would an early spring sowing, also in the greenhouse, be of more advantage? M. B.

The present is not a good time to sow any of the perennials named. Foxgloves, even if sown now and carried over winter in a cool house, would not be sufficiently strong to flower next summer; nor would campanulas, Canterbury bells. The best time to sow the latter is in May, and foxgloves should be sown not later than June. Delphiniums, gaillardias, lynchis and many other perennials can be sown under glass in January, later transplanted into flats and planted from these in beds or nursery rows outside, where they will make strong plants for selling in the fall. C. W.

REST FOR CYCLAMEN PLANTS.

After sowing cyclamen seed in August and keeping the plants growing all through the following winter and summer, would they naturally cease growing when August came, being a year old, and require a rest period, or can they be kept growing? I have a number of plants that have had that particular culture and they have ceased making new roots and foliage. What treatment under the circumstances would it be better to give them? H. H.

Cyclamens from seed sown last August will flower from fifteen to eighteen months later, and must be kept growing continuously; any rest would be ruinous. Plants carried over a second season are usually given a moderate rest after flowering, but not to the extent of completely drying them off.

Cyclamens should now be making considerable leaf growth and flowers should be showing on many of them. Possibly your plants are in need of repotting. If they are in 5-inch pots and well rooted, move them to 6½-inch or 7-inch pots. If in 4-inch pots, give them 5-inch or 5½-inch pots. They can be grown well for some weeks yet in a coldframe, in your Pennsylvania climate, or can be kept close to the glass in any light greenhouse. If they do not require repotting, examine the drainage and see that it is in good condition. As flowers begin to push, an occasional watering with liquid manure, or Clay's fertilizer dissolved in water or in the form of a top-dressing, will be of benefit. C. W.

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

Bedford Hills, N. Y.—The firm of E. C. Haines & Co., Inc., which has branches at Mount Kisco and White Plains, N. Y., and Stamford, Conn., has filed a petition in bankruptcy here, with liabilities $19,011 and nominal assets $24,225, consisting of real estate, $14,000; stock, $4,000; plant, $3,400; horses and wagons, $500; accounts, $2,250, and cash in bank, $25. The real estate consists of two and one-half acres of land, with six greenhouses, cottage, barn, etc. Emil V. Kratsch is president. The business has been established forty years. Judge Hough appointed Chas. L. Brookheim receiver, on a bond of $750. The company expects to make a settlement with its creditors.

DUTCH BULBS

PREPARATIONS FOR PLANTING.

Seasonable Notes.

The Dutch bulbs are now being delivered and in last week's edition of The Review the subject of preparations for planting, compost, storage, etc., were covered, with some notes on varieties and methods of handling tulips. The subject is continued this week, with notes on narcissi, hyacinths and the less extensively forced bulbous flowers, which are, nevertheless, coming into more general use, especially where stock is grown for retailing on the place.

Narcissi.

For pan culture these narcissi cannot be beaten: Golden Spur, Henry Irving, Victoria, Princeps and Empress. The short trumpet narcissi mostly grow too tall. The Polyanthus narcissi, however, as well as the various Poetaz varieties, are well adapted for pan culture.

For cutting, Trumpet Major has a great call as an early yellow. Princeps, while lacking the texture of Trumpet Major, is a cheap variety and is still grown in considerable numbers. Silver Spur is a good bicolor variety and Golden Spur, of course, is the most popular of all the big trumpet varieties for cutting. Emperor makes a noble flower. Victoria is splendid; so is Empress. In the way of short trumpet sorts, N. poeticus ornatus can be had in flower early. Barri conspicuus, Leeds Mrs. Langtry and Sir Watkin, the giant Welsh daffodil, are all cheap and popular varieties. Among the sweet-scented jonquils, rugulosus is the best and can be had in flower for Christmas. The Von Sions are far and away the favorites among double narcissi. They seem, however, to be losing ground compared with the singles. This is not to be wondered at, as the singles are vastly more beautiful.

Hyacinths.

How are the mighty fallen! This year for the first time hyacinths have been deposed from their place of honor as first in line in the bulb catalogues. Several prominent bulb dealers have courageously and properly placed tulips, especially late tulips, and narcissi in advance of hyacinths, and certainly this is as it should be, for tulips and narcissi are easily the most popular, both under glass and outdoors. Apart, however, from the Roman hyacinths, there is still some place for hyacinths of the Dutch type. The miniature bulbs are good for forcing in flats and are really better for cutting than the spikes of the larger grades of bulbs. For pan culture many use the bedding size, and, while these do not give big, fancy spikes, they pay better than the higher priced ones. For pan culture do not trust to any mixture of red, white or blue shades. Colors are pretty sure to show a considerable variation. Named kinds only should be used and a few good single standbys are: Gertrude, pink; Moreno, rosy pink; Robert Steiger, red; King of the Blues, dark blue; Queen of the Blues, light blue; Baroness Van Thuyll and L'Innocence, pure white. The yellows carry small spikes and it does not pay to bother with them. Doubles are less desirable than singles. It takes about twelve weeks after potting before hyacinths are well rooted and started, so that they can be forced. Many failures are due to housing too early, in a feverish rush to get some early flowers.

Ixias and Sparaxis.

Ixias and sparaxis succeed best grown in 6-inch pans. They should be treated somewhat differently from tulips and narcissi. Keep them in a coldframe until November, but do not cover them with coal ashes, as they soon start to which gives beautiful shades of orange and scarlet. Eight bulbs are sufficient in a 6-inch pan, and they should not be covered to a depth of over an inch.

Spanish Iris.

Spanish iris is practically the only iris grown in any quantity for forcing, and it is not a bulb which will tolerate much heat. Flats five inches deep suit this iris. Do not cover the soil at all, as the tops will appear in a comparatively short time. Keep them outdoors, but be prepared to protect them from drenching rains, until November; then store them in a well lighted coldframe or pit. House the earliest batch about the middle of December. A night temperature of 45 to 48 degrees is sufficient; never give over 50 degrees at night, or the plants will be ruined. The earliest housed iris will not flower before the middle of March, but successive batches will take considerably less time. A flat 24 x 12 will hold sixty to seventy bulbs. Cover them two inches deep. Splendid varieties are: Blanche Fleur, white; Chrysolora, yellow; Louise, pale blue; Count of Nassau, dark blue. The Spanish iris is inexpensive and, if properly grown, will pay better than any other Dutch bulb. Empty benches in any cool house are also suitable for its culture.

Gladioli.

The early-flowering gladioli have come much to the front of late years. These are nearly all forms of Gladiolus nanus and can be flowered from March 20 until July by bringing them along in batches. They want similar treatment to the iris, but they do not commence to grow so quickly. They are among the most beautiful and useful of bulbs for cutting. A few first-class sorts are: Colvillei The Bride, pure white; Blushing Bride, white with crimson blotches, a fine market sort; Peach Blossom, well described by its color, the best of the whole group; Salmon Queen, salmon orange, and Ackermanni, salmon red.

Anemones and Ranunculi.

Anemones and ranunculi may be grown in pans, but do better in flats or benches. Some of the best I have ever seen were in violet houses. Growers sometimes wonder what they can get to fill up benches in cool houses; besides, violets may go off and in anemones and ranunculi we have good crops with which to fill up any gaps. Cover the roots to the depth of about an inch and plant fairly thick. If in pans, eight bulbs will be sufficient for a 6-inch pan, and fifteen for an 8-inch pan. Anemone fulgens, brilliant scarlet, black center, is splendid; so is Anemone coronaria The Bride, pure white. There are also other colors of coronaria. The St. Brigid type, with grow. Place them in a cool house, well up to the light; 45 degrees at night is ample. Be careful not to overwater, or many will rot off just above the bulb. Give good drainage and a light but moderately rich compost. I have found a little leaf-mold, not too much decayed, to their liking. Ixia rosea plena Wonder and I. craterioides major are fine varieties.

Tritonias and Babianas.

Babianas are pretty spring-blooming bulbous plants. They have dark green, hairy foliage and somewhat resemble sparaxis. They embrace a wide range of colors, running through delicate lavender and pink to rose and crimson. Tritonias are prized by the up-to-date retailers, especially the variety crocata, semi-double flowers of many brilliant hues, have large stems and are beautiful. Either the Persian or turban ranunculus may be grown. They embrace about every imaginable color, some being almost coal black. Their treatment in pans, flats or benches is just the same as for anemones. They both like cold treatment, not over 45 degrees at night.

AT THE VICK SEED FARM.

The members of the Rochester Florists' Association, their wives and friends, numbering about sixty in all, were entertained at the Vick seed farm Friday, September 19, by James Vick's Sons. All present expressed the great pleasure it afforded them to see such a wonderful spectacle. The farms of the seed firm contain 250 acres and are in the town of Ogden. A tract of sixty acres is devoted to the growing of asters, thirty-five acres of which are now in full blossom. Under special cultivation, this field is a mammoth expanse of white, red, purple, lavender and pink blooms. Millions of flowers are presented to the eye in a solid mass, appearing in the distance as a large carpet of color. The field of asters is circled by a driveway, so that visitors can enjoy the display from every point of view. Through the kindness of W. H. Dildine, Geo. B. Hart, H. E. Bates and others, automobiles were provided to convey the guests around the farm. Two hayracks were also provided to meet the members at the trolley line. The members of the Florists' Association spent several hours examining the asters and were then entertained at luncheon by the firm.

Before disbanding, John Dunbar, president of the association, expressed the hearty thanks of the florists for the hospitality of the firm in providing such a delightful opportunity. Charles H. Vick, president of the firm, acknowledged the thanks of Mr. Dunbar, and said he only regretted that the invitations had not been issued earlier, so that a larger number might have taken advantage of the opportunity.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The equinoctial weather arrived September 20, a little ahead of the schedule. It was the end of another bad week in the wholesale cut flower market. Shipments were lighter than expected, quality was lacking and there was little life or interest manifested with the usual week-end buying for over Sunday. Another week should see the end of this lethargy and the start of the fall activity. The first killing frost is depended upon to end the supply of outdoor asters and gladioli. In fact, shipments of these have already been lessened, and only the greenhouse-grown gladioli are now in evidence. There are few good asters, and no surplus yet of fancy dahlias. The dahlia shipments last year lasted until the end of October.

There is considerable mildew on the roses, owing to the cloudy and unfavorable weather. American Beauties hold well, with 20 cents as the limit for the best of them, and their size and quality are improving rapidly. The same may be said of all rose shipments, and Shawyer, Russell, Milady and all the other favorites and novelties of a year ago are making a strong bid for perpetuity. Prices for the lower grades of all roses are gradually improving. The carnation is again making its annual claim for recognition. Stems are longer, the size of flowers nearer normal, and by the end of the week there will be no lack of supply.

Valley was the sensation of the week. It was quite scarce, and at times touched $5 per hundred; $4 seemed to be the closing price as the week ended. Lilies also were in wide demand and maintained their higher level of $6 per hundred. Orchids are now abundant and prices are falling, as was expected. There is a great abundance of tritomas, hydrangeas and tuberoses, and the fall palm and fern deliveries grow in quantity every day.

Various Notes.

Flower shows are announced on every side of New York by the gardening societies, the majority of them in October or the first week of November. The dahlia show of the American Institute this week, in the Engineering building, will be a fitting opening, and the big mum exhibition in the Museum of Natural History on Seventy-seventh street a little later will draw a large attendance.

The auctions of plants, bulbs, etc., on Vesey street began last week, and will continue every Tuesday and Friday until snow flies. One of the largest buyers last week was J. B. Nugent. The attendance is largely suburban and will grow rapidly. Some fine bargains for retail florists can be found frequently, especially in decorative palms.

Louis Schmutz, Jr., and Mrs. Schmutz sailed for home on the St. Louis, September 13, after an enjoyable trip in Europe.

A. Kakuda, of the Yokohama Nursery Co., will return to New York about the middle of October.

Charles Schwacke, formerly with Chas. F. Myer, has opened an office in the Gherkin building.

In the severe hail storm which visited Long Island a short time ago, much glass was destroyed in Bay Shore, Islip and Babylon. John Ingram, of Oyster Bay, lost 1,200 square feet of glass and was uninsured.

R. T. Brown, of the Cottage Gardens Co., Queens, N. Y., announces the commencement of the cutting of the new crop of Matchless September 15.

The exhibitors of floricultural products at the Syracuse State Fair last week from this section will hesitate long before repeating their enterprise in its behalf. As one of our prominent exhibitors said, the accommodations and appreciation accorded were "a gigantic joke."

J. K. Allen had a grand display of Golden Glow mums Saturday, grown by Charles Hunt, of Staten Island.

New Rochelle had the worst fire last week in twenty years. S. W. Hitchcock was one of the sufferers.

The Growers' Cut Flower Co., Manager Coan says, will handle a big line of plants of all kinds this season, grown largely by members of the company.

M. A. Bowe used 1,000 yards of royal purple ribbon, American Beauty roses, immense quantities of laurel and many palms and bay trees in the city hall decoration for Mayor Gaynor's lying in state. Nearly every prominent florist in the two cities had orders for floral designs for this occasion.

M. C. Ford says H. & E. J. Hession, of Flatbush, are cutting carnations once more.

Wm. Kessler says his cut flower department will have four times as many shippers this year as last, lilies predominating.

The American Institute has moved its headquarters from West Forty-fourth street to the Cottle Co. building, Eighth avenue and Twenty-third street.

Maurice Glass was visiting his friends and business associates last week in Boston.

Paul Meconi is now well established in his new store. He has had no vacation and says he even has been too busy to visit his growers this fall.

Herbert B. Buck arrived on the steamer Adriatic, September 5, after an extended vacation in Europe. Mr. Buck is one of A. T. Boddington's travelers.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bunyard have returned from a holiday at Blue Point, L. I.

C. C. Johnson, of the MacNiff Horticultural Co., is rejoicing in the birth of a son September 14.

The officers of the New York Florists' Supply Co., Inc., are: President, George Cotsonas; vice-president, N. Lecakes; secretary, K. Psychoyios; treasurer, A. Cova; directors, N. Lecakes, Geo. Cotsonas and E. Cotsonas.

There are some good displays of named gladioli and other seasonable flowers in all the seedsmen's windows. Barclay street seems now to be the center of this industry.

The Stumpp & Walter Co. will illustrate what can be done in decorative window art in their new store this week, where they are now comfortably settled.

S. J. Reuter & Son, of Westerly, R. I., are sending some fine roses to John Young.

Clarence Slinn's headquarters are now at 103 West Twenty-eighth street.

A. J. Langjahr is back again on Twenty-eighth street after his recovery from an automobile accident.

The Essex County Florists' Club has been formed at Newark, N. J. The officers are: President, Edward Jacobi; vice-president, G. W. Mueller; secretary, John Crossley; treasurer, August Begerow.

The Growers' Cut Flower Co. reports selling mums this week at $5 per dozen, blooms of a new variety.

Frank Zuber, who was injured in a railroad wreck at College Point, will recover.

One of the largest weddings of the season was the Blair-Clark affair at Bernardsville, N. J., last week. The decorations were by Wadley & Smythe.

The dahlia show of the American Institute opened September 23, at the Engineers' building, on Thirty-ninth street, and will close September 25. It is a fine success. It is a splendid hall, affording ample space for the numerous large exhibits and for the big attendance. There are fine displays by Messrs. Popp, Childs, Cottam, Totty and others. R. Vincent, Jr., of White Marsh, Md., is here with a large display not for competition, which was awarded a special prize.

Charles Haberman, the Broadway retailer, is commended for the hero medal—he saved a woman's life. Seeing her hanging by the hands from an upper window, he ran up three flights of stairs and caught her just as she was about to fall.

Frank Zuber was in a railroad wreck at College Point in which four were killed and forty injured. Mr. Zuber was not seriously hurt. P. J. Smith was one of those who helped to care for him. James Coyle also was waiting for the same train. J. Austin Shaw.

KANSAS CITY, MO.

The Market.

Business has increased a little, in a general way, and the supply of stock has decreased since the cold weather made its appearance. The change has caused the roses to begin to color up a great deal better and increase in size, as well. Prices have advanced. Carnations have made their appearance. Asters were plentiful last week, but soon will be over. Mums also have made their appearance, but in comparison with last year seem to have deteriorated in size. Business was good last week, as the fall openings called for a large quantity of stock.

Various Notes.

The W. L. Rock Flower Co. has a fine lot of carnations benched. Other stock also is in good shape.

Arthur Newell reports business good this month, with a big increase over last month.

Sam Murray has a fine lot of pot plants at his greenhouses and from the looks of his begonias he is going to have some splendid stock for Christmas.

W. J. Barnes says the fall openings this year are keeping him on the jump and will continue until the end of this month.

Ed Humfeld has had a busy week with funeral work. His stock is in splendid shape.

The Rosery has been growing young poinsettia plants all summer and has just disposed of a batch of 4,000.

Mrs. T. R. Moseley reports business as being much better since the fall openings began.

Miss Myrtle E. Jarrett, one of the twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Jarrett, and J. H. Shore, of the Ford Motor Car Co., were married last week.

Henry Kusik has returned from his trip to Europe and says his firm is receiving some good stock, especially in the rose line, and reports that business is much better. They have just received a supply of fancy goods for Christmas.

The Alpha Floral Co. reports that business is being injured to a great extent by the buildings being erected in the neighborhood.

The park department recently ordered a No. 7 Kroeschell boiler for the houses in Swope park. W. J. B.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

The more general appearance of chrysanthemums and the gradual passing of asters were the most conspicuous features of the local market last week. Funeral work continues good, but aside from that there is practically little activity. Roses are coming more plentifully and in better quality, and the same may be said regarding carnations. Another ten days or a fortnight will witness the last of the outdoor flowers, after which the demands upon the florists will increase.

Various Notes.

Word has been received here of the death in Boston of Sarah C. Hogg, widow of Walter S. Hogg, formerly a florist of this city.

Walter S. Sword is repairing his greenhouses and erecting an office building at Valley Falls.

T. O'Connor has been decorating the interior of his new store at Union and Fulton streets with fancy baskets, vases, etc., so that it is one of the most attractive in the city.

F. B. Peirce has leased the greenhouses on Dexter street for a term of years.

Mr. and Mrs. Timothy L. O'Connor have returned from their summer home at Narragansett Pier.

William Doel, of Pascoag, was in New York last week to meet his wife, who was returning from a summer's visit with relatives in England.

Joseph Koppelman was in New York and Philadelphia last week, purchasing stock for his wholesale store.

Elias Pickles has returned from a vacation trip to Atlantic City and resumed his duties with W. S. Pino.

C. B. Knickman, of McHutchison & Co., New York, was a business visitor in this city last week.

Mr. Hall, formerly with Reed & Keller, was in the city last week representing Wertheimer Bros., of New York.

Louis Patry, who has been employed at Narragansett Pier during the summer, has returned to this city.

At the opening of the new Sumerfield Furniture Store last week there was a large and handsome floral display. Among the pieces were an immense floral rocking chair in asters and a small tabaret from Fishelson & Son, Boston.

Henry Patry has returned to the employ of Johnston Bros., after several weeks' absence from the city.

Mrs. H. Howard Pepper, wife of H. H. Pepper, manager of the Melrose Gardens, leaves in a few days for Boston en route for Rangoon, Burma, to visit her mother, who is a missionary there and whom she has not seen for eighteen years. Mrs. Pepper will be absent about six months.

George L. Stillman, of Westerly, has been having unusual good fortune with his dahlia exhibitions at the fairs and societies, and has captured a large number of prizes. W. H. M.

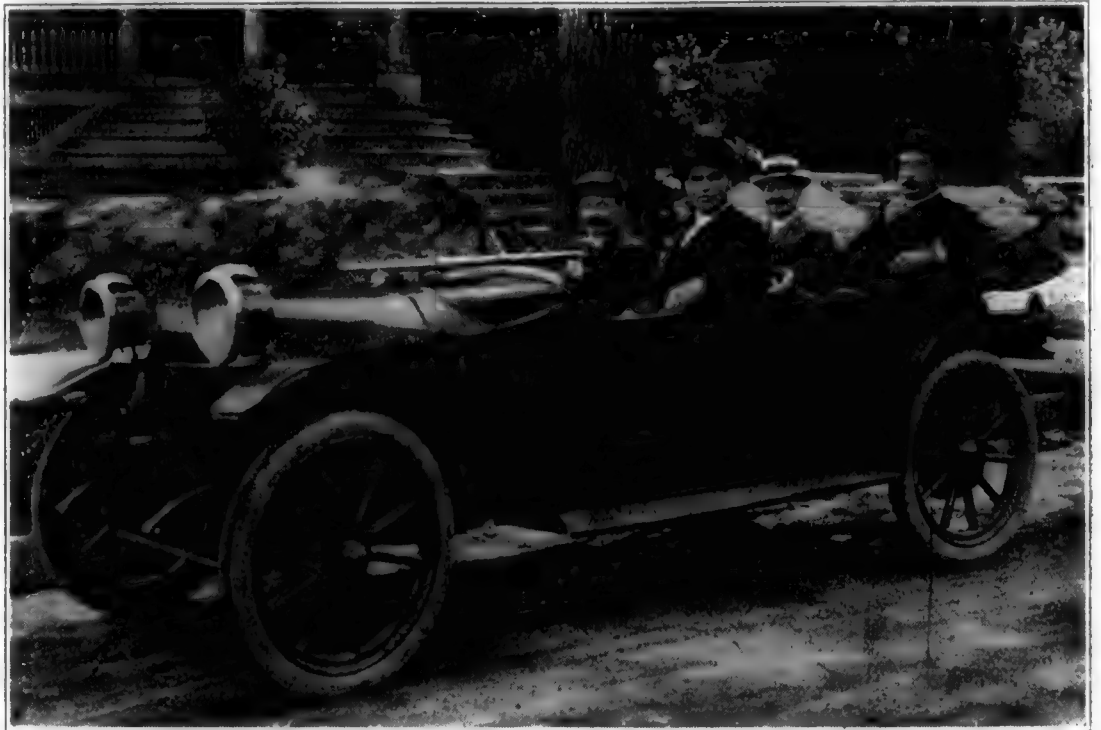

Andrew & Noble are going out of business for the present. Their plans for the future are not known.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

Severe frosts in this city and in many of the near-by towns September 13 and 14, did a great deal of damage. The dahlias, which were coming into blossom quite nicely, are all blackened with frost and are of no use whatever. Many of the local growers will suffer enormous losses, on both dahlias and asters; the latter have been in poor condition during the whole summer. Business during the last week has been good among the retail florists, with prospects of a steady increase. There have been a large number of September weddings and many have needed large quantities of flowers. Funeral work seems to be a regular stand-by and is divided quite evenly among our up-town florists.

American Beauty roses are extremely fine, their fragrance being especially noticeable. Extra good Sunbursts are arriving and are placed quite readily. Mrs. Aaron Ward is of good color and stem. Mrs. Hillingdon is a strong favorite. Red roses other than Beauties are scarce, but Double White Killarneys are plentiful. Other varieties are all good and have shown great improvement in the last two weeks. Harrisii lilies are scarce and valley is none too plentiful. Carnations which come from the new roots are of good color and fragrance, but, naturally for this time of year, their stems are short. Gladioli are on the wane, but a great many of the white and lighter shades are used extensively in design work. Yellow chrysanthemums are arriving in small shipments and sell readily. Smilax, asparagus and maidenhair are quite plentiful. Dutch bulbs are being shown in various stores and prices seem to be about as usual.

Various Notes.

Visitors this week are A. E. Viaud, of the Burlington Willow Ware Shops, Burlington, Ia., and S. A. Dawson, of Krauss & Co., New York city.

At the state fair held at Syracuse, N. Y., recently Jacob Thomann & Son succeeded in winning two first prizes in floral designs and a first for six Rochester White gladioli. We are glad to state that Mr. Thomann, who was taken seriously ill at the Minneapolis convention, is improving, although still unable to leave his bed.

Chas. B. Emmons, of Pittsford, N. Y., is erecting a new greenhouse 20x60, of Lord & Burnham construction.

George B. Hart was one of the directors of the Rochester Industrial Exposition.

H. E. Wilson is cutting some fine yellow chrysanthemums.

Chas. E. Sharpe is working for the Rochester Floral Co.

George T. Boucher reports business as extremely good. He has been kept quite busy of late with funeral work.

MOTORING IN MILWAUKEE.

A recent week found Harry Papworth, of New Orleans, and J. J. Karins and J. J. Goudy, of the Dreer forces, Sundaying in Milwaukee. C. C. Pollworth got out his car and took the visitors for a ride and the snapshot artist caught them. In the picture Mr. Karins is seen seated beside Mr. Pollworth, who is at the wheel. Mr. Papworth is the large gentleman in the rear seat, and Mr. Goudy the man with the smile.

OBITUARY

George McWilliam.

George McWilliam, gardener at the estate of George Marston Whittin, at Woonsocket, R. I., died September 13 at his home on the estate, from a complication of diseases. He had not been in the best of health since a fall in the greenhouses some years ago. Over a month ago he was taken to the New England Baptist hospital in Boston to be operated on for bladder trouble. When he returned home a week ago no hope was given for his recovery.

Mr. McWilliam was born sixty-seven years ago in Stranraer, Wigtownshire, Scotland, and came to this country at the age of 27. He worked first on the estate of R. M. Platt, at Mt. Auburn, then took charge of the estates first of Josiah Lasell and then of G. W. Whittin. His exhibitions at various shows have won him many prizes, especially for orchids, and at the last International Flower Show, in New York, he was one of the judges. He was a regular attendant of the Congregational church and a member of the A. F. and A. M., and R. A. M. He is survived by his wife, a brother in Nova Scotia and two sisters in Scotland.

William Elias.

William Elias, superintendent of the estate of Walter H. Phelps, at Bernardsville, N. J., died at the quarantine station in New York harbor, September 13, on his return from a visit to England. He was for a number of years in charge of the estate of William D. Sloane, near Springfield, Mass., and made many displays at the flower shows that proved winners. From the Sloane estate he went to Noroton, Conn., and from there to his last position at Bernardsville, N. J. He was 61 years old and is survived by his wife and two daughters.

Galesburg, Ill.—The heating plant at H. F. Drury's greenhouses was destroyed by fire September 15. The damage amounts to about $1,000. It is believed the fire started from a pile of slack, which had twice previously been found burning.

long before repeating their enterprise on its behalf. As one of our prominent exhibitors said, the accommodations and appreciation accorded were "a gigantic joke."

J. K. Allen had a grand display of Golden Glow mums Saturday, grown by Charles Hunt, of Staten Island.

New Rochelle had the worst fire last week in twenty years. S. W. Hitchcock was one of the sufferers.

The Growers' Cut Flower Co., Manager Coan says, will handle a big line of plants of all kinds this season, grown largely by members of the company.

M. A. Bowe used 1,000 yards of royal purple ribbon, American Beauty roses, immense quantities of laurel and many palms and bay trees in the city hall decoration for Mayor Gaynor's lying in state. Nearly every prominent florist in the two cities had orders for floral designs for this occasion.

M. C. Ford says H. & E. J. Hession, of Flatbush, are cutting carnations once more.

Wm. Kessler says his cut flower department will have four times as many shippers this year as last, lilies predominating.

The American Institute has moved its headquarters from West Forty-fourth street to the Cottle Co. building, Eighth avenue and Twenty third street.

Maurice Glass was visiting his friends and business associates last week in Boston.

Paul Meconi is now well established in his new store. He has had no vacation and says he even has been too busy to visit his growers this fall.

Herbert B. Buck arrived on the steamer Adriatic, September 5, after an extended vacation in Europe. Mr. Buck is one of A. T. Boddington's travelers.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bunyard have returned from a holiday at Blue Point, L. I.

C. C. Johnson, of the MacNiff Horticultural Co., is rejoicing in the birth of a son September 14.

The officers of the New York Florists' Supply Co., Inc., are: President, George Cotsonas; vice-president, N. Leekes; secretary, K. Psichoyios; treasurer, A. Cova; directors, N. Leekes, Geo. Cotsonas and E. Cotsonas.

There are some good displays of named gladioli and other seasonable flowers in all the seedsmen's windows. Barclay street seems now to be the center of this industry.

The Stumm & Walter Co. will illustrate what can be done in decorative window art in their new store this week, where they are now comfortably settled.

S. J. Renter & Son, of Westerly, R. I., are sending some fine roses to John Young.

Clarence Shum's headquarters are now at 103 West Twenty eighth street.

A. J. Langjahr is back again on Twenty eighth street after his recovery from an automobile accident.

The Essex County Florists' Club has been formed at Newark, N. J. The officers are: President, Edward Jacobi; vice-president, G. W. Mueller; secretary, John Crossley; treasurer, August Begerow.

The Growers' Cut Flower Co. reports selling mums this week at $5 per dozen, blooms of a new variety.

Frank Zuber, who was injured in a railroad wreck at College Point, will recover.

One of the largest weddings of the season was the Blair-Clark affair at Bernardsville, N. J., last week. The decorations were by Wadley & Smythe.

The dahlia show of the American Institute opened September 23, at the Engineers' building, on Thirty-ninth street, and will close September 25. It is a fine success. It is a splendid hall, affording ample space for the numerous large exhibits and for the big attendance. There are fine displays by Messrs. Popp, Childs, Cottam, Totty and others. R. Vincent, Jr., of White Marsh, Md., is here with a large display not for competition, which was awarded a special prize.

Charles Haberman, the Broadway retailer, is commended for the hero medal—he saved a woman's life. Seeing her hanging by the hands from an upper window, he ran up three flights of stairs and caught her just as she was about to fall.

Frank Zuber was in a railroad wreck at College Point in which four were killed and forty injured. Mr. Zuber was not seriously hurt. P. J. Smith was one of those who helped to care for him. James Coyle also was waiting for the same train. J. Austin Shaw

KANSAS CITY, MO

The Market.

Business has increased a little, in a general way, and the supply of stock has decreased since the cold weather made its appearance. The change has caused the roses to begin to color up a great deal better and increase in size, as well. Prices have advanced. Carnations have made their appearance. Asters were plentiful last week, but soon will be over. Mums also have made their appearance, but in comparison with last year seem to have deteriorated in size. Business was good last week, as the fall openings called for large quantity of stock.

Various Notes.

The W. L. Rock Flower Co. has a fine lot of carnations benched. Other stock also is in good shape.

Arthur Newell reports business good this month, with a big increase over last month.

Sam Murray has a fine lot of poe plants at his greenhouses and from the looks of his begonias he is going to have some splendid stock for Christmas.

W. J. Barnes says the fall openings this year are keeping him on the jump and will continue until the end of this month.

Ed Humfeld has had a busy week with funeral work. His stock is in splendid shape.

The Rosery has been growing young poinsettia plants all summer and has just disposed of a batch of 4,000.

Mrs. T. R. Moseley reports business as being much better since the fall openings began.

Miss Myrtle E. Jarrett, one of the twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Jarrett, and J. H. Shore, of the Ford Motor Car Co., were married last week.

Henry Kusik has returned from his trip to Europe and says his firm is receiving some good stock, especially in the rose line, and reports that business is much better. They have just received a supply of fancy goods for Christmas.

The Alpha Floral Co. reports that business is being injured to a great extent by the buildings being erected in the neighborhood.

The park department recently ordered a No. 7 Kroeschell boiler for the houses in Swope park. W. J. B.

FROM COAST TO COAST.

The accompanying illustration was prepared from a photograph taken at Minneapolis during the convention last month. It illustrates the bringing closer together of the prominent men from the Atlantic seaboard and the Pacific slope, the latter in the person of T. H. Wright, of Wright's Flower Shop, of Los Angeles, Cal., the former in the person of Robert Shoeh, of the M. Rice Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

The more general appearance of chrysanthemums and the gradual passing of asters were the most conspicuous features of the local market last week. Funeral work continues good but aside from that there is practically little activity. Roses are coming more plentifully and in better quality, and the same may be said regarding carnations. Another ten days or a fortnight will witness the last of the outdoor flowers, after which the demands upon the florists will increase.

Various Notes.

Word has been received here of the death in Boston of Sarah C. Hogg, widow of Walter S. Hogg, formerly a florist of this city.

Walter S. Sword is repairing his greenhouses and erecting an office building at Valley Falls.

T. O'Connor has been decorating the interior of his new store at Union and Fulton streets with fancy baskets vases, etc., so that it is one of the most attractive in the city.

F. B. Peirce has leased the greenhouses on Dexter street for a term of years.

Mr. and Mrs. Timothy L. O'Connor have returned from their summer home at Narragansett Pier.

William Doel, of Pascoag, was in New York last week to meet his wife, who was returning from a summer's visit with relatives in England.

Joseph Koppelman was in New York and Philadelphia last week, purchasing stock for his wholesale store.

Elias Pickles has returned from a vacation trip to Atlantic City and resumed his duties with W. S. Pino.

Ipswich, Mass.—Henry Lawrence has built a greenhouse here and expects to cater to the local trade.

Alexandria, Ind.—H. A. Maxiner has sold his greenhouse to M. E. Goode, of Jackson, Minn., who will move here with his family to take charge of the plant October 1. Mr. Maxiner and his family will probably go to Cuba, where he has some property.

Fort Thomas, Ky.—A fire of unknown origin destroyed the new bungalow of Henry Gorkel September 17 and caused a loss of about $4,000. Mr. Gorkel discovered the blaze about 4 o'clock and summoned the fire department. The firemen were unable to check the flames and the home was burned to the ground. This was the second time the bungalow burned. About six months ago the house caught fire and was completely destroyed. Mr. Gorkel is in doubt whether he will build again. The greenhouses were not damaged.

RESULTS.

We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

ROSES in most of the large city wholesale markets are unusually good for this time of year.

A SHARP fall in temperature last week, in many places to levels unknown for September, shortened supplies and gave business a boost.

THERE still is an active demand for field-grown carnations, although it appears that the loss from stem-rot after benching has not been so heavy this year as usual.

IN the San Francisco letter, on another page of this issue, is a report of the marriage of J. R. Fotheringham, of Tarrytown, N. Y. Mr. Fotheringham has so many friends, east and west, that the news is of general interest.

THE designers of the slit skirt and other articles of feminine adornment have done florists a favor by inventing fashion week, or style show week, as the name for the period of autumn store openings.
Getting these affairs concentrated into one week creates a spirit of rivalry that tends toward a more lavish use of flowers.

PRIZE WINNERS WANTED.

C. N. Ruedlinger, 2924 Aldrich avenue, Minneapolis, who was chairman of the sports committee for the convention, writes: "We have on hand two prizes which were not claimed at the
S. A. F. outing at Tonka Bay, August
23. One prize is for a Miss Raymer, who won third prize in the girls' race, 10 years and under. The other prize is for a Miss Nelson, who won third prize in the ball throwing contest. We have been unable to locate these parties and hope an answer will be received after having the paragraph in the paper.
Their prizes will be sent them if they write to me and I will see that they are mailed at once."

THE STORY OF A HALF PAGE AD.

Advertising in The Review has become so generally recognized as the principal and standard means of marketing florists' crops at wholesale that the old question, "Does advertising pay?"
hardly ever is heard; it is not a question; everybody who ever has offered seasonable stock in The Review knows from experience that advertising pays;
at least, that advertising in The Review pays. The point is that a good many do not recognize how extremely well it pays. In most cases no records of results and costs are kept. But here is a letter that tells the story of a half-page ad:

Please cut out our carnation ad; have more orders than plants and have sold close to 50,000.
—C. H. Frey, Lincoln, Neb., September 18, 1913.

When this letter was written the half-page advertisement to which it referred had had three insertions, one in the Convention Number, and two in September. The original offer was "50,000 field-grown carnations plants, $5 per hundred; $45 per thousand." Allowing for all sales being made at the thousand rate, the total was $2,250—and the cost of three insertions of the half page was only $31.50.

Here was $2,250 worth of business obtained for $31.50! a little over one per cent! Not one and one-half per cent.

How otherwise does any florist get sales so cheaply?

Is it any wonder that when once a grower has a surplus and finds how easily The Review turns it into cash, he keeps on season after season growing larger and larger quantities to wholesale?

A good many rely on classified ads, which bring splendid results in comparison to their trifling cost, but this is the story of $2,250 of business IN THREE WEEKS as the result of big, strong display—and it cost only $31.50.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

Always susceptible to weather influences, the Chicago wholesale cut flower market has had an experience this week that reminded the old-timers of bygone days. A cold wave unprecedented for this date struck the growers September 20 and held for three days.
Coming just at a time when business activity was on the increase, the effect was more apparent than it otherwise would have been. Cuts were sharply curtailed in practically all departments, while the demand increased strongly.
It is an axiom that whenever the supply in the Chicago market is sharply cut down there will be an equally sharp increase in demand. The reason is that the same condition of reduced supply prevails through a large area. It was natural under the circumstances that prices should stiffen. There was a buyer for practically every good flower, so that the only bargains offered were stock of questionable quality.

But the Chicago market now is so big that there always are flowers for everyone; perhaps not always just the variety or length of stem, or at the price, that is specially in request, but nevertheless there are flowers.

While cuts of Beauties became lighter there continue to be plenty of long stems for those who can pay seasonable prices. The supply of short Beauties is

YOU will gain by using OUR roses

THIS WEEK a prominent out-of-town buyer had an order so large and important that he came to Chicago in person to buy the stock, principally Beauties and Roses. After spending two days in the market, HE GAVE US PRACTICALLY THE ENTIRE ORDER. Of course, this buyer could have accomplished as much with a 2-cent stamp, or a telephone call, but doubtless SEEING WITH HIS OWN EYES was worth his time and expense. We always are glad to have Rose buyers visit the market—it almost invariably leads to an increase in our orders.

QUALITY ROSES IN QUANTITY---ALL VARIETIES

CATTLEYAS

This week we have the first of the fine fall crop of Labiatas. These Orchids are second to none, and the supply will be steady for some weeks, by which time other varieties will be ready. You can count on us for Orchids.

VALLEY

You can depend upon us at all times for valley. If you run short, a wire to Amling will bring the valley you need. But a good way would be to place a standing order for regular shipments.

BEAUTIES

The trade can count on us for Beauties of the best quality every day in the year. We aim never to be without Beauties in the ice-box awaiting the call of the Retailers. The season of large supply of short Beauties is past; the cut now is principally long stems, but we have a fair proportion of medium lengths.

CARNATIONS

You can use Carnations freely again—our new crops are of a quality that will please your customers. Nice clean flowers in large quantity, stems rapidly lengthening; most of them long enough now to please your trade. All colors.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

You can take any order for Mums that gives us a little time. Daily arrivals, but not long unsold. Principally Golden Glow, yellow, but also can supply Smith's Advance, white.

EASTER LILIES

We can supply fine Easter Lilies every day in the year.

NOW IS THE TIME TO TRY RANDALL'S

Stock has shortened up as a result of an unseasonable cold wave and the market is, for a brief time, in a condition to afford a real test of a wholesaler's ability to take care of his customers. Anybody can fill orders when everything is plentiful, but now—well, if you're disappointed elsewhere, try Randall—NOW.

CARNATIONS

You can get all the Carnations you need if you order of us. We now have large daily supplies and the stock is first-class. Growers who planted early are cutting with good stems and we can supply whatever grade your order calls for. All colors.

ROSES

Buyers will find here all the novelty roses as well as the standard varieties. Good stock always Radiance, Killarney, White Killarney, Mrs. Shawyer, Mrs. Russell, Mrs. Ward, Milady, Sunburst, Bulgarie.

VALLEY

We never are without fancy Valley and can furnish on wire order. You should have a daily or every-other-day shipment of this from us, but don't miss a sale because you haven't got the stock. Take the order and wire us.

MUMS

We are prepared to fill your orders for Mums. Can furnish any quantity if given time to cut the stock and get it in from the greenhouses. Our Golden Glow are fine; the best in town. Also good supplies of white.

Once try our Fancy Cut Ferns and You will use no others.

extremely light, as it always becomes about this time of the year, and medium Beauties, as usual, are short of the demand. There scarcely ever are enough 12-inch to 24-inch Beauties to meet the demand, there being so many more buyers who can use these than who can use the extra lengths.

Buyers who could not pay the price of long Beauties this week have had to turn to other roses. The result has been an improved demand for Richmond, which has been fairly plentiful, for Rhea Reid, which always is in light supply, and for Milady, which is just now enjoying special popularity. The buyers take Milady in preference to any other red rose. Of course there are about as many Killarney in the market as of all other roses combined, excepting only White Killarney. The latter has again been in request, especially in the shorter grades, for funeral work. There is noticeable improvement in the quality of the Killarney varieties. Stems are longer; short roses are no longer a problem with the wholesalers. Mrs. Russell is probably the most popular rose of the day, but supplies are extremely small. Mrs. Shawyer is liked. Bulgarie is in fair supply and selling well. Sunburst is fairly plentiful and is extremely fine. Ward is not in large supply.

Carnations are much more plentiful than they were, in spite of the cold wave. Stems are lengthening slowly. The stock is selling well, but at moderate figures as yet. White is in special demand this week. Again this year the bulk of the stock seen is Enchantress.

There still are large arrivals of asters, but quality is deteriorating; fancy asters are scarce and sell well. The few gladioli still coming in are extremely small. Chrysanthemums are more plentiful, but the quality is not especially good. There has been some complaint from out-of-town buyers who thought the stock was not so good as it should have been; but the first mums seldom are anything to brag about. Golden Glow still predominates, but there are a few Monrovia and whites are more plentiful this week. Valley is moving well. Cattleyas are much more abundant, labiata having made its appearance this week, both locally grown and from the east. Easter lilies have turned suddenly scarce; there is difficulty in filling orders. Dahlias which arrive in good condition are selling well, but the quantity is small.

The return of warm weather September 24 has eased the market.

WE ARE AFTER THE Beauty Business

And we are getting it—because we have the quality the buyers want and the quantity—(mostly long stems) that makes it possible to fill every order with selected stock. Note our low price.

Association Meeting.

The Cook County Florists' Association met, with a good attendance, September 18, at the Tavern. F. D. Wallace talked on greenhouse insurance and Walter S. McGee on fertilizers. A letter was received from President Guy W. French, of the Chicago Florists' Club, announcing that he had been instructed by his organization to appoint a committee on affiliation. The association voted to authorize President Kohlbrand to appoint a similar committee. The word used is affiliation, not amalgamation, though many members of both organizations appear to favor the latter.

James Morton was elected to membership and applications were received from Jos. Seidowitz, 1456 Oakdale avenue; Fred J. Wolfram, 2434 North Richmond street, and Henry Fredrick, Des Plaines, Ill.

Various Notes.

Harry C. Rowe announces that he has leased a large space on the second floor at the northeast corner of Wabash avenue and Washington street, to which he will remove October 1 for the purpose of conducting a wholesale and retail business in flowers and supplies. Ed Hauswirth is now associated with Mr. Rowe. The building to which Mr. Rowe is removing is one which years ago was filled by wholesalers, but the character of the business of the block steadily is changing from wholesale to retail. Bassett & Washburn now are the only wholesale florists located in this block on Wabash avenue.

At Peter Reinberg's, Tim Matchen says that this has been the finest year in a long time for the sale of field-grown carnation plants.

Henry E. Klunder, well known in retail circles, again is in town. He left Chicago to enter the employ of the Hill-Heller Co., when that concern opened a retail store at Indianapolis, but more recently has been at Atlanta, Ga.

A. L. Randall was in town September 22. He is preparing to reopen his new residence in Rogers Park, having spent the summer on his fruit farm in Michigan.

Miss Nettie Parker, who has charge of the office work of the Chicago Carnation Co., had her tonsils removed September 20 and has since been confined to her home.

Geo. Collins, formerly foreman for Peter Reinberg, and now employed in a similar capacity by Henry Smith at Grand Rapids, has been in town for a few days.

this week for the autumn opening of Mandel Bros. H. Wittbold had the decoration for Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co., using autumn foliage and creating an extremely attractive effect.

Robert S. Edgar, of Waverley, Mass., arrived in Chicago this week, accompanied by Mrs. Edgar, and will be foreman for Frank Oechslein.

A lease to run ten years has been signed by Lubliner & Trinz for the store at 41 South Wabash avenue, where they will open October 15. The location is one that is much favored by florists. Being the first store north of Monroe street, it is only a stone's throw from the establishments of John Mangel, Bohannon Floral Co., the Williams Floral Shop and the present store of Harry Rowe. It is stated by Joseph Trinz that the present store on Washington street will be operated for a time as a branch and that another store soon will be opened in addition to the new Wabash avenue place.

D. A. Robertson, of the Adams-Robertson Co., has been on a trip to his old home at Boston.

Fred Price, of J. A. Budlong's shipping department, is back at work after a vacation of two weeks. During his absence he paid visits to Baltimore, Washington and Pittsburgh.

The E. C. Amling Co. reports that Western Springs cut the first Cattleya labiata September 22.

Ernest Farley, with A. L. Vaughan & Co., organized a bowling team of florists that has entered in the North Chicago Bowling League. The members of the squad are W. Wolf, E. R. Farley, John Huebner, Wm. Graff and Fred Price.

The Bohannon Floral Co. says there is no complaint on the way business has picked up since the beginning of September. Weddings have brought in considerable work and a number of club decorations have added to the usual fall trade.

Chairman William Lorman, of the Cook County Florists' Association's committee on sports, called a meeting for the purpose of organizing the bowlers, for September 23 at Zech & Mann's store.

A. Miller, of Henderson & Co., left September 19 on an eastern trip.

Harry Manheim, with Hoerber Bros., is tied up for two weeks, on jury service in the local courts. Last year, just as the season opened, F. C. Hoerber was drawn for the same duties, so it is no longer considered a joke.

The first shipment of goldfish of the season arrived, September 24, at the establishment of the Auburndale Goldfish Co. K. N. Cooper, the manager, is looking for a heavy business this fall.

Ice machinery exhibited by the Kroeschell Bros. Ice Machine Co. at the International Refrigeration Exhibition attracted considerable attention.

C. L. Washburn acted as host to the three Poehlmann brothers one day last week and, after taking them through the new greenhouses at Greggs Station, he served a chicken dinner at his Hinsdale home. During the afternoon the party visited the other establishments around Downers Grove, Des Plaines and Libertyville via automobiles.

An interesting exhibit at the International Refrigeration Exhibition is an artificially cooled florists' refrigerator displayed by the McCray Refrigerator Co., of Kendallville, Ind. The exhibit of the United Refrigerator & Ice Machine Co., of Kenosha, also is one that will appeal to florists who are inclined to be progressive. The show, which is being held in the auditorium at the Union Stock Yards, closes October 1.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Eastern Market.

The cut flower market has shown increasing activity, at prices that are generally low. The dahlia is the leading flower; a quickened demand from out-of-town evidences a broadening market for this showy autumn flower. The city stores are not using many more dahlias than they did last year, perhaps hardly so many, but the cities within the shipping distance have learned the value of the dahlia at this season and they are using it freely. Most of the orders go out in named varieties. These of course are the higher grade orders; some are sent out in mixed lots, or at seller's selection.

The conditions surrounding the other flowers change rapidly just now. Asters, while still plentiful, often are unequal to the demand. This of course refers to the better grades. Roses show increased receipts of novelties with the approach of the debutante season. Mrs. Russell, Irish Fire Flame and Sweetheart all have come. The standard pink varieties are in demand at prices a little below last season. White has been selling well, but red goes slowly, although of fine quality. Beauties are in heavy supply. Valley has been quite scarce. Cattleya labiata is becoming more plentiful. The price has fallen. Carnations are improving day by day, both in flower and in stem. The price has advanced. There is a fair supply of snapdragon. Easter lilies have shortened. Last, but by no means least, chrysanthemums are arriving in small numbers at several of the houses. Some of them are fine enough to warrant higher prices. Golden Glow and Smith's Advance have been joined by October Frost.

The Riverview Place.

The railroad conductors on the trains between Trenton and Camden have fallen into the habit of calling their passengers' attention to the fields bordering the east side of the tracks as they approach the Henry A. Dreer place at Riverview. They are a gorgeous blaze of color, those ten acres of cannas as they come into sight and the trains flash past them. The cannas are at their best now. They are planted in solid colors, each variety by itself. The flower spikes are numerous, the flowers large, the colors clear and the foliage luxuriant. A Hungarian variety, Maros, is the leading white; it surpasses all others in freedom of bloom at Riverview.

There are fifty acres devoted to dahlias; 830 varieties, new and old, are planted in blocks under name, each variety carefully labeled; a trial ground of great interest. The score or more of new French hydrangeas in 5-inch and 6-inch pots are plunged in long squares with walks between, in a way which somewhat resembles our Belgian cousins' way of growing azaleas outdoors in summer, except that the hydrangeas are in pots, while the azaleas are planted out. These hydrangeas are attractive in appearance, with their symmetrical form and closely jointed growth, clothed in bright green foliage.

The Skinner system of irrigation has been put into extensive use at River-view, with gratifying results.

Ipomœa cardinalis presents a beautiful sight, with its numerous red flowers and bright green tendrils; it stands fully six feet high, covering the support completely with a wealth of growth. Ardisia crenulata, home-grown, promises well for next season. It is intended that this year's crop of berried ardisia from abroad shall be followed next year by just as fine plants as have ever crossed the ocean; it looks as though the plan would succeed.

Various Notes.

Samuel S. Pennock returned from Beach Haven to his home in Lansdowne September 19. He assumed command of his forces in person September 20. Charles E. Meehan has retired to Ocean

City for a brief, well-earned rest after his strenuous summer campaign covering four cities. The Baltimore branch was the chief fruit of his work.

Roses are, for the time at least, the leading flower on the market and they are now in goodly numbers and of a quality rarely equalled at this early date. Beauties are fine, and Mrs. Russell now looms up of grand quality at the leading stores. Killarney Queen remains a favorite, as does Taft and Ward. Milady as a new red is taking unusually well. Carnations are increasing in numbers, but are still small and short-stemmed. Quite a few single violets are coming from the big growers. Chrysanthemums are largely Golden Glow and Smith's Advance and are selling better with the partial spoiling of the late aster crop. Lilies are just about equal to the demand, and the same holds true of valley. Cosmos is good, and some nice pink snapdragon is arriving. Gladioli still are good, but asters are on the decline, owing to sharp frosts. In miscellaneous flowers, gypsophila, mont-ranks of the S. A. F., and said that if the various organizations work together a high water mark in conventions will surely be reached in 1914. He highly praised the selection for vice-president. Patrick Welch received a warm greeting. He asked for the cordial cooperation of everyone to make the coming convention the best ever. He looks for the biggest and best S. A. F. meeting ever held, in August, 1914. W. J. Stewart spoke of the 1890 convention and said he hopes to see the 1914 meeting as much ahead of all predecessors as the 1890 gathering led all those before it. He expects a big convention and large accession of new members at Boston. M. A. Patten spoke on the exhibition and considered the convention one of the best ever held. T. J. Grey described the interesting times he had helping to escort the ladies around, and gave an entertaining description of his journey home via the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence river. Eber Holmes also spoke on the convention, although he did not attend many of the meetings. Messrs. Bartsch, Cameron, Craig and Finlayson spoke on the coming convention and on methods which might be adopted to make it a pronounced success.

There were a few exhibits. Peter Fisher showed a nice vase of Gorgeous carnation to refute statements that it could not be flowered early. He said he could have had thousands of flowers now if he had wanted them. H. H. Bartsch, of W. W. Edgar Co., showed fine Golden Glow mums planted direct from the cutting bed to the benches in the middle of June. He placed three cuttings together in a bunch and spaced them 8 x 10. J. Van Leeuwen had fine gladioli, Thomas Hesketh, globe amaranths, and Alexander McKay, apples. Farquhar & Co. invited the club to hold a field day at an early date at their Dedham nurseries. It was voted to accept the invitation and the executive committee later set the date for September 27. Members and friends are invited to take the elevated railroad to Forest Hills, where special cars for East Walpole will leave at 1:30 p. m. These cars pass the nurseries, which are less than thirty minutes distant. A large attendance is expected.

CUT FERNS

MOSS : : EVERGREENS

Established 1867

HINSDALE, MASS.

the executive committee of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club. He is a bright and progressive young man and his many friends here wish him every success in his new field.

Thomas F. Galvin has had one of his large windows exclusively devoted to named dahlias of late, and they have attracted much attention.

P. & W. O. Jahn, of East Bridge-water, are sending fine pink snapdragons to W. H. Carr, at the Boston Flower Exchange. A. H. Knight, of Shrewsbury, also has some excellent carnations here.

W. W. Edgar Co. has one large house devoted to Golden Glow mums. Mr. Bartsch says they find this variety pays well, and the crop is cleared a full month ahead of about all other commercial yellows.

If present plans materialize, there will be a fine garden of ten acres not far from Horticultural hall, which will be laid out and planted with exhibits in connection with the S. A. F. convention in 1914. Speaking of attendances at the 1890 convention, it is worthy of note that no less than 1,177 persons enjoyed the clambake given at Nantasket Beach under the auspices of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club at that time.

Visitors last week included Duncan Robertson, of Chicago, at one time with the firm of J. Newman & Sons, and David A. Smith, of Thomas Smith & Sons, Stranraer, Scotland.

The Boston Cut Flower Co. is being kept unusually busy with funeral work. Mr. Rosenthal, the proprietor, speaks highly of Milady and Mrs. Russell roses.

W. A. Hastings says he is receiving unusually good pansies from H. D. Ward, successor to W. C. Ward, of Quincy, and extra nice carnations from R. P. Peterson, of Saxonville.

The next club meeting will be held at Horticultural hall October 14 instead of October 21, the regular date, the halls of the society being all rented for the latter date.

William Caraher, salesman for the Sutermeister Estate, of Readville, has a grand lot of America and other gladioli now at the Boston Flower Exchange.

Peter Fisher has nearly all of his Gorgeous carnations headed back for cuttings, for which there is a great demand.

Penn's, on Bromfield street, had one window devoted to Rose Mrs. Russell September 20, which Henry Penn speaks enthusiastically of. They also have a beautiful new Waban Conservatories' seedling named Moorfield Storey, similar in color to Taft but a great improvement on that variety. They have recently purchased a large quantity of choice tropical plants from the estate of Mrs. J. L. Gardner, Brookline.

A. E. E. Koch, of Nobscot, is already in the market with nice marguerites, Mrs. Sander.

The frosts recorded here September 15 and 16 were unusually severe for so early in the season. Temperatures as low as 24, 20 and even 18 degrees were recorded in various parts of Massachusetts, and tender plants, except at high elevations or where well sheltered, were mostly killed.

Frank Edgar, of Waverley, is growing 4,000 pots and pans of poinsettias this season. He has a fine lot of mums, of which he is now cutting Golden Glow. He will grow Zvolanek's new winter-flowering Spencer sweet peas to follow the mums.

Welch Bros. Co. will receive the full season's crop of carnations from C. B. Johnson, who recently purchased Arthur Griffin's place in Woburn.

A. G. Pembroke is back at his stand in the Boston Flower Exchange, having arrived home from a European trip September 18. He had a delightful trip, and brought home with him three Pekinese dogs.

Friends of H. Waldecker, of Braintree, have received letters announcing his safe arrival in Europe, where he has gone for a needed vacation.

W. N. Craig.

EIGHT PAGES OF RETAILERS' CARDS

This department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists — those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists — has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now—before you forget it?

The Market.

Business during September has been all that could be expected. Stock is coming on nicely and the quality is good. The demand seems to be for roses and there is no trouble in cleaning up on the good grades. This, apparently, also is true of carnations. Dahlias of good quality are making their appearance, but the supply still is limited.

Various Notes.

E. G. Reimers, C. H. Kunzman and F. Walker & Co. made creditable displays in the way of cut flowers and plants at the Kentucky State Fair.

E. C. Frederick, of Beutel & Frederick, report their place in excellent condition and business satisfactory. They recently erected another greenhouse of modern construction.

Mrs. C. W. Reimers is now at home in her new store, which is furnished elegantly throughout. Prospects for a good business are bright for this establishment.

F. Walker & Co. and Jacob Schulz have several decorations booked for fall openings. The inauguration of Fashion week has created a larger demand than usual for decorative material.

much cooler weather greatly helped the growers, and stock of all kinds showed great improvement in quality. The first part of the week the retailers had plenty to do, furnishing plants and designs for fall openings at downtown department stores, but the bad weather killed off the transient trade in all parts of the city.

In looking over the wholesale markets we found an overabundance of asters and short-stemmed carnations, which were generally left over after the morning sales and had to be sold cheaply in large lots in order to dispose of them. Roses sold up pretty clean all week, as there is a short supply of first grade stock. The Killarney varieties are in best supply. Some extra fine Richmond and Sunburst were to be had daily. Beauties are not any too plentiful at present. There still are plenty of gladioli, and quantities of inferior asters. New smilax is beginning to arrive, but not enough to go around. Other greens are to be had in any quantity.

Various Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Fehr, of Belleville, Ill., spent Friday, September 19, in the city buying supplies. Mr. Fehr reports a good summer business.

nue and Olive street. The big crowds at this busy corner are always attracted to their pretty window displays.

Werner Bros. and the Weber Nursery Co. are cutting quantities of roses, but the quality is not so good as it will be later on. These two are the largest of the local rose growers. Their carnations, too, are among the best coming to this market.

The Retail Florists' Association held its first meeting since last spring at Theo. Miller's store, on Delmar boulevard. The attendance was quite large.
It was decided to ask the wholesalers to omit their names from the classified lists in the telephone directory and to ask the coöperation of the Florists' Club in this.

George Waldbart arrived home from Europe last week. His friends in the trade were kept advised during his travels with daily postals. Andy, Dave splendid first week's business. The big display of fine decorative plants and fancy cut stock attracted the lady shoppers in large numbers. As Vandervoort's cater only to the best trade, no cheap stock will be handled.

Our old friend, Walter Mott, after an absence of six years, called on the local trade last week in the interest of Hammond's Paint & Slug Shot Works, of Beacon, N. Y.

Pierre Schnider, manager for the Oakland Floral Co., at Kirkwood, says he will grow more carnations this year, and less sweet peas. The trade will be glad to hear this, as Schnider's carnations are always in demand.

The Nicotine Mfg. Co., now located at 7 and 9 Lucas avenue, is preparing to move to 117 North Main street, where much larger quarters will be available. John S. Carter, president, says when once settled in the new place, they will be able to fill all orders promptly. Mr. Carter has made application for membership in the Florists' Club.

N. Kingsley, of the Mullanphy Flower Co., and Henry Ostertag, spent a few days at Chicago the last week. Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Windler are there this week, visiting Mrs. Windler's father, Adam Zender.

The baseball team of Grimm & Gorly won the Merchants' League pennant. Frank X. Gorly says the team proved an excellent advertisement.

The Lady Florists' Home Circle spent a pleasant afternoon at the home of Mrs. John Steidel September 17. All the members were present except Mrs. H. Berning, who was prevented by illness. During the meeting the members presented Mrs. Steidel with a set of table linen, it being her birthday, and all sat down to a splendid supper furnished by the hostess. J. J. B.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

The retail florists and growers had three trying days during the early part of last week, San Francisco and the Bay region having attained its record high temperature. The thermometer has not for some forty odd years been taxed as it was September 16. It was all our florists could do to keep their stores looking cool.

The stock of flowers shows indications of improvement. American Beauties are about twenty-five per cent better than they have been for some time. Other roses do not show as much improvement. A good seller and an excellent lasting rose is Prima Donna. We also see some outdoor-grown Ulrich Brunners and the fact that San Francisco flower stores can show fairly good stock of this so late in the season is a tribute to our wonderful climate. The most serviceable commodity of the week has been the rubrum lily, next in order being mums.

We have just had the greatest call for funeral pieces that has been registered for many a day. It was for the burial of Charles de Young, a prominent newspaper man. All our downtown stores were taxed to capacity.

Orchids are scarce; in fact, had it been possible to bring 6,000 orchids on the market during the week every flower would have been sold. Fortunately, some of our larger growers had a good cut of Phalaenopsis amabilis and they filled in excellently in the absence of cattleyas. Some good sprays of Oncidium varicosum were in evidence and they proved a good commodity.

Retailers are pleased to find that flowering plants are making their entree. Good cyclamen may be had, also good peppers. There is every indication that the demand for flowering plants during the coming winter will be good. Violets are now quite plentiful, but the bunches still are small and the flowers weak. Asters were not available during the last two or three days. Dahlias still are procurable and are exceptionally good this week.

Various Notes.

H. Plath, of the Ferneries, issued an invitation to the members of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society to spend Sunday, September 21, at his nurseries.

To those who have been most observing, the news of the marriage of John Ramsay Fotheringham, of Tarrytown, N. Y., and Mrs. Elizabeth Weir Shank, of San Francisco, was not a surprise, but many of the craft were unaware that this event would take place in our midst, September 9. Mr. Fotheringham's friends extend from coast to coast and there is no one in the trade who will not extend felicitations.

Julius Eppstein, of the California Florist, in Geary street, reports an excellent week. He is giving his store the annual renovation. The woodwork has just received a coat of enamel, and with a large importation of baskets and general supplies, Mr. Eppstein is ready to tackle the winter activities. Mr.

Forrest, of the same firm, who has for some time been confined by illness, is up and about and as busy as ever.

A. F. Ludemann, of Millbrae, is spending a few weeks at Seattle on business and pleasure bent.

Emil Serveau, of Fillmore street, is suffering from rheumatism.

Mark Ebel, one of the leading florists of Sacramento, entertained Daniel MacRorie, H. Plath and several other members of the craft while they visited the State Fair in Sacramento.

Patrick Orr, of the Fairmount Floral Co., owing to continued illness and slow convalescence, has been obliged to retire to his home town, Chico, where he will stay until he has recuperated from his recent operation.

Podesta & Baldocchi, on Grant avenue, report an unusually active week, the de Young funeral having made heavy demands on their workmen.

Mr. Podesta reports that it was impossible to secure a sufficient quantity of orchids. Harry Soelke made a piece that contained about twenty dozen valley massed in spray form, at the right of which were 100 Phalaenopsis amabilis, fine long sprays excellently placed. Banked against these was a cluster of about thirty cattleyas tied with an exquisite piece of tulle. The piece contained no fern whatever and was a wonderfully delicate piece of workmanship.

Pelicano, Rossi & Co., on Kearney street, were extremely busy with funeral work last week, owing to the same conditions. They also report a tremendous increase in the business over last week.

Frank Shibeley, of the Shibeley-Mann Co., has returned from Los Gatos after a two months' illness. Mr. Shibeley suffered with bronchitis and malaria. He is much improved and has resumed the lighter duties at his store.

Ralph Stevens, head draftsman of the MacBorie-McLaren Co. is sojourning in Europe, but will soon start on his homeward journey. W. A. H.

Two big plate glass windows fronting the store of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., in the Phoenix building, 228 Grant avenue, were shattered September 14, during a fight between non-union cloakmakers and a gang of men who attacked them as they left the Phoenix building.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

"The greatest heat in twenty-two years" is the report of the weather man for September 17, the thermometer recording 117 degrees in the middle of the day. The most assiduous of Los Angeles boosters had to admit it was hot. The wind came from the desert, and as early as 5 a. m. there was a choking stuffiness in the atmosphere that fortunately is as rare here as it is unpleasant. Flowers simply wilted, and the basement stores were the only places where life was worth living. Fashion show orders are coming in freely and it looks now as though the demand would be exceptional.

Stock of all kinds is about equal to the demand, the only shortage being in good greenhouse carnations. Chrysanthemums are coming along more freely and the quality is good. Roses are poor in every case, the first flowers from the young stock being over. Funeral work has kept up well, helping out with transient business. Quite a scarcity develops once in a while in the cheaper grades of stock, and for several weeks now there has been difficulty in procuring sufficient valley. Orchids are scarce, as are greens also.

It is becoming more and more apparent that a broader distinction will have to be made between the wholesale and retail ends of the business here. The retailers complain that wholesalers cultivate a trade in "red violets," but the latter say that growers peddling their goods get the business when stock is plentiful. It makes a kind of scrambling business that is not at all satisfactory, but there appears to be no help for it, and the only thing that remains is for all to do the best they can and "quit kicking."

Various Notes.

A. Elgert and G. F. Martin have about seven acres of fine land in the east end of the San Gabriel valley and have made a good start in cut flower growing. The carnations are especially fine, including a deep rose-pink seedling, which is extremely popular with the best retail trade here. A large lath house has been built for growing Asparagus plumosus and propagating, and altogether these young men have made a good start. Both are workers and both have had considerable experience, two conditions making for success.

At Darling's Flower Shop last week an attractive window was made with a lot of new colors and designs in chiffons and ribbons. This may be unusual, but it was eminently successful in drawing a crowd.

A. Zvolanek, of Lompoc, Cal., and Boundbrook, N. J., has been making a tour of this and nearby cities, partly on business and partly for recreation.

He reports his sweet pea seed as good, what there is of it, but he has had to cut down on some large orders. As the pioneer grower of winter peas Mr. Zvolanek is well known, and he has other cards up his sleeve.

Business is opening up finely with Staiger & Mundwiler at the home place in the city, and they are progressing well at the new place at Lomita. Mr. Mundwiler now resides at Lomita, Mr. Staiger being more at the home place. The ferns here are magnificent; among them are some of the finest specimens of market nephrolepis I have seen in such small pots and baskets.

T. F. M. Williamson, on Figueroa and Washington streets, continues to make an elegant show in his windows, which is surely bringing him business. Some exceptionally fine Nephrolepis Amerpohlii and N. Whitmani were on show last week.

Ernest Stover, formerly with Wright's Flower Shop, is now with H. Reeve Darling at Sixth street.

Morris Goldenson has had his store repainted and cleaned up generally, and some changes made in the arrangement. This has greatly improved its appearance and made more room and convenience.

Great crowds around O. C. Saakes' store September 17 made everyone wonder what was happening and eventually it transpired that the ubiquitous moving picture man was on the job.

At Dieterich & Turner's the propagating benches are never at rest and thousands of the new roses are now being rooted for early sales. Practically all of the immense stock raised here is sold and one wonders where it all goes. Repeat orders are frequent, showing that quality tells.

Stock cleans up well daily at the Los Angeles Flower Market, and with all the hustling, orders have occasionally to be turned down.

The Market.

The flower business is again becoming worth while; the last few weeks little has been doing, but now the florists are beginning to wear that sunny smile which indicates better times. Stock of most flowers is fairly plentiful, and the stores are looking gay. In fact, the writer, who has recently returned from an eastern visit, notices more flowers in one store here than in any of the eastern cities visited. Outside flowers are almost over, but good gladioli, lilies and sweet peas are still procurable and are selling well. Carnations are scarce and of none too good quality. Most of the supply is from hold-over plants; young stock cutting has hardly begun, and those coming in are short-stemmed and not of first quality. Looking over sundry plants where carnations are the main winter crop leads one to prophesy that this season's cut will more than equal last year's in quality and quantity. Roses are now arriving in fairly liberal quantities and are of fair quality, selling well. Ferns and other pot plants are in demand, and fall openings of the department stores are stimulating trade considerably.

California Carnation Company

LOOMIS, CALIFORNIA

16. It is located in the Green building, on Fourth avenue near Pike street. H. J. Croskill and C. F. Muench are the proprietors and they certainly deserve credit for a beautiful and commodious place of business. An innovation for florists here is their refrigerating plant, with which they manufacture their own ice. Miss Ruth Shook is assisting them in the store, and from latest reports business is good and prospects encouraging.

Joseph Stuber and Ralph Richardson reached home September 15, after an extended tour of eastern cities. They enjoyed themselves greatly, but were glad to see Seattle again just the same.

Hollywood Gardens have had a good share of the decorations at the department stores this month. They decorated McDougal & Southwick, Frederick & Nelson and Fraser Paterson & Co. for their openings last week.

Mr. Richardson, Sr., of the Floral Market Co., and E. Matraia, the Paris Florist, have been looking over conditions in California. They returned last week.

The Floral Market Co. received a shipment of chrysanthemums from California last week, which arrived in good condition.

The Aabling-Ebright Seed Co. has leased the greenhouses of the Seattle Carnation Co., at Kent. The plan is to use them partly for seed-testing purposes. J. A. Sahli and Ed Founds have charge of the growing department.

At the King County Fair the prizes for a table of flowers, 100 square feet, were awarded as follows: Thomas Wylie, first; H. B. Burdett Co., second; Aabling-Ebright Seed Co., third. The silver cup for six plants in 4-inch pots was won by Thomas Wylie. C. Hoffmeister judged the florists' exhibits. Thomas Wylie also won first prize with his onions, twelve of which weighed twenty-eight pounds. T. W.

Dayton, Wash.—Walter Harrison acted as judge at the dahlia show held here September 9.

Victoria, B. C.—S. Thorne is the successor to H. Pruey at the greenhouses at 2134 Ida street.

Montebello, Cal.—Class spirit at the Montebello High School is filling florists' pockets as the result of plans by which each class in turn fills a large jardiniere in the school with flowers of the class color.

Burlingame, Cal.—Seven miles of marsh land between here and South San Francisco will be converted into a flower and vegetable farm by the D. O. Mills estate at a cost of $250,000. Long leases have been made by the Mills estate, which owns only a part of the land, and $50,000 has already been spent for dredging. The planting of seeds will begin early next year.

Ferns in 2½ and 2½-in. Pots best varieties for fern dishes, $4.50 per 100. Boston, Elegantiissima, Whitmani and Amerpohlil ferns in all sizes. Also a large stock of Kentias.
